SBL NEW PROGRAM UNIT

How My Mind Has Changed (or remained the same)

Formative contributions to biblical studies provoke years of discussion. Those scholars who generate these seminal works sometimes move into other areas of research. This new program unit is an effort to provide a forum for retrospective and prospective reflections by those scholars some years after the initial publication of their work. Raymond E. Brown will initiate this new program unit approximately fifteen years after the publication of his two volume work in the Anchor Bible on The Gospel According to John. The Program Committee eagerly anticipates this new dimension of the Annual Meeting.

This session will take place Monday evening, December 20, from 8:00-9:30 in the East Ballroom.

SBL SPECIAL LECTURE-DISCUSSION

This is the second year the Program Committee has experimented with a new type of program offering. Selected scholars have been asked to prepare an introduction to an area of specialization or study. The introduction will include a brief lecture and an illustration of the area's potential for further work. Discussion will follow engaging all participants. This type of program unit will give individuals an opportunity to be introduced to new areas and/or to discuss ways to further current research. This year the following topics have been selected:

P. Kyle McCarter, Jr., University of Virginia, Old Testament Textual Criticism

Norman K. Gottwald, New York Theological Seminary, Sociological Method in Biblical Research and Contemporary Peace Studies

These sessions will take place on Tuesday evening, December 21, at 8:00.

THE HISTORY OF SBL

All members of the SOCIETY are invited to a reception and autograph party celebrating the recently completed Searching the Scriptures: A History of The Society of Biblical Literature by Ernest W. Saunders. Admission will be granted by purchasing the book at the door. This event will take place in the SBL Executive Suite on Sunday evening, December 19, from 9:30 to 10:30.

SBL SEMINAR PAPERS

A number of papers to be discussed at the Annual Meeting are available in advance of the meeting. Seminar and group members, interested auditors, and others who wish to participate in those sessions for which papers have been prepublished should order this volume of papers without delay. The volume may be purchased even by those not attending the sessions. An order form is provided on page 5. The 1982 Seminar Papers contain materials for the following sessions on the program:

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF RELIGION

The American Academy of Religion is a society of college and university professors and others engaged in teaching and research in the field of religion. Its purpose is to stimulate scholarship, foster research and promote learning in the complex of disciplines that constitute religion as a field of inquiry.

Publications of the Academy and the convening of annual national and regional meetings implement these aims. Publications include the quarterly Journal of the American Academy of Religion and monographs in the various series listed elsewhere on this page. The structure of the annual meeting of the Academy reflects the varied scholarly concerns of its members and provides for the development of both special interests and cross-disciplinary conversations in the general sessions, sections, groups, and seminars. These program units, formed in response to interests of the members, change to keep pace with movement in the field of religion.

The Academy is also a professional society keeping its membership informed of developing programs, newly available materials, and opportunities for study grants and research funds. The Academy is affiliated with the American Council of Learned Societies and the Council on the Study of Religion and cooperates in the publication of the CSR Bulletin, a professional news magazine, and also in the publication of a job registry in the field of religion.

In addition to those whose interests are in the area of religion, many members whose primary professional identification is with societies serving other disciplines find membership in the Academy important in maintaining cross-disciplinary communication and in providing an overview of the field of religion.

SOCIETY OF BIBLICAL LITERATURE

The object of the SOCIETY is to stimulate the critical investigation of the classical biblical literatures, together with other related literature, by the exchange of scholarly research both in published form and in public forum. The SOCIETY endeavors to support those disciplines and subdisciplines pertinent to the illumination of the literatures and religions of the ancient Near Eastern and Mediterranean regions, such as the study of ancient languages, textual criticism, history, and archaeology.

The publications of the SOCIETY include the experimental work of seminars, journals and monographs. These publications, through SCHOLARS PRESS, encourage younger scholars, provide opportunities for many to share the results of their work and to make a major contribution to the advancement of humanistic learning.

