AIRPORT TRANSFERS

SAN DIEGO INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT (SAN)

Metro bus service is available to go downtown, but your hotel might not be along the direct route. Many passengers will have to walk up to a mile after riding the bus. Please refer to the Online Trip Planner (http://www.sdmts.com/Tripplanner.asp) for reference below and contact your hotel if you have any questions.

Metro Bus

Public transit is available to and from the airport and downtown San Diego on the Metropolitan Transit System's Route 992, which stops at Terminals 1 and 2 and the Commuter Terminal. To find the bus stop, walk directly outside of your terminal by baggage claim and look for the bus sign. The bus operates between 5:00 am and 11:30 pm, every 15 minutes on weekdays and every 30 minutes on weekends and holidays. A single ride is $2.25, and the bus service is wheelchair accessible.

Plan your trip by using the MTS Online Trip Planner (http://www.sdmts.com/Tripplanner.asp). For more information on the Metropolitan Transit System, call 619-557-4555 or visit www.sdmts.com.

Taxis

If you need a taxi, simply follow the signs leading to the Transportation Plazas. A Transportation Coordinator will place you with the first available taxi—unless you specify a particular taxicab company. For cab service to the SAN Airport, one suggestion is Airport Yellow Cab of San Diego, who can be reached at 619-444-4444. An approximate fare to the Convention Center is $22.

Shared-Ride Vans

The AAR and SBL are partnering with Prime Time Shuttle this year. Shared shuttle service is available 7 am–11 pm for arriving flights. Shuttle service for departing flights is available 24 hours a day. They are offering a discount price of $6 per one way trip. There are two ways to book Prime Time:

- Call 1-800-733-8267, hit 1 for reservations, and give the discount code 592216
- Go to http://primetimeshuttle.hudsonltd.net/res?USERIDENTRY=SBLAAR&LOGON=GO. You will most likely select Arrivals. On the next page, select the correct airport (note that it defaults to LAX) and input your flight information. Note that only AAR & SBL hotels are listed on this link.

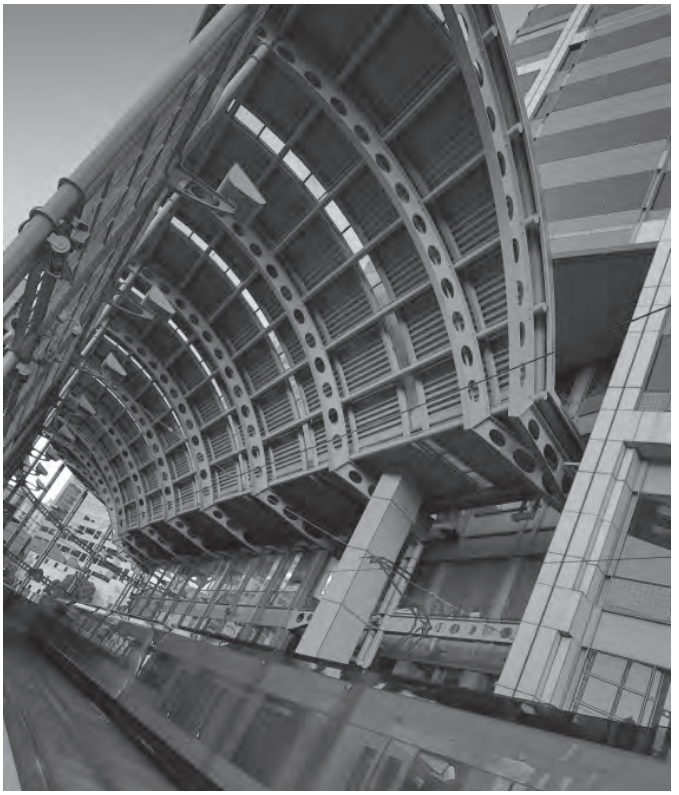

PARKING AT THE SAN DIEGO CONVENTION CENTER

The Convention Center is located at 111 W. Harbor Drive. On-site parking is available at the underground parking garage located below the building. Enter the parking garage on Harbor Drive between First Ave. and Fifth Ave. The daily rate is typically $15, although on special event days (within downtown San Diego) you will have to tell the parking attendant you are here for AAR & SBL to receive the $15 rate. Payment is due upon entry and there are no in and out privileges. No overnight parking is permitted.

