"A VERY IMPRESSIVE ACHIEVEMENT . . . [Religion and Modern Man] is an excellent survey of the present state of western religious thought in the varying fields of history of religion, theology and philosophy of religion, sociology and psychology of religion . . . . The book will awaken student excitement in the subject matter, since the author vividly communicates the importance and relevance of religion to the present personal and social situation of the reader. This is no mean achievement." — From an advance review by W. Richard Comstock, University of California, Santa Barbara

Religion and Modern Man

A Study of the Religious Meaning of Being Human

JOHN B. MAGEE

This introductory text explores the major problems encountered by the inquiring student. Relates religion to other areas of study, thus encouraging him to develop a broad perspective that will include pertinent aspects of historical, philosophical, sociological, and psychological disciplines. Includes material on Asian religion and a solid discussion of how different faiths relate to one another and to modern society. 510 pages; $8.00

An Introduction to Christianity

ROBERT T. ANDERSON • PETER B. FISCHER

Mainly a doctrinal approach to the major Christian faiths, with historical background, this text is comprehensive rather than sectarian. The authors avoid what they think Christianity ought to be in favor of what experience demonstrates it is. Treats the Bible systematically. 236 pages; $5.50

A Light to the Nations:

An Introduction to the Old Testament

NORMAN K. GOTTWALD

Presents the Hebrew-Jewish faith in its historical continuity, with special attention to the literature of the Old Testament. Literature, history, and religion are integrated. Maps; charts; glossary. 614 pages; $7.95

Coming Spring '68

Introduction to Religion

A Phenomenological Approach/ SECOND EDITION

WINSTON L. KING

This thoroughly revised and rewritten edition is intended as an introduction to religion as a phenomenon in human cultures and as a methodology for the study of religious phenomenon. New features include integration of varied illustrative material with the textual discussion, the addition of devotional mysticism as a new category in types of religious experience, and expanded treatment of the mystical and symbolic element in religion.

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF RELIGION

The American Academy of Religion was established in December 1963 as successor to the National Association of Biblical Instructors founded in 1909. The change of name reflected the enormous changes which have taken place in the study and teaching of religion in this century and was fully warranted as an accurate reflection of the diverse training and interests of the members of the Academy.

The fundamental purpose of the Academy is to stimulate scholarship and foster research in the total complex of disciplines which together constitute religion as an area of learning. Full recognition is given not only to the disciplines traditional to theology but also to those aspects of the social sciences and humanities which have come to play an indispensable role in the study of religion. It is the underlying aim of the Academy to provide opportunity for development of special interests and to make possible cross-disciplinary conversations which are mutually stimulating and profitable.

These aims are implemented primarily through the reading of papers at the annual meeting, meetings of the geographical sections and the Journal of the Academy. Here fruits of scholarship and reports of work in progress in all the disciplines germane to the study of religion are brought to a wider audience.

The Academy is at the same time a professional society as most of its members are engaged not only in scholarship and research but in teaching. Consequently the Academy attempts to keep its membership informed of new programs being developed, new materials available, new opportunities for study grants and research funds. As a professional society it also serves as a clearing-house for members seeking new positions and institutions seeking new staff. In both its academic and professional dimensions the Academy seeks to fulfill its role as the national organization which most fully represents the total field of religion in American scholarship.

Many of its members also hold membership in other societies representing their specific disciplines, and this is all to the good. It is the aim of the Academy, however, to function as a meeting place where the study of religion in its broadest dimensions may be fostered and enhanced.