The SOCIETY works cooperatively with related organizations. The continuing relationship at Annual Meetings with the American Academy of Religion and the American Schools of Oriental Research strengthens the work of all scholars. Affiliation with the American Council of Learned Societies and the Council on the Study of Religion enables the SOCIETY to speak in several important arenas. There is support and cooperation with affiliated organizations, such as the National Association of Professors of Hebrew, the International Organization for Septuagint and Cognate Studies, and the International Organization for Masoretic Studies. Several international organizations, as well as many non-North American members, enable the SOCIETY to better understand its global responsibilities.

The Executive Office of the SOCIETY is located at The Iliff School of Theology, 2201 South University Boulevard, Denver, CO 80210.

OFFICERS AND COMMITTEES

The SOCIETY thanks these persons for their leadership. Few learned societies are so indebted to such a large number of persons and their institutions for volunteer time and energy. The second 100 years of the SOCIETY has begun with new agendas and frontiers. We thank you for helping us set those horizons.

CHAIRS OF PROGRAM UNITS

The SOCIETY takes this opportunity to thank publicly the various chairs of program units for the enormous time devoted to the Annual Meeting. Through the dedication of these persons and the willingness of their institutions to support their work, the SOCIETY is able to carry on an energetic program. The Program Committee and these chairpersons invite suggestions for improving the quality of the Annual Meeting. Before one Annual Meeting is completed the planning for the next one must take place. There is little time to catch a breath! Therefore, we thank you for your contributions to our major task of stimulating the research and publications of the entire membership.

Conversations with Claude-Henri Rocquet

The result is an intimate profile of an extraordinary man and his work.

IMAGINING RELIGION

From Babylon to Jonestown
Jonathan Z. Smith

In these wide-ranging and engaging essays, Jonathan Z. Smith shows that religion must be construed as conventional, anthropological, historical, and as an exercise of imagination. By treating religion seriously yet as a subject without privilege, Smith is able to offer a novel description of canon and ritual and to transform scientific strategies of definition and classification into effective tools for the analysis of religion. Moreover, he offers this theory of religion in writing that is clear and accessible not only to teachers and students but to the general public as well.

JUDAISM

The Evidence of the Mishnah
Jacob Neusner

SAINTS AND SOCIETY

The Two Worlds of Western Christendom, 1000-1700

Donald Weinstein and Rudolph M. Bell

The theme of this book is the two worlds of sainthood, the dual realms of flesh and spirit between which saints and their venerated moved and interacted. Its subjects are the men, women, and children who, between the eleventh and seventeenth centuries, sought perfection, came to be venerated as holy, and received recognition among Roman Catholics as saints. From conventional and hagiographic biographies, the authors have gleaned information about religious attitudes and their social contexts.

Cloth $22.50 (est.) 304 pages (est.) Illus.

THE OLD PROTESTANTISM AND THE NEW

Essays on the Reformation Heritage

B. A. Gerrish

This work redresses a present imbalance in historical studies of Protestantism by raising questions about the intellectual heritage of the Reformers in the modern world. Gerrish's approach is shaped by three dominant interests: Luther's relation to other Reformers; the relationship between classical and liberal Protestant thought; and the patterns of religious experience behind theological formulas.

HUMAN RIGHTS

Essays on Justification and Application

Alan Gewirth

In the fifteen essays collected here, Gewirth provides a detailed elaboration of a justificatory argument that establishes, on the basis of a rationally grounded moral principle, that there are indeed human rights. He then works out the applications of this principle to some of the most important issues of human life, including the relief of starvation and the democratic effectiveness of civil liberties.

THE CHICAGO MANUAL OF STYLE

Thirteenth Edition, Revised and Expanded

Prepared by the Editorial Staff

of the University of Chicago Press

Two pervasive features characterize the present edition: it reflects the impact of the new technology on the entire editing and publishing process, and it spells out procedures in greater detail and with many more examples. As did its predecessors, the thirteenth edition of the Manual states the style preferences of the University of Chicago Press and reflects the current practices and requirements of the great majority of American publishers.