SAN DIEGO TROLLEY

MTS' San Diego Trolley (http://www.sdmts.com/Trolley/Trolley.asp) is San Diego's light rail transit network. Its three lines serve many popular areas and attractions, such as Downtown, the Convention Center, SDSU, Old Town, and the Mexican border. The Trolley does not stop at the Airport. However, the Trolley's Blue and Orange Lines make convenient transfers with MTS Bus Route 992 (http://www.sdmts.com/mtscr/RouteNew.aspx?r=992) at America Plaza station.

TOUR INFORMATION

SAN DIEGO CITY TOUR

Friday, November 21, 1:00 pm–5:00 pm, $40

As the birthplace of California, San Diego is blessed with a rich history, stunning geography and a Mediterranean climate, making it one of the world's most delightful cities. Your bus tour begins with an introduction to the downtown area, with its modern buildings and bustling businesses, which is in stark contrast to the historic Gaslamp Quarter located just a few blocks away. We'll cross the award winning Coronado Bay Bridge next, where you will visit the island and drive by one of San Diego's most treasured icons, the Hotel del Coronado. As we return to the mainland, enjoy the open beauty and manicured lawns of Balboa Park, the nation's largest urban cultural park and site of the 1915 Panama-California Expo. We'll continue on to San Diego's birthplace in Old Town where you have free time to explore the historic exhibits, as well as the numerous shops and restaurants in this unique village atmosphere. The tour will continue to La Jolla ("the jewel" in Spanish), where you will be able to gaze out onto the beautiful Pacific Ocean, driving by Bird Rock to watch the kayakers, and then by the children's pool, which is now a sanctuary for the local sea lions. You will continue onto Mount Soledad, where in 1946, a cross was built for Korean War heroes. This monument has been the source of a long-running legal case regarding the separation of church and state. You'll drive by the Embarcadero and Marine Museum, which holds a collection of many historical ships, including the famous USS Midway. Passing Seaport Village and the fishing fleet, the bus heads back to the Convention Center.

VINYASA YOGA CLASS

Saturday, November 22, 7:00 am–8:00 am, $15

Join your colleagues for a 50 minute Vinyasa yoga session, which connects breathing to poses through movement. Participants will also learn shoulder placement and coordination as they improve total body alignment. Mats and/or pool towels will be provided. Wear comfortable clothing.

SAN DIEGO HARBOR CRUISE WITH A LECTURE ON THE VISIBLE EFFECTS OF CLIMATE CHANGE

Saturday, Nov 22, 9:15 am–12:30 pm, $45

Join your colleagues and friends on a two hour cruise of the San Diego Bay. First you will travel to the North Bay where a colony of sea lions live on the bait barges near Point Loma, then you'll venture to the South Bay by Coronado and view the San Diego Skyline. Over 50 landmarks, historic sites and environmental interest points will be seen as you travel over 13 miles. Accompanying us on the cruise will be Michel Boudrias, the chair of the Marine Science and Environmental Studies Department at University of San Diego, who will deliver a presentation on climate change specifically geared to scholars working in the humanities. The presentation will take advantage of the scenic views from the boat to illustrate the impending and already visible effects of climate change in the region. Annual Meetings participants will have a private area to hear Dr. Boudrias talk, or you may venture outside to hear the Captain discuss local landmarks as you pass them. Participants will meet at the Convention Center and walk a mile to the boat dock for the 2 hour cruise. This is a rain or shine event; refunds will not be issued for inclement weather. Registration for this event will only be open until Friday, November 21 at 6:00 pm PST.

