This new series will become a part of the Society's effort to examine retrospectively and prospectively the status of the discipline. In succeeding annual meetings this series will introduce through diverse formats an investigation of the issues before biblical studies.

We are privileged in this inaugural year of the series to have two lecturers. Professor Bovon will focus attention on the role of the Apocryphal Acts in the study of the canonical gospels. Professor Crossan will identify, through an examination of the Gospel of Peter and the canonical gospels, the earliest narrative of the Passion and Resurrection.

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF RELIGION

The primary purpose of the American Academy of Religion is to foster and support the understanding of religion through its academic study. This purpose is manifested in the variety of forums of which the academic study of religion is an integral ingredient: education, scholarship, communications, society and culture.

The Academy's membership spans the spectrum of religious studies. Their interests, whether specialized, general or cross-disciplinary, are reflected in the program units which comprise seminars, groups, consultations and sections as well as special events including media and distinguished speakers. Further opportunities for scholarly exchange are extended through the programs of affiliate societies offered in conjunction with the Annual Meeting of the AAR/SBL.

In addition to the Annual Meeting, the AAR has been most visible to its members and the larger public through its publication program. The quarterly Journal of the American Academy of Religion provides the most comprehensive scholarly and programmatic work in the field. AAR book publications, over 100 in just ten years, make available critical thought and research within the field.

The Academy holds a seat on the American Council of Learned Societies and is a member of the National Humanities Alliance. It works co-operatively with the Society of Biblical Literature in sponsoring Scholars Press, the Annual Meeting, several regional meetings, the Placement Assistance Service, OPENINGS, Job Opportunities for Scholars of Religion, and Religious Studies News.

In the realm of public policy, the prominence of religion claims attention by the Academy programmatically and professionally. It represents and articulates the distinction between particular religious convictions and sectarian interests on one hand and the judgments of critical thinkers and scholars whose subject matter is the professional study and critical understanding of all religious phenomena on the other.

In 1986 the American Academy of Religion is inaugurating two new projects. Recipients of the AAR Awards for Excellence in Book Publications will be honored at Annual Meetings. Beginning with the 1986-87 academic year, a number of Research Assistance Grants will be made to scholars in the field.

The American Academy of Religion welcomes suggestions by its members for ways to improve and strengthen its services and its support for the field as a whole.

Executive Associate

The working of the Academy as a learned society and professional association requires the commitment and attention of a group of persons who give of their energy and time in ways that are least obvious to an observer precisely when they are most successfully executed. The AAR is fortunate in the quality and abilities of its full-time administrative staff.

Julia Ferri produces the professional-quality reports, agendas, memoranda and a variety of other documents that improve communications within the Academy. She also maintains the program database and extensive files related to widespread Academy activity.

Janet Goss is the hub of the Academy's communication center and is our liaison with staff at Scholars Press, the Society of Biblical Literature and the AAR's members, vendors, and guests as well as the public at large. Her wide-ranging duties include maintaining financial records, assembling program copy, arranging numerous meetings during the year, and assisting in the preparation of reports and correspondence.

In just over a year, Barbara Yoshioka has assumed many responsibilities and provides several services to the Academy. She is actively engaged in funding efforts on behalf of many of the projects recently begun. She is liaison with regional officers and has attended several regional meetings. Her wit, intelligence and energy have significantly enhanced the contribution of the staff to the general workings of the AAR, especially through the committees and the Board of Directors, but no less with many representatives of our various publics from ACLS, NEH, sundry foundations and many different vendors of goods and services.

The efficiency and effectiveness of these three talented and dedicated people is impressive when they are considered one by one. Even more impressive is the cohesiveness and creativity they have achieved as a team. The sum of the whole is truly greater than the number of individuals. Some learned society somewhere might be better served by its staff than is the AAR, but it seems unlikely. Thanks to all.

The Executive Office staff works extensively with Scholars Press personnel and AAR/SBL staff at the Press in areas of annual meeting management, publications, membership and subscription services, the Placement Assistance Service, and accounting and bookkeeping services. We express our appreciation to Dr. C. Conrad Cherry, Director of Scholars Press, and his staff for contributing to the high level of cooperation between our two organizations.

The American Academy of Religion can hope to implement its vision—that its undertakings in any arena will be of the highest order and quality—only because of dedicated, voluntary leadership. The strength of the Academy resides in its members who commit time, energy, imagination and work in the many capacities that comprise the wide-ranging activity of the Academy: officers, editors, authors, independent scholars, committee chairs and members, program unit chairs and participants, institutions that support individual scholars and Academy functions, and colleagues and friends inside and outside the field. To you, we express our deep appreciation.

ACADEMY OFFICERS

The Academy expresses its thanks to all of its members who serve in national and regional positions. Without the voluntary time and energy expended by these persons there would be no annual meeting program, no regional programs, nor publications. The Academy's vitality and energy in setting and executing its agenda will depend in the future even more on the commitment of those who exercise leadership.

New Program Unit Proposals for the American Academy of Religion

The AAR accepts program unit proposals from any of its members. The proposals are evaluated by the Program Committee and approved or rejected by that body. In response to many requests for guidance in preparing proposals received in the national office, the statement below was formulated. The deadline for receipt of materials to be considered for 1987 will be December 2, 1986. Any proposal received after that time will be returned and considered at a future time, if resubmitted. Please send proposals in the form and number requested.

So You Want to Establish a New Program Unit for the AAR?

These are four authorized types of program units: sections, groups, seminars and consultations. Each exists for specific purposes and differs from the other three.

SECTIONS: These units are the most inclusive type of program unit. They are aimed at reflecting the major, continuing areas of academic interest of the members of the Academy. They address the continuing agenda imposed by the various sub-fields in the field of the study of religion. These units carry the greatest presumption of programmatic continuation, once they are established. Because these are allotted the most sessions and time at an annual meeting and because the arrangements and responsibilities are the most inclusive, leadership in a section requires a very great commitment. The Program Committee screens all petitions to establish new sections with great care, and it rigorously reviews each section as it approaches the conclusion of its term.

GROUPS: These units are established to encourage the exploration of an emergent area of study or methodology, to cultivate the relation between the study of religion and a cognate discipline, or to pursue a long range and broad research project. More focused than SECTIONS and less restricted in participation than SEMINARS, GROUPS are expected to maintain some communication with their members between annual meetings and to experiment with the format of sessions at the Annual Meeting. A chief characteristic of a meeting of a GROUP shall be that it is a working session and that it shall be obviously connected with preceding and subsequent sessions through the foci of such sessions.

SEMINARS: These units are established to permit a limited number of participants to engage in very well defined research topics or projects. They are expected to eventuate in publication(s). They have a strictly limited duration (never more than five years) and are strictly limited initially to no more than twenty (20) participants who agree to continue actively the work of the seminar between Annual Meetings through correspondence, exchange of papers, bibliographies, etc. The session at the Annual Meeting allocated to a seminar shall be devoted to consideration of previously distributed papers and no new papers will be presented at this session.

CONSULTATIONS: These units are decidedly exploratory opportunities to test the degree and breadth of interest in the membership of the Academy in areas and topics of academic interest not then included in the concerns of existing SECTIONS, GROUPS or SEMINARS. This is the most frequently utilized initial form of a program unit en route to establishing a longer-term unit. The session at an Annual Meeting allocated to a CONSULTATION is open to all interested registrants at an Annual Meeting. Renewable for a second year upon the recommendation of the chairperson of the CONSULTATION, with the concurrence of the Chairperson of the Program Committee, the experience of a CONSULTATION may be the basis for subsequently authorizing a SECTION, a GROUP or a SEMINAR. Rarely will the Program Committee authorize the establishment of one of the other types of units without the evidence provided by two successful years of the work of a CONSULTATION.