THE CULT OF THE SAINTS

Its Rise and Function in Latin Christianity

Peter Brown

"Brilliantly original and highly sophisticated. . . . [The Cult of the Saints] is based on great learning in several disciplines, and the story is told with an exceptional appreciation for the broad social context. Students of many aspects of medieval culture, especially popular religion, will want to consult this work." —Library Journal

WOMEN, ANDROGYNES, AND OTHER MYTHICAL BEASTS

Wendy Doniger O'Flaherty

O'Flaherty discusses the sexual metaphors and animal symbols used in Indian mythology to express religious concepts about the "flow of powers" between male and female, mortal and immortal, human, animal, and divinity. REI

THE HISTORICAL APPROACH TO THE BIBLE

Howard M. Teeple

A new quality paperback original (5" x 7"), published 1982 by the Religion and Ethics Institute, Inc. 334 pp. Recommended as a textbook and for general reading. $7.50, postpaid

Presents a comprehensive, yet concise, survey of both the history and the methods of the historical approach, the only reliable way to understand the Bible. Concludes with a summary of the value of the approach and an appeal for fuller use of it to raise the intellectual standards in religion. Written for laymen and students, full of factual information, yet readable in style.

"A full and frank account of the way this method developed---narrated as interestingly for the beginner as for the scholar---demonstrates clearly how to use the method in Bible study---I have made it a required text in my introductory courses." --EDMUND F. PERRY, Northwestern University

"In lucid English Teeple explains the historical method of studying the Bible employed by experts in the major universities and seminaries throughout the world. It is significant that recently J. Barr, R. Brown, and now Teeple have felt compelled to argue against the threat to Jews, Christians, and our culture itself from the dangers in unenlightened fundamentalism. Teeple's own book is well researched, engagingly written, and timely." --JAMES H. CHARLESWORTH, Duke University

Examination copies: Free if selected as a textbook; otherwise should be returned or purchased.

FORTHCOMING:

THE CULTS OF ASKLEPIOS

David E. Aune

An excellent addition to REI's publication of slide lectures. An 8-p. printed lecture with 24 archaeological slides, incl. title, 35 mm., in color, $25 postpaid. Based on careful research, it will be useful in teaching the history of religion and the environment of early Christianity. Presents the myths and cults of Asklepios, and provides significant insight into the nature and popularity of this Greek god of healing.

FORTHCOMING, SPRING 1983: New slide-lecture series, "Judaism: 200 B.C. to A.D. 200," a joint project of REI and the International Center on Christian Origins at Duke University.

Baptism, Eucharist and Ministry

This statement marks a major advance in the ecumenical journey. The result of a 50 year process of study and consultation, the text represents the theological convergence that has been achieved. Most observers have agreed that it is unprecedented in the modern ecumenical movement for theologians of such varied church traditions — Eastern Orthodox, Oriental Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Old Catholic, Lutheran, Anglican, Reformed,

Methodist, United, Disciples, Baptist, Adventist and Pentecostal — to speak so harmoniously on fundamental questions of doctrine. US$3.50

The Victorian "Lives" of Jesus

by Daniel L. Pals

A provocative and perceptive study that draws a neglected literature out of the shadows and into its own native light.

The study of Jesus by critical historians dates chiefly from the scholarly investigations of the nineteenth century. Many recall the contributions of the German scholars to this inquiry, yet few remember that during these years Britain also developed a keen interest in the historical life of Jesus. Those who led the Victorian quest — virtually unknown today — wrote books whose profile blended traditional piety, antiquarian romance, publishers' needs, popular appeal, and scholarly reserve. Britain's "Lives" offer an unexpected insight into the Victorian mind and explain why religious learning in the Isles traveled a different path from that on the continent. Trinity University Monograph Series in Religion VII, $20.00.

"(This book) investigates a virtually unexplored area and is a valuable contribution to the history of Victorian England, as well as to the history of modern New Testament scholarship and historical Christology." Carl R. Holladay, Emory University

APOSTLE TO THE NATIONS
THE LIFE AND LETTERS OF ST. PAUL

by Rev. Thomas W. Buckley, STD, SSL

Father Buckley's vast erudition in the field of Sacred Scripture is evident in this study.

The historical background of the Letters as well as reference to the cultural milieu—Greek, Roman and Jewish—are shown as vital for understanding the heart of Paul's message. Major Pauline themes such as the justification of sinful man, the second coming, the theology of the cross, and the supremacy of Christ are discussed and explored.