RECENT AND

BASIC MODERN PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION

Frederick Ferré, Dickinson College. This book provides an introduction to philosophical thinking through the problems of philosophy of religion. It deals with what all religions have in common, it discusses theistic religion and the issue of intellectually responsible belief in God, it examines current developments within Christianity, and it seriously looks at the current controversial movements in theology. 480 pages. Hardbound Edition—$7.50, Student Paperbound Edition—$3.95

DEEDS AND RULES IN CHRISTIAN ETHICS

Paul Ramsey, Princeton University. In this most important contribution to the current ethics debate, Dr. Ramsey examines the question of whether there is a Christian social ethic. He introduces a number of contemporary moral problems and examines in considerable detail such moral philosophers and religious ethicists as Frankena, Fletcher, Lehmann, Rawls, and Robinson. He issues a call for disciplined ethical reflection and for a renewal of theological ethics that does not ignore moral philosophy. 253 pages. Hardbound Edition—$5.95, Student Paperbound Edition—$3.50

WORLDLY THEOLOGY:

The Hermeneutical Focus of an Historical Faith

Carl Michalson. In this, his last book, Michalson deals with movements in theology during the last fifty years and with some of the key figures: Heim, Bultmann, Heidegger, Ott, Kierkegaard, and Wesley. As a Christian theologian, the author welcomes the "new secularity" of our time. He believes, however, that the evangelistic ambition should be to confirm and strengthen men in a responsible sonship with Christ, a relationship which in some respects is theirs already. 255 pages. Hardbound Edition—$5.95, Student Paperbound Edition—$2.95

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

FORTHCOMING

THE CHURCH IN THE WAY

James E. Dittes, Yale University. Responding to the common criticism about the church—that it is irrelevant, unreal, preoccupied with administrative details to the detriment of its spiritual mission—the author finds a positive value in these seemingly negative aspects and shows how they may sometimes reveal the best opportunity for ministry. 384 pages. Probable prices: Hardbound Edition —$6.95, Student Paperbound Edition—$3.50

THE GLORY OF MAN

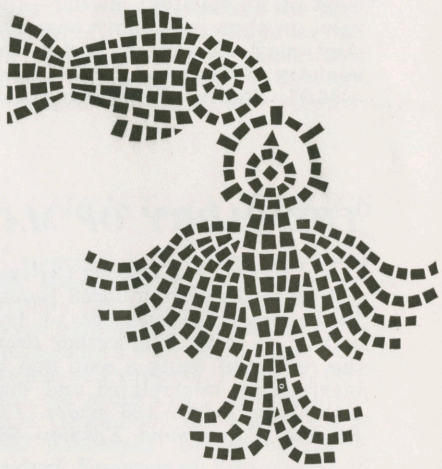

David E. Jenkins, Queens College, Oxford. This book, consisting of the distinguished Bampton Lectures delivered in 1966, raises the question of truth and investigates the matter of faith. The author examines his conviction that the reality of being a man and belief in Jesus Christ are inextricably interrelated and that both need considerable rethinking today. 128 pages. Hardbound Edition—$3.50, Student Paperbound Edition—$1.95

TWO STUDIES IN THE THEOLOGY OF BONHOEFFER

Jurgen Moltmann and Jurgen Weissbach. Introduction by Reginald H. Fuller, Union Theological Seminary, New York. The American reader's view of Bonhoeffer's theology has been distorted by the "death of God" theologians, among others. These two studies, which provide an introduction to significant Continental discussions about his work, are of pivotal importance for an understanding of both Christian ethics and Bonhoeffer's thought. Translated by Reginald H. and Ilse Fuller. 160 pages. Probable prices: Hardbound Edition—$3.95, Student Paperbound Edition—$2.95.

Two Prentice-Hall texts on Christian religion . . .

Jesus in the Gospels

by Ernest W. Saunders, Garrett Theological Seminary, Illinois

This text is an interpretative presentation of the message and the career of Jesus of Nazareth to determine His concerns, His purposes, and His understanding of the meaning and destiny of human existence.

JESUS IN THE GOSPELS is ideally suited for courses on the New Testament at the college level. Advanced students in seminar courses will find the reading suggestions and documentation extremely helpful.

June 1967, 324 pp., $7.50

Comprehensive Handbook of Christian Doctrine

by John Lawson, Candler School of Theology, Emory University

COMPREHENSIVE HANDBOOK OF CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE provides an outline of Christian thought that avoids oversimplifying. It presents parallel views — Roman Catholic, Orthodox, and Protestant — and notes where they diverge.

This handbook is intended for both college and seminary students as an introduction to further studies. It is also useful as an aid for the inquiring layman.