With these distinctions in mind, anyone petitioning to establish a new program unit must submit the following information to the office of the Executive Director of the AAR well in advance of the regular meeting of the Program Committee, which usually occurs within two weeks after the preceding annual meeting.

1. Type and name of proposed unit;
2. Projection of the themes or topics which would be included in the first year of the unit's existence;
3. If a SEMINAR is proposed, a projection of the publication aspirations of the unit and a schedule of such publication plans;
4. If a GROUP or SEMINAR, a list of the names of members who are committed to participation therein;
5. A rationale statement which argues for the importance of the subject to be addressed by the unit;
6. The names of an appropriate number of persons who are willing to accept leadership responsibilities for the unit as members of its steering committee. It is assumed that, except in rare circumstances, the person(s) submitting the petition are thereby indicating a willingness to be designated as the Chairperson of the new unit.
7. Twelve (12) copies of these materials must be submitted.

SOCIETY OF BIBLICAL LITERATURE

The object of the SOCIETY is to stimulate the critical investigation of the classical biblical literatures, together with other related literatures by the exchange of scholarly research both in published form and in public forum. The SOCIETY endeavors to support those disciplines and subdisciplines pertinent to the illumination of the literatures and religions of the ancient Near Eastern and Mediterranean regions, such as the study of ancient languages, textual criticism, history, and archaeology.

The publications of the SOCIETY include works for the specialist and non-specialist. The numerous series published through Scholars Press provide opportunities for all scholars to share their research. The Dissertation Series opens for the younger scholar the possibility of placing before colleagues a beginning publication. Works such as the Harper's Bible Dictionary have signaled the importance of communication with the non-specialist. The Journal of Biblical Literature and Semeia represent significant forums for journalistic communication.

The SOCIETY works cooperatively with related organizations. The continuing cooperation with the American Academy of Religion has enabled both organizations to provide better services to all persons within the academic study of religion. Our mutual work with job opportunities through placement at the Annual Meeting and Openings; the joint distribution of Religious Studies News, and the Annual Meeting itself represent visible signs of the numerous connections we continue to foster. We are affiliated with other organizations, such as the American Schools of Oriental Research (ASOR), National Association of Professors of Hebrew (NAPH), International Organization of Septuagint and Cognate Studies (IOSCS), and the International Organization of Masoretic Studies (IOMS). A variety of cooperative activities both at regional and international levels help us better understand the breadth of our responsibilities. Our association with the American Council of Learned Societies (ACLS) extends our participation to neighboring humanities disciplines.

The addresses for the SOCIETY are:

Executive Secretary

Iliff School of Theology
2201 South University Blvd.

Carol Jean Johnson

APPRECIATION

Our words of thanks are always numerous. Without the leadership of officers, editors, committee members and program unit chairs, regional officers and many others the SOCIETY would falter. Several special words of appreciation must be extended even at the risk of leaving out many individuals and institutions.

First, J. Dominic Crossan concludes his term as the editor of Semeia. His leadership has furthered the importance of this journal. We are in his debt for the creative energy he has devoted to this task.

Second, a thanks, which is partially a congratulations, to Conrad Cherry and the staff of Scholars Press. May the new headquarters serve all of us for years to come.

Third, our new Assistant Executive Secretary, Carol Jean Johnson deserves a thank you for having so effectively brought her talents to our organization.

Fourth, the continuing administrative assistance of Sandra Smith in Denver provides for the SOCIETY a presence for which any level of thanks is too small.

Fifth, the long standing support of the Iliff School of Theology for the SOCIETY offices must not go unnoticed. We thank the administration, trustees and all associated with Iliff for the contribution to our success.

Finally, we thank each of you, and if in an institutional setting we extend appreciation for your institution's support of your work.

New Program Units Society of Biblical Literature

Annual Meeting program proposals must be submitted to the Program Committee at least twelve months prior to the first meeting of a program unit. The committee strongly urges the submission of a proposal by 15 September of the year preceding the first meeting. Send all proposals to:

Kent Harold Richards
Society of Biblical Literature
2201 South University Blvd.
Denver, Colorado 80210

Definitions of Program Units

Sections are established to reflect the major continuing areas of academic interests. Format may vary. Papers may be volunteered or invited. Attendance at session meetings is open to any member. Normally these are authorized for a six-year term and a chairperson is appointed for a three-year term.

Groups are established to explore an emergent area of study/methodology, to cultivate a related discipline, or to pursue a long-range research project. These are more narrowly focused than Sections. Innovative formats for sessions are encouraged. Attendance at working sessions is primarily for active Group participants. Observers may attend sessions on a space available basis. Normally these are authorized for a five-year term and a chairperson for a coinciding term.

Seminars are established around well-defined research topics/projects and with specific publication plans. Papers are normally discussed and not read at working sessions. Normally these are authorized for a five-year term and a chairperson for a coinciding term.

Consultations are established to explore program interests not covered in other program units. Format may vary. Attendance is open to any member. Normally these are authorized for a two-year term and a chairperson for a coinciding term.

Many invited proposals start as consultations although this is not a requirement.

Program Proposals

These should include the following:

1. Type of program unit and proposed name.
2. Definition of the program unit, along with tentative program projections; reasons for such a unit (when appropriate careful differentiation from existing program units); and specific plans for the initial year.
3. Names, addresses, and phone numbers of a steering committee consisting of approximately three SBL members.
4. Commitment of a proposed chairperson who will serve as the liaison with the Program Committee; coordinate the unit's annual program; and keep appropriate records.

The Program Committee approves/rejects all proposals, which will be reviewed on a timely basis.

Films:

Sitala in Spring: The Goddess of Illness and Death in Bengal, Aditi Nath Sarkar, 1986

Serpent Mother, from "Pleasing God" Series

Loving Krishna, Allen Moore and Akos Oster, 1985

All three of these films were shot in Bengal. The first two depict rites of worship to popular goddesses—in the first instance to Sitala, the "Cooling" Goddess of fever and smallpox, and in the second instance to Manasadevi, addressed locally as "Manusha," the Serpent Goddess who can both heal and smite. Rites addressed to these deities have never before been documented in such detail. The availability of films depicting this matter makes possible the inclusion in classroom instruction of entire ranges of Hindu religious life hitherto inaccessible to students.

The third film reveals something of the vigor of the Chaitanya movement today in Bengal, and of the way one of the Gosvamin families in the town of Vishnupur honors Krishna as Supreme God. In the course of the film two festive celebrations are described: the commemoration of Krishna's birth and an eight-day chariot procession.

The Fourth Stage, Everyman Films/BBC, 1985
The Golden Avatar (Chaitanya)

Women's roles and expectations are changing rapidly in contemporary India. This is reflected in changing attitudes toward marriage. The first film documents, by means of on-camera interviews, two different kinds of marriage alliances found today among urban Hindu women—the "arranged" marriage, as in the case of Vinuta, a secretary, and the "love match," as in the case of Geetha, a young physician. Modern Brides is sure to elicit classroom discussion among students to whom it is shown.

The second film explores the traditional norm of the sannyasa, or fourth, "stage of life." It deftly reveals the pull the ideal of renunciation has for E.R. Sethuram of Bangalore, who at the age of 64 decides to leave his family to seek for "truth." In the end he decides not to leave his loved ones—but it is not an easy decision.

The third film is a docu-drama produced by ISKCON to honor the Bengal Vaishnava saint, Chaitanya, as part of the 500th anniversary of his birth in 1586. Scenes include re-enactments of the saint's activities, live footage of the shrines established at places where he lived and preached, as well as paintings, sculptures and bas-reliefs celebrating Chaitanya's career.