A scholarly work, yet written in a style that can be absorbed by the general reader. The glossary and discussion questions at the end of each chapter make it possible for the book to also be used as a college text.

SBL-Claremont Fellowship Lectures

The SOCIETY takes this opportunity to thank the School of Theology at Claremont, The Institute for Antiquity and Christianity, The Claremont Graduate School, and James M. Robinson for their generous support of this fellowship program. The program has been in existence since 1975 and has supported partially the work of the following fellows:

William A. Beardslee
George Wesley Buchanan
Antony Campbell
Charles Carlston
James L. Crenshaw
Robert W. Funk
Burke O. Long
Merrill Miller
Vernon K. Robbins
Jack T. Sanders
John H. Sieber
Robert C. Tannehill
David L. Tiede
Bastiaan Van Elderen

The combination of financial, administrative and scholarly resources coordinated between the SOCIETY and the three Claremont institutions give an indication of the potential when learned society and academy work together. While this program draws to a conclusion with the 1982 Fellowship recipients, it is anticipated that future ventures between the SOCIETY and universities throughout North America might be established. The trials and rewards of the Claremont institutions in this venture can serve as a summons to others to support the ever-increasing needs for funding scholarly research. The SOCIETY was founded on the hope that it might draw together all those interested in supporting the critical investigation of the literature and artifacts of the ancient Near Eastern and Mediterranean regions. We thank all those within the SOCIETY and the Claremont faculties for their vision in this important project.

Executive Secretary

Worldviews: Crosscultural Explorations of Human Beliefs

Ninian Smart

"an excellent, readable, engaging . . . introduction to the field of religious studies . . . The treatment breaks new ground in a number of ways on the subject of worldview analysis . . ."

William Jay Peck, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

In this new introduction to the modern study of religion, Ninian Smart argues against the growing tendency to separate the religious and secular and presents a crosscultural study of traditional religions and secular ideologies. He examines the major worldviews — Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism, and Marxism — as well as those which are less widely dispersed such as existentialism and Zen. Throughout, Smart encourages exploring human belief systems in order to foster greater understanding among peoples in today's "global society."

The Religion of Protestants

The Church in English Society 1559-1625

PATRICK COLLINSON, University of Kent, Canterbury. This book is a series of studies of the constituent elements of post-Reformation ecclesiastical and religious life: churchgoers, magistrates, clergy, bishops, the crown. Professor Collinson focuses on the integrity of the church and investigates the conservative rather than "radical" role performed in society by Protestant religion and its concomitant moral values.

BRIAN MARTIN, Pembroke College, Oxford. The author assesses Newman's achievements and sets his works—such as his autobiography Apologia pro Vita Sua, his essay The Idea of a University, his novel Loss and Gain, and his hymns—in the context of his life.

A Land of Two Peoples

Martin Buber on Jews and Arabs

Edited with commentary by PAUL R. MENDES-FLOHR, Hebrew University, Jerusalem. In this volume, Paul Mendes-Flohr selects the speeches, letters, articles and reviews that best reflect Buber's thoughts on Zionism from the Balfour Declaration of 1917 to his death in 1965. To Buber, the problems posed by the clash of Jew and Arab implicit in the creation of Israel were not merely political; they had ramifications in the realm of religious morality as well. Ultimately, Buber emerges as a thinker profoundly concerned for the welfare of both peoples.

Zionism

The Formative Years

DAVID VITAL, Tel-Aviv University. In this sequel to his widely acclaimed book The Origins of Zionism (1975), Professor Vital traces and explains the emergence in the early 20th century of the Zionist movement—through which the Jews were to a large extent reformed as a political people. The history of Zionism in these years was not only decisive for its subsequent evolution, but may be seen, in many ways, as the epitome of the history of the Jewish people in the modern period generally.

BRYAN WILSON, University of Oxford. In these essays, Wilson uses comparative sociological analysis to discuss religion's role in a secular society now dominated by technology. Divine Revelation and the Limits of Historical Criticism

WILLIAM J. ABRAHAM, Seattle Pacific University.