CHINESE HISTORICAL MUSEUM AND GARDEN TOUR

Sunday, November 23, 12:45 pm–2:00 pm, $10

This one hour docent-led walking tour includes a lecture on the history of San Diego's Chinatown and an overview of precious artifacts of Chinese art and culture in the historic Chinese Mission Building. The group will then tour the Chuang Garden, a tranquil koi pond and waterscape with a blend of Chinese and Japanese rock elements. The closing of the visit will be a visit to the Dr. Sun Yat Sen Memorial Extension, housing a featured rotating exhibit, typically a fascinating study on an aspect of Chinese art, culture, or history. The group will depart from the Convention Center and walk to the Museum. The actual tour will be held 1:00 pm–2:00 pm, so feel free to join the Historical Gaslamp Tour around the corner at 2:30 pm, or explore the museum and gardens on your own. (Please register separately for the Gaslamp Tour.)

HISTORIC GASLAMP TOUR

Sunday, November 23, 2:15 pm–4:00 pm, $15

Opening a window to San Diego's past, the Gaslamp Quarter Historical Foundation showcases the history of the William Heath Davis House built in 1850, which is the oldest house downtown. The tour includes architecturally significant structures of the period from Old City Hall (1874) to the Romanesque style Keating Building (1890) to the Baroque Revival Louis Bank of Commerce (1888), along with fascinating stories of the people and characters that shaped the destiny of San Diego. From William Heath Davis, who first attempted the building of "New Town," to Alonzo Horton who came here in 1867 and finished the job, the cultural heritage of San Diego speaks through the buildings of a by-gone era that stand as testimony to its richness. The group will depart from the Convention Center and walk to the Gaslamp Museum. The actual tour will be held 2:30 pm–4:00 pm, so feel free to join the Chinese Historical Museum and Garden Tour that ends at 2:00 pm, just around the corner. (Please register separately for this tour.)

WINE AND RELIGION: A PAIRING OF THE SPIRITS

Sunday, November 23, 4:15 pm–8:00 pm, $55

Participate in a unique session at the San Diego Cellars winery, where you may listen to a presentation on wine and religion, and afterward enjoy a pairing flight consisting of six different regional wines paired with light fare. You'll learn the wine origins, nuances, and rationale for the pairings. Stephen R. Lloyd-Moffett, Associate Professor of Religious Studies at California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, and an amateur vintner himself, will present a talk entitled "In Vino Sanctus: Finding Religion in the Fruit of the Vine." Informed by over 60 interviews with wine makers in France, Australia, and the United States, his paper examines the way that wine acts as a surrogate for religion in the lives of contemporary wine makers. Drawing upon the concept of implicit religion, Lloyd-Moffett presents some common characteristics of spiritual wine makers. Finally, he queries which unique characteristics of wine offers the potential to transform the mere production of a common beverage into a holistic spiritual vocation. Participants will meet at the Convention Center, take the trolley (light rail) to Little Italy, and then walk 0.4 miles to San Diego Cellars. Registration for this event will only be open until Friday, November 21 at 6:00 pm PST. Registration for this event will only be open until Friday, November 21 at 6:00 pm PST.

BIBLICAL ART IN THE SAN DIEGO MUSEUM

Monday, November 24, 9:30 am–1:00 pm, $40

Start your day at the San Diego Art Museum with a one hour, decent-led tour of the Renaissance and Baroque, Asian, Persian, and the Art of the Americas galleries. The Museum's collections are all encompassing, with objects from across the globe, and ranging in date from 5,000 B.C. to the present. Perhaps best known for its Spanish old master paintings, the Museum holds a broad collection of European, American, Latin American, and Asian Art. Among the most important aspect of the Museum's holdings in Asian art are the world-class South Asian paintings from the encyclopedic collection of Edwin Binney III; Buddhist sculpture of China and Japan; Ukiyo-e woodblock prints; and a wide variety of ceramics, metalwork, and decorative arts ranging in date from about 1,600 BCE until the present-day. The European collection also holds strong groups of paintings ranging from the Renaissance and Baroque eras to Impressionism and Post-Impressionism. Recently, the Museum has made significant acquisitions of contemporary art and photography, and of art from Africa, Oceania, and the indigenous peoples of the Americas. You will have ample time to explore the museum on your own after the tour. The bus will drop off at Presidents Way and Pan American Plaza and participants will have to walk 0.4 miles to the Art Museum.