AAR AWARDS FOR EXCELLENCE IN THE STUDY OF RELIGION

In order to acknowledge significant contributions to the study of religion, the American Academy of Religion is offering Awards for Excellence in scholarly achievement. These awards will recognize works of distinctive originality, intelligence, creativity, and importance that decisively affect the way religion is perceived, examined, understood, and interpreted.

Awards will be granted in three categories:

The Constructive-Reflective study of religion: works of contemporary theology, ethics, philosophy, interpretation, religious reflection, etc.

The Historical study of religion: works that focus on the study of the history of a particular religion or on the study of religion(s) in particular periods of the past.

The Analytical-Descriptive study of religion: works that concentrate on the description and analysis of religious phenomena in general or on the theoretical components of religion, such as myth, ritual, text, tradition, etc.

Nominations may be submitted by any person or group with the exception of the Coordinator and the members of the three juries. Submissions should be made to the Coordinator, who will direct the nominations to the appropriate jury.

Nominations need only state the name of the author, the work, and the publisher. They need not contain a statement of reasons for the nomination, although they may do so if the nominator wishes to include such reasons. Each nomination should be accompanied by a copy of the work to be judged.

Publishers will be asked by the Coordinator to send a copy of the work to each of the three members of the jury.

Both authors and publishers will be informed of the nomination of the work and should agree to its being considered for the award. The task of so informing them and getting the agreement will be that of the Coordinator.

Since nominations are taken from any source and are not screened, the announcement of winners of the competition will not include mention of other nominees.

The award year will begin on June 1 and end on May 31 of the subsequent year. To be eligible for consideration, a work must have been copyrighted no earlier than three years prior to January 1 of the award year. The decisions of the juries will be announced at the Academy's annual meeting.

Send nominations and requests for information to:

Creativity in of

A major contribution to biblical studies—the LIBRARY OF EARLY CHRISTIANITY

Wayne A. Meeks, General Editor, Woolsey Professor of Biblical Studies and Fellow of Calhoun College, Yale University

This series of eight books explores the Jewish and Greco-Roman contexts in which the New Testament developed. Outstanding authors consider the early Christians—how they believed, thought, and acted. In an accessible way, the Library of Early Christianity “brings refreshing critical perspectives to the question of early Christian identity.”—Library Journal
Each volume, hardbound, approximately 200 pages.

The first six volumes:

Volume 1, GODS AND THE ONE GOD

by Robert M. Grant, Professor of New Testament and Early Christianity, University of Chicago

A comparison of the development of Christian ideas about God and Jesus with religious concepts prevalent in the Greco-Roman world.

$18.95

Volume 2, THE NEW TESTAMENT IN ITS SOCIAL ENVIRONMENT

by John E. Stambaugh, Professor of Classics, Williams College, and David L. Balch, Associate Professor of New Testament, Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University

A comprehensive view of early Christian society—including historical background, mobility, economy, and a comparison of the Palestinian environment with city life.

$18.95

Volume 3, EARLY BIBLICAL INTERPRETATION

by James L. Kugel, Professor of Hebrew Literature, Harvard University, and Rowan A. Greer, Professor of Anglican Studies, Yale Divinity School

A discussion of the collection and interpretation of the Hebrew Scriptures in early Judaism and of the development of the Christian Bible in the early church.

$18.95

Volume 4, MORAL EXHORTATION, A GRECO-ROMAN SOURCEBOOK

by Abraham J. Malherbe, Buckingham Professor of New Testament Criticism and Interpretation, Yale Divinity School

An exploration of what the moral teachings of the early Christian writers had in common with the works of the pagan philosophers and orators of their time.

$18.95

Volume 5, LETTER WRITING IN GRECO-ROMAN ANTIQUITY

by Stanley K. Stowers, Assistant Professor, Department of Religious Studies, Brown University

An examination of early Christian letters within the social and literary context of ancient letter writing.

$18.95

Volume 6, THE MORAL WORLD OF THE FIRST CHRISTIANS

by Wayne A. Meeks, author of “The First Urban Christians: The Social World of the Apostle Paul”

An inquiry into the ethical sources from which Christians developed their own identity and moral language.

Edited by J. G. Davies, Edward Cadbury Professor of Theology in the University of Birmingham, England

Dramatically illustrating how thinking has changed in the last decade and a half, this new one-volume reference will be of special interest to teachers and students for use in classes and for pastors in the churches as a convenient reference. With over fifty percent of the original articles updated, it now has 160 more pages and more than 70 additional articles. There is an increased sensitivity to special concerns and wider coverage of individual religious bodies.

PASTORAL COUNSELING ACROSS CULTURES

by David W. Augsburger, Professor of Pastoral Counseling, Associated Mennonite Biblical Seminaries

This book speaks to an American audience about counseling individuals who are not part of the dominant, Western culture. Particularly useful as a primary text, it challenges counselors to go beyond their own cultures. It shows how the integrity of the church's mission requires those in the caring professions to be concerned with genuine dialogue among cultures, faiths, and values. The book is illustrated by numerous folk tales and case studies.

JEREMIAH A Commentary

by Robert P. Carroll, Lecturer in Hebrew and Old Testament Studies, University of Glasgow, Scotland

This authoritative study of one of the major prophets fills a significant gap in biblical studies in the English language. It sheds new light on an extraordinary and pivotal figure in the life of Israel, as well as on the messages he delivered in the last years of the Judean monarchy. Because the complex structure of Jeremiah works against easy reading, this comprehensive and perceptive commentary makes an important contribution to an understanding of the scriptures. Out of Print?

A frequent complaint of authors is that publishers let their books go out of print. The problem is especially acute for scholarly books because the review process often takes so long that it is not uncommon for a book to be out of print even before all its reviews appear.

Some authors are unaware that there is a continuing cost for a publisher to keep a book in print: the cost of warehousing, the cost of cataloging, and the manufacturing cost of the inventory (now that depreciation tax laws have been changed). Once sales of a book drop below a certain level, publishers can no longer recover these fixed costs and so they let it go out of print.

At the heart of the problem is the fact that most publishers concentrate promotion on their new titles and do not advertise their previously published books. Since these "back list" titles are not constantly advertised, their sales drop off to the point where a publisher cannot afford to keep them in print.

The solution is for a publisher not to have a back list, but constantly to keep presenting all its titles to potential readers. The Edwin Mellen Press does this by publishing its books as numbered volumes in continuing series--so that every earlier volume in a series is readvertised in conjunction with every new title published.

Of course, the method of publishing books in scholarly monograph series is not our invention. It is, rather, the basic form of German scholarship--which we gladly acknowledge and imitate. So we urge you to seek a publisher for your next book who guarantees to keep it in print. We hope you will consider us. Here are some of the series which we presently sustain:

The Scholarly Book Proposal

There are three kinds of book publishers:

- (1) Trade publishers typically sell 10,000 copies through general bookstores;
- (2) University presses typically sell 2500 copies marketed through specialized bookstores and to libraries;
- (3) STM publishers ("scholarly, technical, medical") typically sell 1000 copies marketed by direct mail to individual researchers and libraries.

The Edwin Mellen Press is an "STM" publisher. It presently sustains twenty-seven series in virtually every area of the humanities, social sciences, business, medicine, and religion. It sells its books throughout the world primarily to major research libraries. Thirty percent of its sales go to Europe, Africa, and Asia.

Because scholarly information always ought to be shared, Mellen's sole editorial criterion for "decision to publish" is whether a manuscript makes a significant contribution to scholarship. It is never difficult to give scholar-authors a prompt decision whether we could, in principle, publish their manuscript—as long as they can give us a clear explanation of the contribution of their research to scholarship.