The Miracle of Theism

Arguments for and against the Existence of God

J.L. MACKIE, University of Oxford. This book presents the main arguments for and against the existence of God, analyzing in detail the traditional ontological, cosmological, and design arguments, the arguments from consciousness and from morality, and on the opposite side, the problem of evil. The book examines the varied approaches to theism of Hume, Plantinga, Swinburne, Pascal, William James, Kierkegaard, Wittgenstein, and Leslie among others.

Daily Prayer in the Early Church

PAUL W. BRADSHAW. This study of the origin and early history of the daily office—from its Jewish background to the divine office of St. Benedict—covers the first six centuries. Beginning with daily prayer in first century Judaism and first century Christianity, the book traces the evolution of the cathedral and monastic offices as they developed in the Greek-speaking East and the Latin-speaking West.

Theology, Science, and Einstein

IAIN PAUL, The Center for Theological Inquiry, Princeton. The significance of Einstein's epistemology for theological knowing is the concern of this book. THE TAO AND THE DAIMON

SEGMENTS OF A RELIGIOUS INQUIRY

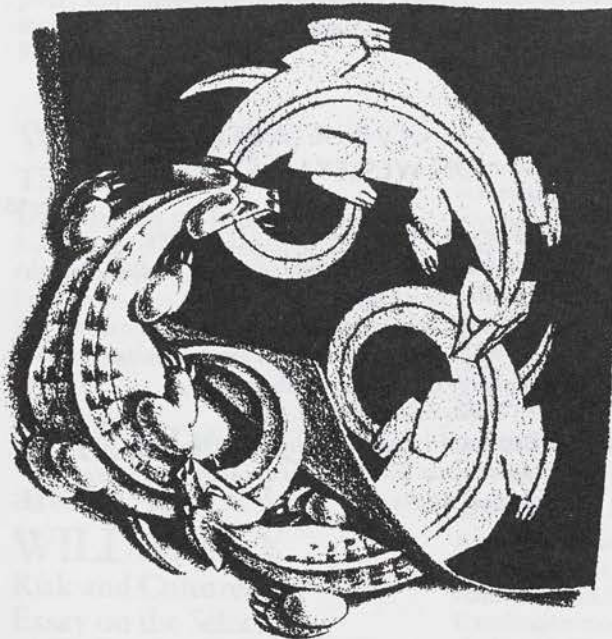

Robert C. Neville. Examines a central theme in religious studies: the question of the authority and authenticity of traditional religious faith and practice (tao) in light of the challenge from the spirit of critical reason (Socrates' daimon).

"Neville's most mature work, covering 20 years of deliberations on philosophical theology....should stamp the author as one of the leaders in the field of comparative theology."—Kenneth K. Inada

"His sketch of a tao which would enable the religious scholar to penetrate non-Western religious insights in a meaningful way without having to become a devotee of the religion in question is brilliant."—Elizabeth M. Kraus • 300 pp. (tent.) • $10.95 paper/$34.50 cloth

THE CHRISTOLOGY OF HEGEL

James Yerkes. "THE CHRISTOLOGY OF HEGEL by James Yerkes can take its place among the finest studies in Hegel's philosophy of religion in any language. The price of admission to Hegel scholarship of this quality runs high, and Yerkes has paid it. He has mastered all the relevant texts in Hegel's corpus, moving among them with easy familiarity. He has read widely in the best of the secondary literature; the organization of his study shows magisterial command, and he turns his scholarship to the service of well-formulated contemporary issues."—The Journal of Religion • SUNY Series in Hegelian Studies • 256 pp. (tent.) • $12.95 paper/$39.50 cloth

BUDDHIST FAITH AND SUDDEN ENLIGHTENMENT

PROCESS METAPHYSICS AND HUA-YEN BUDDHISM

A CRITICAL STUDY OF CUMULATIVE PENETRATION VS. INTERPENETRATION

THE QUEST FOR WHOLENESS

Carl G. Vaught. A philosophic odyssey into humankind's feelings of fragmentation and the search for unity born of those feelings. OUTSTANDING INTRODUCTORY TEXTS THAT HELP STUDENTS UNDERSTAND THE COMPLEXITY OF RELIGIOUS TRADITIONS . . .