SAN DIEGO ZOO TRIP

The zoo houses over 3,700 animals of more than 650 species and subspecies, and pioneered the concept of open-air, cageless exhibits that re-create natural animal habitats. If you choose to enjoy the 99 acre park after 12:30 pm, the zoo will stay open until 5:00 pm, and an average one-way taxi fare is $18. RELIGIOUS ARCHITECTURE

Monday, November 24, 1:00 pm–5:00 pm, $30

This bus tour explores how San Diego's religious landscape has been shaped by a variety of immigrant communities and international contacts. It will likely include an exploration of noted architect Robert E. Des Lauriers's use of architectural modernism in the Islamic Center of San Diego (1986), formerly the Abi Bakr Al Siddiq Mosque; as well as the more traditional styles and spaces of the Spanish-revival Chinese Mission (1927), now the San Diego Chinese Historical Museum; a small Portuguese chapel on Point Loma (1922); and Our Lady of the Rosary Church (1925), a landmark church in Little Italy featuring murals by the immigrant painter Fausto Tasca. Visiting Shelter Island, the tour will also consider the mid-twentieth-century use of Polynesian architecture and Tiki decoration, including religious imagery, to evoke the free-thinking and free-living sought by many in Southern California.

As part of its efforts to produce a "greener meeting," the AAR and SBL are offering the option to offset the carbon emissions from your travel to the Annual Meetings. By checking the box on the registration form, $15 will be collected from your registration to purchase carbon offsets from *Native*Energy. The AAR's Sustainability Task Force selected *Native*Energy because of its commitment to reducing greenhouse gases while supporting its sustainability projects. *Native*Energy is one of the top carbon offset companies in the United States and the world. We encourage you to make this inexpensive commitment to helping make our meetings more environmentally friendly. To learn more about *Native*Energy, visit www.nativeenergy.com.

CONVENTION CENTER

The San Diego Convention Center has implemented an innovative environmental management system that reduces its carbon footprint while sustaining the needs of daily operations. For detailed information, see http://www.sdcc.org/facilityinformation/greenmeetings.cfm.

NAME BADGES

The bins in which you pick up your name badge holders will be converted to recyclable receptacles. Please disassemble your name badges after use and place the plastic and lanyards in corresponding bins. Recycling these badges could save 34.25 gallons of oil, 4.9 million BTUs of energy, and over 1 cubic meter of landfill space.

PROGRAM BOOK AND AT-A-GLANCE

Paper used in the Program Book and At-A-Glance is certified by the globally-recognized Sustainable Forest Initiative, which ensures that wood and paper products are from well-managed forests and is backed by a rigorous third-party certification audit. Use of recycled paper equates to a 40 percent reduction in energy versus paper made with unrecycled pulp. Recycling all Program Books would prevent over 15.8 cubic meters of landfill space; it would also save over 80 mature trees, nearly 36,667 gallons of water, 10.38 barrels of oil, and 21,297 kilowatt-hours of electricity — enough energy to power the average American home for almost two years. Also, abstracts are available online. Printing the abstracts would have used 3.3 million sheets of paper (equal to 198 trees) and added 2,970 tons of CO_2 to the atmosphere — all at an additional cost (estimated conservatively) to AAR and SBL of $30,000.