If you are working on a book which makes a contribution to scholarship, please answer the following seven questions for us:

- (1) What is the general topic of the work you propose for publication?
- (2) What is the specific contribution of this work to its field of scholarship?
- (3) What is the content of your work? (E.g., enumerate its specific parts or chapters.)
- (4) What is your competence to write this work? (E.g., your education, previous publications, length of research.)
- (5) What is the present state of the manuscript and when will it be completed?
- (6) What is your name, address, business phone, and home phone?
- (7) Have you any other questions?

If you send your answer to these questions to us, we will reply within three weeks. Or you may phone Paul Saito at (716)-754-2266 and discuss the matter in person. Or you may meet our editors at conference booths 126–127. (Schleiermacher translations, booth 401.)

The Scholarly Career

After publishing one's Ph.D. thesis as a book or several articles, what are the next steps in the development of a scholarly career?

In Europe, it is recognized that there are scholarly tasks equivalent to "second" and "third" doctorates: the Habilitation, the Doctorat d'Etat, and the Festschrift. Drawing upon this European experience, we can chart how a scholarly career is developed by noting the characteristic tasks and genres at the later stages of life.

The Habilitation Stage

(the 10-15 years following the Ph.D.)

In this period, scholarly research consists primarily of projects involving translation or methodology; with editing texts; with essays seeking to define the parameters of one's discipline; with bibliographic and status quaestionis projects which clarify the problematics of frontier issues in scholarship; with the writing of at least one full length monograph within one's Ph.D. area of expertise, but on a different subject from the dissertation.

The Doctorat d'Etat Stage

(the 10-15 years following the Habilitation)

In this period, scholarly research consists increasingly with the widening of one's expertise by bridging into new disciplines; with autobiographical reflection whereby a scholar seeks to maintain the inward continuity of his thought while articulating his intellectual change as he moves into mid-life; with original reflection aimed at solving institutional or political problems; and, most importantly, with the mapping out a "life project" which is to be executed through the writing of several related volumes--and then writing these volumes one after the other.

The Magister Stage

(the 10-15 years following the Doctorat d'Etat)

This stage consists in responding to those who evaluate and use one's work (e.g. through a Festschrift); with utilizing one's wisdom to explore and write essays on a wide range of intellectual interests which may be distant from one's disciplinary specializations; with the writing of personal history or meditations on the meaning of scholarly life; with the completion or compilation for publication of earlier unpublished writings.

The Mellen Center for Career Development seeks to assist scholars through its research, its seminars, and its counseling programs. For free brochure, Developing the Scholarly Career, write MCCD, 315 Center Street, Lewiston, New York, 14092. (716)-754-8566.

THE Gnostic Scriptures
A New Translation with Annotations and Introductions
by Bentley Layton

This fresh new translation presents the most comprehensive collection ever assembled of the 46 foundational works of gnosticism, a counterpart to the Holy Scriptures of Christianity and Judaism. Despite their highly unorthodox character, these documents are indispensable for anyone who wants to understand the origins of early Christianity and the Church, classical Judaism, or Judeo-Christian cultures. Introductions and annotations by one of America's foremost religious scholars, as well as maps, tables, and a bibliography, help to place these key texts in their proper cultural and historical perspective for every student of scriptural writings. 800 pp., $35.00

MARK

A New Translation with Introduction and Commentary
by C.S. Mann

Most scholars believe that the Book of Mark predated the other Gospels and served as a basis for them; C.S. Mann's controversial but convincingly-argued thesis is that Mark was in fact written after Matthew and Luke and represents a digest of their accounts of the life of Christ—a theory certain to cause much debate among students of the Bible. CHRISTIANITY AND THE WORLD RELIGIONS

In this major new work, Dr. Hans Küng and three distinguished academic colleagues explore one of today's most important religious issues: how to overcome longstanding mistrust and misunderstanding among the world's great religions, and establish a free and open dialogue. It represents an important step toward a viable, ecumenical solution to problems of great concern to all. 480 pp., $19.95

NEW TESTAMENT STORY:

An Introduction

David L. Barr, Wright State University (Ph.D., Florida State University)

Using the metaphor of story as a vehicle, this innovative new text helps students understand the New Testament as a series of stories of different types. The author continues his metaphor to discuss the tellers of the stories and the context in which they are told. Appropriate for any introductory course where the history, literature, social setting, and human meaning of the New Testament are studied. The NEW TESTAMENT STORY includes:

- Extensive material on the historical-social context of the New Testament
- Up-to-date methods of literary-critical study of the New Testament designed to show students new aspects of a work they may already feel they know as a document of faith
- An excellent bibliography—one of the most detailed available, plus a glossed index, and suggestions for further reading.

THE NEW TESTAMENT: A Critical Introduction

Edwin D. Freed (Gettysburg College)

An introductory text that encourages students to see the New Testament in a fresh, objective light. Applying literary-critical techniques, modern evidence, and careful content and literary analysis, Freed focuses on all the canonical books of the New Testament itself, rather than on secondary sources. He introduces unique material on the gospel writers as authors, the gospel of John, and a critical study of Jesus and the synoptic gospels. Freed's concise yet complete coverage of the historical and cultural context of the New Testament also deepens understanding.

449 pages. Casebound. 1986.

FROM ADAM TO ARMAGEDDON:

A Survey of the Bible

J. Benton White (San Jose State University)

A concise, integrated text specifically designed for the one-term introduction to the Bible. This survey reflects the author's many years of success in covering a wide range of material in a limited time—without sacrificing accuracy. Presenting the Bible as a primarily religious document, White traces its historical context and offers students the most current and useful historic-literary critical tools to aid their study.

202 pages. Paperbound. 1985.

UNDERSTANDING RELIGIOUS LIFE, THIRD EDITION

Frederick J. Streng (Southern Methodist University)

An introduction to religion that focuses on the power of religious feelings, ideas, and behavior to evoke people's deepest sensitivities and highest values. Without oversimplifying different religious outlooks, Streng helps students examine—and understand—the similarities and differences in ways of being religious. "The most useful text yet seen for undergraduate introduction to religion."—Allen Howard Podet, SUNY, Buffalo

The Sermon on the Mount: A Theological Interpretation

CARL G. VAUGHT

A volume in the SUNY series in Religious Studies, Robert C. Neville, editor

"Vaught does a very good job of scraping away the accretions of centuries to get at the underlying theological gems in this classical scripture. By returning over and over again to the root meanings of words and the context of the times, he is able to shed new light on the familiar. For anyone who wonders what Jesus really meant and what his teachings mean today, this is an important book."—Joseph Blackman.

"At almost every point I encountered new ideas of powerful simplicity. Vaught brings with him a philosophical heritage that provides very valuable conceptual tools for interpretation, but the tools remain subordinate to the text."—Merold Westphal.

"The theology is central and sound. Vaught incorporates the best insight of modern New Testament scholarship without referring to it."—Charles C. West. 192 pp.

American Religious Empiricism

WILLIAM DEAN. A volume in the SUNY series in Religious Studies, Robert C. Neville, editor

"Brings together the distinctive American literary traditions with distinctively American theology in a way that is very illuminating."—John B. Cobb, Jr.

This is a clear and sharply written defense of the thesis that American empirical theology, especially that associated with the Chicago School, is a post-modern movement in the sense advocated by the deconstructionists. Whereas it usually is thought that Protestant neo-orthodoxy brought life back into theology, Dean argues that this was merely a gasp of a dying culture. Dean shows what unifies the thought, stretching from the idealistic empiricism of Jonathan Edwards, to the pragmatic empiricism of James and Dewey, to the Chicago School theologians, to the current work of the growing body of process theologians. The book argues that theology needs a new form, one that will make American religious empiricism into a faithful historicism, a continual reinterpretation of the religious past. 126 pp.