THEORIA TO THEORY

The object of this journal is to try and make religion comprehensible in the sense in which science makes things comprehensible, in terms of a theory. The triviality of standard theological thinking in the eyes of the contemporary world is due to its utter lack of generality.

The journal is trying to make a transition from theoria to theory: it is a place of exchange for work in progress, and welcomes disagreements, criticism and development of the views expressed.

Selected books

FAITH TO ACT by Jack Boozer and William A. Beardslee. Is there a viable Christian morality for today? The authors think that there is — but only if we break with some errors of the past. First, they show how traditional morality has been so specific that faith has been dependent on ethics rather than the other way around. Then they discuss the true relation of faith and ethics, some common misconceptions about love and faith, faith and the world, and a contemporary testing ground for Christian ethics — racial justice. 272 pages. $5.75

THE CONCEPT OF WILLING edited by James N. Lapsley. Is man's will an outdated concept or an essential part of the self, even transcending the self? Growing out of Princeton Theological Seminary's 1963 Gallahue Conference, this book presents the thought of Seward Hiltner, Paul W. Pruyser, John Macquarrie, Hugh T. Kerr, Walter B. Studdiford, and the editor. 224 pages. $5.50

A THEOLOGICAL APPROACH TO ART by Roger Hazelton. Contemporary art is very interesting — but what does it have to do with the church? The author bridges the rift between art and theology by showing that they work toward the same end — an illumination of the nature of man and life. He goes beyond theory to give specific examples of art as disclosure, embodiment, vocation, and celebration. He also redefines Christian art. 160 pages. $3.50

GLOSSOLALIA by Frank Stagg, E. Glenn Hinson, and Wayne E. Oates. What is behind the resurgence of tongue speaking throughout the church? Clearly and objectively, the authors analyze this phenomenon from biblical, the historical, and the psychological perspectives. They do not attack tongue speaking but do hold that there is a "more excellent way" of Christian witness and action.
112 pages. Paper, $1.45

ON BECOMING HUMAN by Ross Snyder. How are life goals established and a philosophy of life decided on? Mr. Snyder talks to young people and their leaders about making the decision to be truly alive and participate in living rather than just let life happen. An appendix contains a vocabulary with which to talk about the meaning of existence.

ESSENTIALS OF BIBLE HISTORY

By the late ELMER W. K. MOULD.
Revised by H. NEIL RICHARDSON,
Boston University; and
ROBERT F. BERKEY,
Mount Holyoke College

Third Edition.

This distinguished book for introductory courses in the study of the Bible has been revised and updated to reflect latest advances in Biblical archaeology and research. Outstanding events of both sacred and profane history are comprehensively treated, and the Scriptures are fully discussed from religious, ethical, and literary points of view. Every book of the Bible, including the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha, is separately examined. An account of the domestic life and manners of the Biblical peoples leads to a fuller understanding of the sacred writings. Throughout, citation of passages by chapter and verse serves to direct the student's Bible reading. The Revised Standard Version of the Bible has been employed as a source throughout

PEOPLE OF THE COVENANT:

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE OLD TESTAMENT

HENRY JACKSON FLANDERS, JR.;
ROBERT WILSON CRAPPS; and DAVID ANTHONY SMITH
— all Furman University

This textbook offers a clear over-all picture of Old Testament history. Beginning with Genesis, it outlines the story of Israel to the century preceding Christianity. Archaeological, literary, and theological contributions are utilized, with the Old Testament as a basis. Throughout, Israel's story is placed in its ancient Near Eastern setting but is interpreted as distinct because of its profound religious dimension. Teaching aids include references to Scripture passages appropriate to each subject discussed; maps, chronology charts, drawings, and photographs. "College teachers and others who need a good textbook for a beginning course of study in the Old Testament will welcome this book." — The Review and Expositor.