FROM WADSWORTH!

Ways to the Center: An Introduction to World Religions—Denise Lardner Carmody (Ph.D., Boston College) and John Tully Carmody (Ph.D., Stanford University), both Wichita State University. Hardbound/January 1981

"A marvelous humanistic introduction, boldly and beautifully written, facilitating meaningful comparison of religions." (Robert L. Cohn, Northwestern University) The full range of religious traditions — from ancient times to the present — is explored and made understandable to introductory-level students through a unique and consistent structured approach that examines each belief on the basis of historical knowledge, phenomena of spiritual life, and personal implications.

AND NOW!

NEW FROM WADSWORTH . . . added content in two new paperback versions of the Carmody's WAYS TO THE CENTER makes them suitable for use in specialized courses, as well as in comparative religion and Introduction to Religion courses. These paperbound editions provide new and accessible teaching and learning resources with their extensive scholarly research and abundant pedagogical aids.

WESTERN WAYS TO THE CENTER: AN INTRODUCTION TO RELIGIONS OF THE WEST—Denise L. Carmody and John T. Carmody. Paperbound/December 1982

EASTERN WAYS TO THE CENTER: AN INTRODUCTION TO ASIAN RELIGIONS—Denise L. Carmody and John T. Carmody. Paperbound/December 1982

Additional content in this new edition includes coverage of contemporary Hinduism and Buddhism — along with their histories and traditions — and religion in China and Japan.

Exploring Religion—Roger Schmidt (M.A., Claremont Graduate School), San Bernardino Valley College. Hardbound/August 1980

A topical introduction to the dimensions of religious expression common to all religious traditions. Examination of the conceptual, ritual, personal, and social aspects of religious experience — often illustrated with examples drawn from the fields of philosophy and literature — makes this an ". . . exceptionally effective text in analyzing the nature of religion . . . [that] offers a holistic interpretation of religion as an integral part of the human condition." (John Hare, Lander College)

America: Religions and Religion—Catherine L. Albanese (Ph.D., University of Chicago), Wright State University. Paperbound/February 1981

What is religious about American religion and what is American about it? Through the history-of-religions approach — augmented by the insights of anthropology of religion, history, and sociology — this text provides a new interpretive model of pluralism, as it ". . . combines historical, descriptive, and analytical approaches to American religions and religious phenomena in a way never competently done before." Boundaries in Mind: A Study of Immediate Awareness Based on Psychotherapy

Charles E. Scott

This seminal study gives an account of immediate states of mind which shows, without giving primacy to subjectivity, the significance of fantasies and images for an understanding of mentality and human well-being. It is a philosophical journey and it is also a journey toward deepened self-awareness.

"A work of original thought . . . [Scott] will take his place as one of the foremost three or four philosophers who write in the Continental tradition. . . . I cannot think of a recent book whose scope is so extensive—cutting across philosophy, psychology, history, and religion—while its substance is so remarkably deep."

A theoretical discussion of culture focuses this study upon three themes that are expressive of cultural structures in general and the American dream in particular: religion, individualism, and the land. The book approaches these themes through nineteenth- and twentieth-century American fiction with the tensile flexibility of metaphor serving as an analytical model.

Divine Man or Magician? Celsus and Origen on Jesus

Eugene V. Gallagher

This study takes the argument about Jesus in Celsus and Origen as a key to their polemical interests. Similar arguments about candidates for divine status are identified and analyzed in works by Lucian, Philostratus, and Eusebius.

The History of the Rechabites, Volume I: The Greek Recension

James H. Charlesworth

The History of the Rechabites in its present form is a Christian apocryphal account of the abode of the Blessed Ones, the Rechabites, who disappeared from history after Jeremiah's time (Jer 35). In the description of their life the authors adapted earlier Greek, Roman, and Jewish traditions. The present form dates from about the sixth century, but there are signs that the middle chapters may conceivably be a redacted portion of a lost Jewish apocryphon.