Powers of Imagining: Ignatius de Loyola

ANTONIO de NICOLAS

A Philosophical
Hermeneutic of Imagining through the Collected Works of Ignatius de Loyola
with a Translation of These Works

Antonio de Nicolas recovers the original decision-oriented thrust of Ignatius de Loyola with his translations of Ignatius's Spiritual Exercises, Spiritual Diary, Autobiography, and letters. These translations are introduced by a hermeneutical commentary laying out the theory and practices of the decision-making power of imagining.

"What is recovered by Professor de Nicolas in his work is the radical flavor of the original sense of the Spiritual Exercises. . . . There is a lifetime of experience with the Spiritual Exercises behind this witty, poetic, and brilliant work."—Patrick A. Heelan, S.J. 416 pp.

Antonio de Nicolas is Professor of Philosophy at State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Karma and Creativity

CHRISTOPHER CHAPPLE. A volume in the SUNY series in Religious Studies, Robert C. Neville, editor

"This book deals with the Indian experience of karma in a fresh way—yet one which is in harmony with the tradition. Too often karma is simply dismissed by both Western and Indian readers as 'fate' or determinism. By stressing the 'creativity' aspect of karma, and tracing it from the Rig Veda, through the Upanisads, Samkhya-Yoga, Yogavasistha, and the Gita, a clear vision of karma as non-deterministic is presented in earlier treatments of Hinduism. 128 pp.

Apocalyptic Messianism and Contemporary Jewish-American Poetry

R. BARBARA GITENSTEIN. SUNY series in Modern Jewish Literature and Culture, Sarah Blacher Cohen, editor

Focusing on the rich context of esoteric Jewish literature, this collection presents in-depth analyses of Jewish-American poetry. Gitenstein defines Jewish messianism and the literary genre of the apocalyptic, describes historical movements and kabbalistic theories, and analyzes their influence as part of the post-Holocaust consciousness. She recounts the lives of such holy men as Abraham Abulafia, Isaac Luria, Shabbatai Zevi, and Jacob Frank and identifies their theories as part of the history of the literary apocalyptic genre. 128 pp.

Nagarjuna:

The Philosophy of the Middle Way

DAVID J. KALUPAHANA. SUNY series in Buddhist Studies, Kenneth K. Inada, editor

This is a completely new translation of Nagarjuna's major work, the Mulamadhyamakakarika, accompanied by a detailed annotation of each of the verses. The annotation identifies the metaphysical theories of the scholastics criticized by Nagarjuna and traces the source material and the arguments utilized in his refutation back to the early discourses of the Buddha.

The Introduction presents a completely new hypothesis about the nature of the treatise: The work is a grand commentary on the Buddha's Discourse to Katyayana. The book compares the teachings of the Buddha and Nagarjuna in regard to epistemology, ontology, ethics, and philosophy of language, showing how Nagarjuna was attempting to faithfully reconstruct the Buddha's teachings, avoiding the substantialist metaphysics of the scholastics.

The book shows that Nagarjuna's ideas are neither original nor are they an advancement from the early Buddhist period; he is not a Mahayanist. 448 pp.

Islamic Art and Spirituality

SEYYED HOSSEIN NASR

With remarkable breadth of vision, Nasr reveals for both Western and Muslim readers how each art form in the Islamic tradition is based upon a science of an inner nature that is concerned, not with the outer appearance of things, but with their inner reality. Ranging across painting, architecture, calligraphy, literature, music, and the plastic arts, Nasr penetrates to the inner dimension of Islam and shows the role art plays in the life of individual Muslims and the community as a whole, inspiring the remembrance and contemplation of God. 250 pp.

Islam and the Destiny of Man

CHARLES LE GAI EATON. SUNY series in Islam, Seyyed Hossein Nasr, editor

"The most remarkable accomplishment of this book is not that it leaves the reader with a basic understanding of Muhammad, the Qur'an, and the daily practices of Muslims everywhere, although it certainly does these things. Nor does it lie merely in the clear, open, loving approach the author brings to his subject, although this is striking. Rather his major contribution lies in building bridges of understanding—in showing the Christian's and the Jew's essential oneness with the Muslim."—Joseph Blackman. 256 pp.

Oikoumene

"Oikoumene" — the whole inhabited earth.

More than 300 churches from all over the oikoumene — with a combined membership of 400 million — give the World Council of Churches unparalleled resources for ecumenical theology.

When the varied experiences and traditions of these churches meet in the framework of a common ecumenical commitment, the ferment is often creative. That creative ferment is reflected in the books from WCC Publications: issues of current importance, treated with the wisdom of some of the keenest Christian thinkers of our day.

Some recent WCC books are:

Theology by the People

Reflections on doing theology in community. Implicit in the essays included in this book is also a call to professional theologians to understand anew their own role, in the light of what ordinary people are doing theologically. Edited by Sam Amirham and John S. Pobee. Approx. US$7.95.

New Eyes for Reading

Biblical and theological reflections by women from the third world. The writers are from Africa, Asia and Latin America. They struggle to relate the biblical message to the problems they encounter in their local and national settings and they do so as women, consciously and consistently. Edited by John S. Pobee and Bärbel von Wartenberg-Potter. Approx. US$7.95.

T. M. Philips

The Encounter between Theology and Ideology

An exploration into the communicative theology of M. M. Thomas. Here is the first full-length study of the theology of M. M. Thomas who is considered "the true guru of modern Indian theology". It makes the reader familiar with the current questions related to the relevance and communication of the faith in the Indian context of religious and ideological pluralism. US$9.50.

Understanding the Atonement for the Mission of the Church

by John Driver

Classical Protestant theories of atonement do not adequately reflect the variety of imagery in the New Testament. John Driver opens up to the reader the rich diversity of the New Testament on the significance of the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus.

Understanding the Atonement for the Mission of the Church delineates the meaning of the work of Christ without the Constantinian presuppositions of the principal theories of the atonement.

Part one is a primer to the principle theories of atonement. Part two explores the ten primary biblical motifs of atonement. In part three, Driver discusses three applications of atonement theology. Kivar, 288 pages $19.95, in Canada $27.95

Christian Peacemaking and International Conflict

by Duane K. Friesen

Addresses two major issues from a Christian perspective: war and peace, and social justice. Develops a "realist" pacifist perspective, politically relevant, but taking seriously the sinfulness of human institutions.

Recent Christian peace books have not dealt comprehensively and systematically with the issue of justice and nonviolence. Christian Peacemaking and International Conflict develops a systematic theological and ethical position within a contemporary political and economic analysis of the human situation. Addresses the practical concerns of a social action strategy for the church. Kivar, 304 pages $19.95, in Canada $27.95

INDIANA STUDIES IN BIBLICAL LITERATURE

Herbert Marks and Robert Polzin, editors

The art and theory of literary interpretation are rooted in the great traditions of biblical study which for over two thousand years provided a fertile context for the development of new forms of reading and hermeneutic reflection. Indiana Studies in Biblical Literature seeks to encourage adventurous modes of interpretation that will reflect a unified awareness of traditional hermeneutics, modern biblical scholarship, and current literary theory with its tributary disciplines.