The History of Religions

Essays on The Problem of Understanding

Edited by Joseph M. Kitagawa

This first volume in the "Essays in Divinity" series includes essays by Mircea Eliade and Joachim Wach on the function of comparative study of religions. Paul Tillich, Kees W. Bolle, and Thomas J. J. Altizer relate Christian theology and non-Christian religions; Philip H. Ashby and Charles S. J. White write on Hinduism, Charles J. Adams on Islam, H. Byron Earhart on Japanese religion and Jerome H. Long on primitive religions. The crucial problem of interpretation is taken up by Charles H. Long, and the editor's essay deals with the question of perspective.

The Journal of Religion

J. Coert Rylaarsdam
Nathan A. Scott, Jr.
Editors

Founded by William Rainey Harper in 1882, The Journal of Religion makes available authoritative and provocative articles on religious subjects. It offers both historical and contemporary studies, but its aim is to throw light upon religious problems that are currently relevant and insistent. Included in its offerings are articles dealing with topics that concern the wider intellectual community, topics such as philosophy and sociology of religion, ethics and society, and religion and personality. Published quarterly by the Divinity School of the University of Chicago.

Charles H. Long
Editors

Concern for the study and teaching of the history of religions has been growing steadily in American universities. The History of Religions, founded in 1961, promotes studies and discussions on central themes such as the meaning and function of myth and ritual, the structure of religious symbolism, the problem of the high god, of mana and of totemism. The journal is international in scope, both as to contributors and subscribers, and is intended as an organ of communication between scholars in this field in America, Europe and Asia. Published quarterly.

Systematic Theology

Three volumes in one

Paul Tillich

This new edition makes available in a single volume the unabridged three volumes of Tillich's monumental work published in 1951, 1957, and 1963. "Paul Tillich writes about absolutely ultimate issues in terms that are finally next door to contemporary man's experience, yet he never over-simplifies in writing directly." — Paul Ramsey, Book Week. " . . . beyond doubt the richest, most suggestive, and most challenging philosophical theology our day has produced." — John H. Randall, Jr., Union Seminary Quarterly Review.

Rockefeller Chapel Sermons

Edited by Donovan E. Smucker

With a preface by E. Spencer Parsons

These sermons grapple with man's relation to God and to society, with faith and science, with the spiritual life, and with human death. Often unconventional, even audacious in their approach — yet solidly based on biblical scholarship — they deal with such recent theological issues as the "God is dead" argument. Professor Smucker has selected twenty-six outstanding sermons from those preached at the University of Chicago's Rockefeller Chapel since 1960, including sermons by Sheldon H. Blank, Kyle Haselden, Schubert M. Ogden, Jaroslav Pelikan, Lou H. Silberman, Huston Smith, Paul Tillich, and others.

The Book of God and Man

A Study of Job

Robert Gordis

"This magnificent study of one of the greatest literary masterpieces of all time cannot fail to thrill every serious student of the Book of Job or anyone deeply concerned about the enigmas of human existence. Job will take on new meaning and relevance not from pat answers, but from a deep understanding born of broad human experience and an accurate and extensive knowledge of the literature and literary forms of the ancient Semetic world." — R. Vernon Ritter, Library Journal.

Radical Theology: Phase Two

Essays on the Current Debate

Edited by C. W. CHRISTIAN and GLENN R. WITTIG. The first comprehensive book for all who are following the God-is-dead debate brings together the best essays written in response to the radical theologians. They show clearly how the debate is redirecting Christian thought.
Cloth, $4.95. Paper, $2.25

A Theology of Things

By CONRAD BONIFAZI. The Christianity of the future will be obliged to view the material world in a new light in order to capture the allegiance of science-minded man. The author points the way in this brilliant survey of the significance of matter. $5.95

We Jews and You Christians

By SAMUEL SANDMEL, author of WE JEWS AND JESUS. Because there is no central Jewish authority to speak, Dr. Sandmel sets out singlehandedly to issue the Jewish counterpart to the Vatican Council's Declaration on the Jews. $3.95

The Sense of Absence

By GEDDES MACGREGOR, author of GOD BEYOND DOUBT. "The quest for God's absence is a natural human propensity, as psychologically natural as the death wish." This sensitive, always lucid author illuminates the ways that God is discovered through a sense of His absence. Coming in January. $4.50