The Theological Methodology of Hans Küng

Catherine LaCugna

The book is an elucidation of the theological method of Hans Küng, describing Küng's theological hermeneutic and the relationship between the theological sources, Scripture and Tradition. A "test-case," papal infallibility, is included to show concretely how Küng's method works. The controversiality of his method, which prompted condemnation by several ecclesial bodies, is shown to be accounted for by his unique view of Tradition.

Apocalypse and Science Fiction: A Dialectic of Religious and Secular Soteriologies

Frederick Kreuziger

This book analyzes apocalyptic writings and science fiction in such a way that they illuminate each other as two ways of dealing with imminent expectation. When interpreted as a form of apocalyptic, science fiction can be seen as the fashioning of a new mythology for a new age. When understood in the light of the genre of science fiction, apocalyptic can be viewed as a popular literature of expectation and practical response.

Loaves and Fishes: The Function of the Feeding Stories in the Gospel of Mark

Robert M. Fowler

This study begins with a redaction critical attempt to distinguish between tradition and redaction in the Markan feeding stories (Mark 6:30-44; 8:1-10). After concluding that the Feeding of the Five Thousand is entirely a Markan composition modeled after the other feeding story, which is pre-Markan, the author adopts a broader literary perspective from which to assess the significance and function of the doublet of the feeding stories created by the evangelist himself.

Faith Establishes the Law

C. Thomas Rhyne

Probes the meaning of Paul's assertion that faith upholds the law (Rom. 3:31) in relation to its context, Rom. 3:21-4:25, and in relation to the much-disputed text, Rom. 10:4. Its conclusions are twofold: as a witness to righteousness by faith the law has continuing validity in the church (Rom. 3:31); and Paul's statement that Christ is the goal, not end, of the law (Rom. 10:4) represents the apex of Paul's view of the continuity between Judaism and Christianity.

Love Relationships in the Johannine Tradition: Agapē/Agapan in 1 John and the Fourth Gospel

Fernando F. Segovia

An attempt to test two recent and increasingly accepted lines of interpretation within Johannine scholarship: first, the belief that the author of 1 John edited an earlier version of the Fourth Gospel, and second, the view that the Johannine community was a highly sectarian group. Both lines of interpretation are tested in terms of a redaction-critical study of the terms agapē and agapan ("love" and "to love") in the Johannine literature.

The Biblical Mosaic

Robert Polzin, Eugene Rothman, Editors

Biblical studies have emphasized historical modes of interpretation for well over a century, and literary criticism is becoming increasingly important for biblical studies. What would happen if two modern interpreters of the Hebrew Bible—the historian and the literary critic—were to view their understanding of specific biblical texts in the light of that traditional exegesis developed by the learned rabbis of ancient times? This interesting question and the unexpected dimensions of an answer provide the general perspective for the present volume.

The Bible in American Education

David Barr, Nicholas Piediscalzi, Editors

The eight essays in this book provide perspective on the present interaction of the Bible and American education by examining specific educational and historical settings from the Colonial period to the present. The dialectical relation of the Bible and American educational institutions is clearly revealed. These essays show how the Bible gave shape to educational institutions and how, in turn, historical, cultural, and educational styles influenced the ways in which the Bible has been studied and interpreted.

A readable and informative handbook on biblical exegesis for beginning students has been a recognized need for many years. Now the authors of this volume have provided such a tool. Designed to assist students in doing exegesis of both the Old and New Testaments, this guide discusses both exegetical theory and practice. The various techniques of biblical criticism are introduced and discussed with a minimum of technical terms, yet the student is given a solid acquaintance with the well-established methods of biblical exegesis. Useful bibliography is provided throughout the book to aid the student in further reading and study. Especially useful for general introductory courses for both the Old and New Testaments, as well as for exegesis courses in individual biblical books, courses on biblical topics, and courses in homiletics and preaching.

John H. Hayes, Professor of Old Testament, Candler School of Theology, Emory University, is author of numerous works on the Bible and is the current editor of the Journal of Biblical Literature.

Carl R. Holladay, Associate Professor of New Testament, Candler School of Theology, Emory University, is the author of various studies on the Bible.