The Poetics of Biblical Narrative

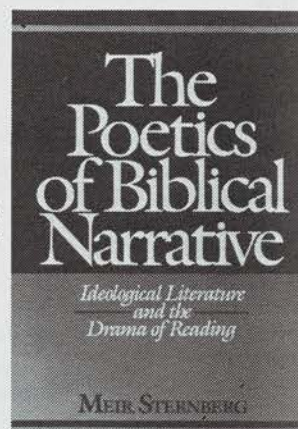

Ideological Literature and the Drama of Reading

By Meir Sternberg

Meir Sternberg's The Poetics of Biblical Narrative is a pioneering work of great scope that cuts through the tangle of old and recent approaches to the Bible. By revealing how the narrative in the Hebrew Bible makes sense as an ideological art, ambiguous yet persuasive, this book opens up new insights into the greatest and most original work in the narrative tradition of world literature. At the same time, the Bible's poetics illuminate major issues in narrative and literary theory.

As lucid as it is rigorous, Sternberg's presentation makes the poetics of Biblical narrative accessible to all students and scholars.

1 Samuel

A Literary Reading

By Peter D. Miscall

In a decisive departure from traditional biblical scholarship, Miscall offers a reading of 1 Samuel that is strongly influenced by New Criticism, Structuralism, and Deconstruction.

The reading pays close attention to the text, not glossing over details that do not seem to fit and not filling in apparent gaps. Miscall carefully probes the way in which 1 Samuel develops, or blocks the development of, plot, characters, and themes. There are frequent digressions into canonical history to provide background and to explore parallel and contrasting texts.

Old Testament narrative is as complex and sophisticated as any of the great books of the Western world and demands a complex and sophisticated reading. 1 Samuel is just such a reading.

King and Kin

Political Allegory in the Hebrew Bible

By Joel Rosenberg

In this analysis of the allegory of king and kin in the texts of the Hebrew Bible (Genesis through II Kings), Joel Rosenberg explores the fundamental concepts and contradictions in the history of pre-exilic Israel, emphasizing the transition from tribal confederation to national kingdom. Rosenberg assumes a biblical editorship that shaped the stories of Israel's oral and literary tradition, a composing intelligence that extends over a wide expanse of biblical books and informs the smallest details of the narrative line.

Though rooted in literary categories, Rosenberg's textual analysis also presumes a real and perceived history. The result is fascinating illumination of the role of compositional art in the analysis of the past and its consequent political implications.

RELIGION IN NORTH AMERICA

Catherine L. Albanese and Stephen J. Stein, editors

Works in this series consider all aspects of American religious traditions, past and present, from an interdisciplinary perspective, seeking to reflect a broad cultural understanding of North America's religious movements.

The Christian Home in Victorian America, 1840-1900

By Colleen McDannell

From the parlor organ inside to the stained glass and Gothic arches outside, the ideal Christian Victorian home reflected the flowering of domestic religion in America. But, as Colleen McDannell shows, Protestants and Catholics differed markedly in their understanding of the home as sacred space. McDannell compares styles of interior decoration, Sabbath rituals, funeral and mourning practices, and patterns of parental leadership in nineteenth-century Protestant and Catholic homes to elucidate the different strategies used by these two groups in dealing with the rapid social change of the period. Through examination of a wide range of sources, McDannell addresses important issues of cultural assimilation, religious antagonism, and the evolution of middle-class values.

Three Black Women's Autobiographies of the Nineteenth Century

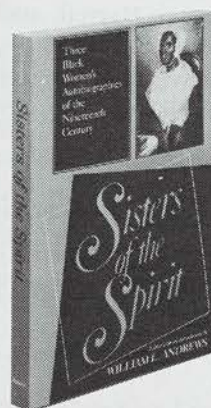

Edited with an Introduction by William L. Andrews

"I regard these as very important autobiographies. The standard collections of documents on Black women or women in America in the nineteenth century typically ignored religious material. This is a critical oversight, since for Black women, even more than white, the church was the way into a larger self-image and vocation."

—Rosemary Radford Ruether

As preachers of the Christian gospel, Jarena Lee, Zilpha Elaw, and Julia Foote underwent a revolution in their own sense of self that helped to launch a feminist revolution in American religious life and in American society as a whole. These three autobiographies are important literary and historical documents in their own right, and are additionally valuable as self-portraits of major forebears of the black feminist literary tradition in America.

FROM A BROKEN WEB Separation, Sexism, and Self

Catherine Keller
This provocative study challenges the prevailing Western conception of the separateness of the individual self. In her readings of our foundational myths, Keller uncovers the matriarchal sources of the major occidental religions. Her thoughtful analyses of depth psychology and the philosophical tradition (especially Whitehead's process thought) offer new insights into age-old questions about soul, self, and individual identity.

NAG HAMMADI, GNOSTICISM AND EARLY CHRISTIANITY

Charles W. Hedrick, Sr. and Robert Hodgson, Jr., editors
The discovery of the Nag Hammadi library in 1945 opened a whole field of inquiry in the relationship between gnosticism and early Christianity. In Nag Hammadi, Gnosticism and Early Christianity, fifteen leading scholars in the fields of New Testament and gnosticism dialogue on the current issues in gnostic studies.

An outgrowth of the first conference on gnosticism to focus specifically on the relationship between gnosticism and early Christianity, this important new work provides the reader with new insights into Christian and gnostic origins, and sets the discussion of gnosticism and early Christianity in new directions.

Contributors include: Birger A. Pearson, Bentley Layton, George W. MacRae, James M. Robinson and Elaine H. Pagels.

THE SPIRIT & THE CHURCH: ANTIQUITY

Stanley M. Burgess

Recently the Christian Church has begun to rediscover the Person and the vital work of the Holy Spirit, an elusive subject heretofore often neglected in Christian theology. It seems appropriate, therefore, to examine afresh both the development of Spirit theology and the ongoing ministry of the Spirit throughout the history of the Church. In this first of a projected three-volume series devoted to the history of Christian pneumatology, Stanley M. Burgess recounts Christian efforts from the end of the first century to the end of the fifth century A.D. to understand the divine Third Person.

CONVERSION—INITIATION AND THE BAPTISM IN THE HOLY SPIRIT

Howard M. Ervin

Since its publication in 1970, James D. G. Dunn's benchmark work, Baptism in the Holy Spirit, has been a widely accepted standard as a non-Pentecostal response to the theology of Pentecostal experience.

In this engaging critique, Howard Ervin methodically examines Dunn's propositions, providing for the Pentecostal and non-Pentecostal alike, new understanding of the baptism in the Holy Spirit.

CHARISMATIC GIFTS IN THE EARLY CHURCH

Ronald A. N. Kydd

The emergence and widespread acceptance of the validity of the charismatic experience has generated many questions. One of the foremost is, "What happened to the gifts of the Spirit after the New Testament Period?" Dr. Ronald Kydd's careful study seeks to answer that question.

After a thorough and careful study of the writings of the early church fathers, Dr. Kydd provides an objective, informative analysis concluding that "what emerges is the picture of a Church which is strongly charismatic up until around A.D. 200."

THE CHARISMATIC THEOLOGY OF ST. LUKE

Roger Stronstad

In recent years, considerable scholarly discussion has occurred regarding the meaning of the Holy Spirit's activity in Luke-Acts.

At the crux of the controversy is the interpretation of terms "baptism in the Holy Spirit" and "filled with the Spirit" as used in Luke-Acts.

In this cogent and thought-provoking study, Roger Stronstad argues that, in an effort to harmonize Lukan and Pauline theology of the Holy Spirit, Luke's charismatic emphases have been improperly forced into a mold.

Writing in the spirit of the finest of biblical scholarship, Stronstad challenges, indeed forces, traditional Protestants to re-examine and reconsider the impact of Pentecost.

A MONTHLY REVIEW

It's the media's best-kept secret.

Religious book publishing has never been healthier. More than 2,000 new popular and scholarly titles are published annually, but you won't hear about most of them unless you subscribe to Books & Religion.

For more than a decade, Books & Religion has been the only publication offering timely and dependable coverage of the broad range of American religious thought and scholarship—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, conservative and liberal, popular and scholarly.