The Church Unbound

A Human Church for a Human World

By NORMAN K. GOTTWALD. From an examination of the church-culture relationships in ancient Israel, Professor Gottwald draws provocative conclusions concerning the potentialities of the church as a critical force in today's culture. $4.95

The Premature Death of Protestantism

An Invitation to a Future

By FRED J. DENBEAUX. "Christianity has a staying power which does not rely upon the approval of the civilization in which it participates." The author presents a strong counterargument to the trend that tries to make the church all things to all men. Cloth, $4.95. Paper, $2.25

Tillich: A Theological Portrait

By DAVID H. HOPPER. This portrait brings to light something more of the existential, controversial aspects of the life and thought of Paul Tillich than has been covered before in English. The author finds in Tillich's German years the original formulations of his thought. $4.50

ARTICLES

Dvornik: "There is only one way to achieve an understanding. The Western Church has to revive the tradition which she herself had followed up to the twelfth century . . . and recognize only the seven primitive councils, excluding the so-called Eighth."

Nissiotis: "The Eastern Church will demand from Rome, openly and frankly for the sake of a healthy ecumenism, a revision of the doctrine of Vatican I and not an attempt to complement it by the concept of the so-called "collegiality of the bishops."

Neusner: "A Jewish theology must begin, therefore, with a recognition that Christianity has played a role in the history of human redemption. . . . At the same time . . . We ask for Christians to take our existence seriously, just as we must take theirs."

Tavard: "If it is progress, the ecumenical movement cannot be satisfied with seeking new answers to old questions. . . . It also has to ask new questions. The question that I perceive here is: Is Ecumenism a problem or a mystery?"

Tobias: "How important a criterion is the possibility that God might welcome the joyful fellowship of two or three, or even just the risk of potential fellowship, rather than that of only one? If one man can or could live indefinitely, will he not need eventually to consider the possibility and the criteria of willingly resigning his space to another?"

TIME Magazine: "Another ancient barrier of suspicion between Roman Catholics and Protestants seems about to fall . . . In the Journal of Ecumenical Studies Dutch Jesuit Frans Josef van Beeck finds a basis for arguing that Catholics can give full credit and validity to any or all of the Protestant spiritual acts."

BOOKS OF LASTING VALUE

A Survey of Christian Ethics

By EDWARD LeROY LONG, JR., Professor of Religion, College of Arts and Sciences, Oberlin College. "The only comprehensive study of the whole spectrum of Christian ethics." — JOHN C. BENNETT, Union Theological Seminary, New York. "A careful, critical, forceful, lucid presentation." — JAMES LUTHER ADAMS, Harvard Divinity School. "Indispensable and genuinely exciting as an introduction to the many varieties of Christian ethics, both Catholic and Protestant." — MICHAEL NOVAK, Stanford University (College edition also available.)
$6.50

The Worldliness of Worship

By JAMES F. WHITE, Associate Professor of Worship, Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University. "Useful for study by members of all the Christian communions. . . . This volume, coming as it does from the pastoral hand of a careful scholar, should do much to apprise the churches of their common treasure of scripture and sacrament." — THE REVEREND GERARD S. SLOYAN, Head, Department of Religious Education, The Catholic University of America
$5.00

Language, Persons, and Belief

By DALLAS M. HIGH, Assistant Professor of Philosophy and Religion, Hiram College. This book relates the later philosophy of Ludwig Wittgenstein, particularly as shown in his Philosophical Investigations, to the study of religion. Wittgenstein's cardinal concepts of the function of language are considered, and his theories are applied to religious thought and discourse, particularly to traditional Christian creedal and doctrinal affirmations. $4.50

"Hell is being alone"
Bergman

Science and Faith

TOWARDS A THEOLOGICAL UNDERSTANDING OF NATURE

By ERIC C. RUST, Professor of Christian Philosophy, The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. A comprehensive exploration of the historical, philosophical, and psychological bases of scientific and religious thought, this study denies a conflict of sacred and secular, showing how the two are bridged. The author maintains that only a rediscovery of the immanence of the Holy Spirit can help the Church to face the secular emphasis of our time. $6.50