Issue by issue, Books & Religion monitors religious publishing in America, and selects from the more than 2,000 new titles published annually those books deemed most important for review and comment.

Now being published by Duke Divinity School, the newly expanded Books & Religion offers thought-provoking reviews of current books, critical essays on the larger issues which they help raise, stimulating interviews with key figures in the religious, scholarly and publishing communities, and a host of new features which will broaden public awareness of the relevance of the nation's principal religious resources to the perplexing problems of these difficult times.

That's a story that's simply not being covered by secular media predisposed to view the role of religion in the affairs of this world with hostility, suspicion or indifference.

But you'll find it in every issue of Books & Religion, month after month. And all for only $16. Such a deal. And it's easy to arrange. Just mail this coupon.

Rolston has brought together four of the greatest saints of Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, and Buddhism in a debate about great theological issues. This authoritative and probing book reveals profound insights about the contributions of Augustine, Ghazali, Sankara, and Nagarjuna to their respective religious traditions. It represents a truly comparative approach to different religious concepts of truth, epistemology, and reality. The author uses a clear style, simple English, and excellent organization to enhance his unique approach to world religions. The volume has an excellent bibliography and a useful index. Religious Inquiry will be an excellent supplement to courses in comparative religions, particularly if it is published in paperback. Highly recommended for advanced undergraduate and graduate students in the history of religions, anthropology, and philosophy. Also, this volume will add to the basic collection of any library.—CHOICE, June 1985, J.J. Preston, SUNY College at Oneonta

"Mature Christianity is the most careful study of the anti-Jewish polemic of the New Testament that I have read. By placing his discussion in the context of Maturity and Hermeneutics, Beck gets deeper than the other books on this polemic. He is well versed in the relevant exegetical discussion in New Testament scholarship, and his attention to anti-Jewish polemic in various English translations of the Bible is excellent. Worth discussing further in the light of critical studies of the development of Jewish and of Christian theology is his daring analogy between Yahweh and Jesus."

—Kristen Stendahl, Bishop of Stockholm, Church of Sweden; former Andrew W. Mellon Professor of New Testament and Dean of the Divinity School, Harvard University

MATURE CHRISTIANITY

Norman A. Beck

Norman Beck, Professor of Biblical Studies at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin, identifies in detail the anti-Jewish polemic within each New Testament document, discusses reasons for the development of that polemic, places the anti-Jewish polemic of the New Testament into specific classifications, and suggests ways in which mature Christians can repudiate the defamatory anti-Jewish polemic of the New Testament without damage to their theology. $19.50

☐ DIETRICH BONHOEFFER

Meditating On The Word $6.95
First time in English! These meditations on the Psalms teach us how to meditate on Holy Scripture, using short passages to help focus our prayer lives as well as our public lives. Culminates in a verse by verse meditation of Psalm 119 which Bonhoeffer considered to be—according to Eberhard Bethge—"the climax of his theological life."

☐ ANN ULANOV

Picturing God $9.95
Explores how our pictures of God, harbored in the unconscious self, inform our spiritual development. Confronting these hidden images not only reveals important insights about ourselves, but pulls us beyond our private pictures of God toward a truer view of the living God.

☐ RACHEL HOSMER

Gender & God $7.95
How do we understand ourselves to be created in the image of God, and yet find ourselves created in two sexes? Through studying the sexuality in the works of Augustine, Julian of Norwich, Dante and Alice Walker, Hosmer argues that God's image in human flesh requires relationship of two different beings who complement one another.

☐ LOUIS WEIL

Understanding Liturgical Prayer $6.95
An excellent introduction to the necessity and vitality of collective prayer and worship. Points to the origins and development of liturgical prayer and collects in terms of their theology and literary forms.

☐ MARTIN THORNTON

English Spirituality $11.95
In covering the English spiritual tradition from the early church through Julian of Norwich and beyond, Thornton unearths the theological foundations behind the pastoral art of spiritual direction.

The two volumes in this series emphasize the context and history of early Christianity in reconsidering many of the classic passages that have contributed to the development of anti-Judaism within it. This study examines the evolution of the Christian faith in its social context as revealed by close examination of specific passages in the gospels and the writings of Paul and by evidence such as early patristic and rabbinic writings and archaeological findings.

Civitas: Religious Interpretations of the City

Peter S. Hawkins, editor

An interdisciplinary collection of essays on the meaning of the city as human artifact, repository of memory, an image either of heaven or hell. Drawing on scholars of bible, theology, worship, literature, and the visual arts, the collection traces religious notions of the city from biblical times to the present. This work is especially suitable for courses on the city, whether those courses be sponsored by departments of religious studies, literature, sociology, or history.

The Riddle of Liberty: Emerson on Alienation, Freedom and Obedience

Lou Ann Lange

A re-examination of Emerson's thought concerning the paradox of freedom and obedience. Contrary to popular opinion, Lange argues that Emerson's doctrine of self-reliance was predicated not on solipsism and license but on obedience to the moral law informing creation. In the course of making her argument, the author describes the historical and philosophical context for Emerson's work, with particular attention given to the philosophy of Jean Jacques Rousseau.

The Riddle of Liberty contributes to a variety of disciplines, including American intellectual history, philosophy of religion, and political philosophy.

Comparative Religion: Its Genesis and Growth

Louis Henry Jordan

A reprint of Louis H. Jordan's handbook to the study of comparative religion. Originally published in 1905, this 600+ page volume served, in its day, to summarize the history and development of an emergent discipline. In our day, Jordan's work continues to serve both as a classic statement of the discipline's aims and purposes and as a review of its foundational texts and early proponents. An indispensable resource for those engaged in the comparative study of religion.

Louis H. Jordan (1855-1923) was Special Lecturer in Comparative Religion at the University of Chicago.

The Bible in the Early Middle Ages

Robert E. McNally, S. J.

A basic and accessible survey of Biblical exegesis. Originally published in 1959, this work provides an introduction to, and bibliographical listing of, 240 works of Biblical commentaries--written in Latin--between the years 650-1000 A.D. By describing the historical, religious, and institutional ethos of the Early Middle Ages, McNally contributes to a fuller understanding of the Bible's location within the church and its developing dogmas. A work useful to the beginning and mature student alike, The Bible in the Early Middle Ages continues Scholars Press' commitment to the reprinting of enduring scholarship.

Medieval Exegesis of Wisdom Literature: Essays by Beryl Smalley

Roland E. Murphy, editor

This work makes available a number of important essays from the work of Beryl Smalley. In one sense, Smalley's study of medieval commentaries on wisdom literature introduces modern exegetes to a new and strange world; in another sense, however, Smalley's work illustrates how contemporary the questions of medieval exegesis remain. Commentaries on Ben Sira and the Wisdom of Solomon, as well as Proverbs, Job, and Ecclesiastes, are examined.

Jewish Presence in T. S. Eliot and Franz Kafka

Melvin Wilk

An examination of Jewish presence in the works of T. S. Eliot and Franz Kafka. In the case of Eliot, the author discerns Jewish presence as a persistent anti-Semitic attitude both in Eliot's work and the midwestern and New England culture in which that work was written. For Franz Kafka, however, Jewish presence represents an integral and irreplaceable part of his cultural background and identity as an author. Skillfully created and tactfully employed, Wilk's category of "Jewish presence" reveals how Eliot and Kafka exemplify, respectively, the anti-Semitism of modern American literature and the modern Jewish writer in exile.

Sifre to Numbers: An American Translation and Explanation

Jacob Neusner

Presents the first complete translation, into English, of this important canonical work of Judaism. Following the text of Sifre debe Rab. Sifre al sefer Bamidbar veSifre Zuta, ed. by Haim Shaul Horovitz (Leipzig, 1917), Volumes I and II cover slightly more than half of the document or, in terms of the Sabbath lections, from Naso through Shelah. A projected third volume, to be completed by William Green, will present the remaining portions of the document from Qorah through Masat.

The present translation includes an introduction to the literary structure of the text and a running commentary by Prof. Neusner which places this rabbinic commentary on Numbers in its historical and theological context.

Cohen and Troeltsch: Ethical Monotheistic Religion and Theory of Culture

Wendell S. Dietrich

Reviews and compares the work of Hermann Cohen and Ernst Troeltsch regarding their proposed reconstruction of classic Judaism and Christianity. Though clearly disagreeing at certain points, especially on their view of prophecy and orientations to social ethics, both Cohen and Troeltsch nevertheless sought to reinterpret and preserve their respective traditions as ethical monotheisms which served to invigorate culture.

The provocative encounter between Cohen and Troeltsch occasioned by Dietrich's work will be welcomed by those interested in a comparative study of modern Jewish and Christian thought, as well as the role of religion in contemporary Western culture.

Non-Canonical Psalms from Qumran: A Pseudepigraphic Collection

Eileen M. Schuller

This book is a first publication of two manuscripts from Qumran Cave 4, 4Q380 and 4Q381. The book provides photographs, transcriptions, translation, paleographic analysis, a general introduction and a phrase by phrase commentary on the texts. An introductory chapter attempts to situate these compositions within the framework of what is known about the development of psalmody in the post-Exilic period, with particular discussion of the non-canonical psalmic material found in 11QPs^a.

An appendix, based on the work of Dr. H. Stegemann of the University of Goettingen, Germany, presents a proposal for the arrangement of the major fragments of 4Q381 into a single sheet of five columns of twenty-five lines each.

Sense and Absence

J. Lee Magness

Attempts a fresh literary analysis of the suspended ending to the second gospel. In the course of his study, Magness describes how open endings have been interpreted by modern literary theory and, secondly, how such endings have been used in ancient literary and Biblical texts. A close re-reading of Mark concludes the study; in that re-reading, Magness offers the intriguing thesis that Mark's "sense of absence" encourages his readers to make sense of that absence for themselves in a positive and powerful way.

Semeia 35: Social-Scientific Criticism of the New Testament and Its Social World

John H. Elliott, editor

A collection of essays applying social-scientific methodologies to criticisms of the New Testament. By reconstructing the social systems within which Biblical texts were written, proponents of these methodologies hope to achieve exegeses which are more sensitive to the perceptions, worldviews, and original aim of the biblical authors. The inclusion of extensive bibliographies, along with examples of close textual analysis, serve to introduce this promising and fruitful methodology of cross-disciplinary study.

Studies in the Form of Sirach 44-50

Thomas R. Lee

A form-critical examination of Ben Sira's "Hymn in Praise of the Fathers" (Sira 44-50). Lee argues that Sira's Hymn is modeled on the encomium, a species of the Greek rhetorical genre known as epideictic. In the course of substantiating this argument, the author surveys the structure and history of the encomium from its origins in Greek lyric poetry to its appearance in the rhetorical treatises of the Common Era. The results of Lee's research will be of interest to students of intertestamental literature, Hellenistic Judaism, and Greek rhetoric.

Kingship According to the Deuteronomistic History

Gerald E. Gerbrandt

An examination of the entire Deuteronomistic History in order to determine the authors' views on kingship. In contrast to those who, like Martin Noth, believe that the Deuteronomistic historians were opposed to monarchy in any form, Gerbrandt argues that the historians were only opposed to those kings who did not adhere to the Deuteronomistic view of kingship. According to this view, Israel, and thus Israel's king, must place its trust in the covenant with God rather than in the strength of armies.

Septuagint and Cognate Studies

A Critical Edition of the Coptic (Bohairic) Pentateuch, Vol. 1: Genesis

Melvin K. H. Peters

Supplanting the earlier works of Wilkins (1731) and DeLagardi (1867), Volume One of Peters' critical edition of the Pentateuch represents the only modern text of Genesis in Bohairic. Based on all known extant versions of the manuscript, the author painstakingly displays the full critical apparatus, including variant readings. This is the best approximation of the original Bohairic text of Genesis yet available; as such, it will be a standard work for students of Coptic and the Septuagint for many years to come.

A Critical Edition of the Coptic (Bohairic) Pentateuch, Vol. 2: Exodus

Melvin K. H. Peters

The third published volume in Melvin K. H. Peter's work in the Pentateuch, this work presents a critical edition of Exodus. Derived from all known Coptic manuscripts, the text includes the full critical apparatus, including variant readings. The Coptic version of the Pentateuch is one of the earliest texts made from the Greek and thus is especially informative for Septuagint textual and literary history.

Computer Assisted Tools for Septuagint Studies, Vol. 1: Ruth

Robert A. Kraft and Emanuel Tov

This volume explains and illustrates computer applications in the field of textual studies. Part one of the study introduces the work of the CATSS (Computer Assisted Tools for Septuagint Studies) Project in creating a comprehensive data base of materials pertinent to the study of the Ancient Greek translation of Jewish scriptures. Using the book of Ruth for illustrative purposes, the second part of the study exemplifies the various ways in which the created data base can be used and reorganized for scholarly purposes. The CATSS data base includes the Greek text, with textual variants and morphological analysis, aligned with the Hebrew Masoretic text. Examples of how this material can be used to create Greek-Hebrew and Hebrew-Greek indices are also included.

Hexaplaric Materials Preserved in the Armenian Version

Claude E. Cox

Origen (d. 253-4) compared the LXX and traditional Hebrew texts in the immense, six-columned work Hexapla. Although the Hexapla was apparently destroyed during the 7th century, versions of Origen's work were nevertheless preserved in various Armenian texts. In the present volume, Claude Cox presents Hexaplaric source material as it is found in more than 100 Armenian MSS. The Armenian MSS contain notations for 1461 passages, 161 of which are unique to the Armenian texts. Cox's painstaking research will be of immediate interest to OT textual critics, students of Origen, and scholars of the Armenian biblical tradition.

The Theology of Bernard Lonergan

Hugo A. Meynell

Offers a clear, straight-forward overview and analysis of Lonergan's efforts to articulate and reassess Christian doctrines in light of modern science and philosophy. In the course of his study, Meynell provides both an introduction to the key writings of Lonergan (including yet untranslated works in Latin) and a specific analysis of Lonergan's views on theological method, epistemology, Christology and the Doctrine of the Trinity. This work will be welcomed as both a superb introduction to the tasks of theology in general and to the thought of Lonergan in particular.

The Covenant of Grace

John von Rohr

A comprehensive account of the major theological themes in the late sixteenth and early seventeenth century Puritanism of England and New England as seen through the concept "covenant of grace." The covenant of grace, von Rohr argues, enabled Puritanism to affirm both a continuation of Calvinistic predestinarianism and an emergent voluntaristic pietism, pastorally both the absolute and conditional promises of God. An extensive array of primary source material is used in substantiating the author's thesis.

Religion, Ideology, and Heidegger's Concept of Falling

Gregory Tropea

Investigates the fundamental structures of human existence and self-understanding by tracing the ideas of religion and theology, as articulated through Heideggerian constructs, from Anselm to Democratic Capitalism. Complementing the tasks of historical research, Tropea proceeds to examine Heidegger from, as it were, the inside by asking how the Being of beings is found being religious and being ideological. In this way, Tropea's subtle exploration serves as both a work of historical scholarship and an experiment in the utilization of Heidegger's way of thinking on topics as diverse as politics and technology.