OPT-OUT OPTION

The AAR and SBL offered registrants the ability to opt out of receiving a Program Book in the mail or of having a Program Book printed for them. As of the time of this printing, 1471 registrants (18.5% of the total) opted out receiving a Program Book in the mail and 960 registrants (12% of the total) opted out of having one printed altogether. This will literally save a ton of paper, and almost 450 tons of CO2.

T3 EXPO

The SBL and AAR's event services contactor, T3 Expo, works to ensure that they are environmentally responsible in everything they do. From their open supply chain and local sourcing model, to carpeting, graphics, freight and exhibit construction, they work with partners and customers to raise environmental awareness, develop innovative solutions and establish best practices in the events industry in an effort to:

- Reduce energy consumption and waste
- Reuse inventory, and graphics
- Use recyclable products/recycle
- Use products that contain post-consumer content

ANNUAL MEETING SOAP DRIVE

Please bring your unused hotel soaps, shampoos, conditioners, lotions, and other personal hygiene products that families and homeless in need might find useful. There will be a container located in the registration area in the San Diego Convention Center where you may drop off your new items for donation.

The AAR and SBL have selected Alpha Project (http://www.alphaproject.org) to be the recipient of your donated items. The mission of the Alpha Project is to empower individuals, families, and communities by providing work, recovery, and support services to people who are motivated to change their lives and achieve self-sufficiency. The agency's many programs are available to all persons in need regardless of race, creed, color, ethnicity, national origin, religion, gender, or sexual orientation. The donations will be distributed to the 4,000 men, women, and children Alpha Project serves each day who are homeless, low income, or formerly incarcerated that struggle with substance abuse disorders, mental illnesses, physical disabilities, and other special needs. Help us make our second annual soap drive an even bigger success!

Getting Around the 2014 Annual Meeting

Primary Meeting Location

AAR and SBL sessions will be held in two locations—the San Diego Convention Center and the Hilton Bayfront. The Employment Center will be located in the Grand Hyatt. Additional meetings and receptions will be held in the Marriott Marquis & Marina and the Omni Hotel.

Distances within and between Buildings

The primary meeting hotels occupy just over a mile-long stretch along the San Diego Bay. The distances correspond with the map below, along East Harbor Drive.

- Grand Hyatt (A) to Marriott Marquis & Marina (B) – 0.3 miles
- Marriott Marquis & Marina (B) to the first door of the Convention Center (C) – 0.2 miles
- The Convention Center is 0.36 miles long and 304 feet wide. (C) to (D)
- The last door of the Convention Center (D) to the Hilton (E) – 0.2 miles

There are two ways to move to and from point (A) and point (E)—on the Boardwalk by the Bay or the sidewalk along West Harbor Drive. Both routes are wheelchair accessible, over flat terrain on a smooth concrete surface. The Boardwalk is a slightly longer distance, but offers a wider passage than the city sidewalk.

Attendees can enter the Convention Center via the multiple main entrances on West Harbor Drive, or from a side entrance near the Hilton Bayfront. There is NO entry to the Convention Center from the Boardwalk along the Bay. To get from the Marriott Marquis & Marina to the Convention Center on side (C), you must use West Harbor Drive. There is an accessible ramp on this side as well.

No Shuttle Service between the Convention Center and Other Hotels

Unlike previous years, there will NOT be shuttles available to any conference attendee.

Taxi Reimbursement

For attendees with mobility limitations, SBL or AAR will reimburse you for the cost of a private taxi to travel between official SBL and AAR meeting locations. To receive the reimbursement, please submit all taxi receipts with a letter detailing the nature of your physical disability and the Annual Meeting locations that were inaccessible. Only travel between official Annual Meeting locations (i.e., hotels and convention center) will be covered. Questions may be directed to SShahrak@aarweb.org or Trista.Krock@sbl-site.org.

Wheelchair or Electric Scooter Rental

Attendees who wish to rent a wheelchair or electric scooter for use during the Annual Meeting are welcome to contact the following provider to arrange for service:

Alternative Mobility (http://alternativemobility.net/home.html) is offering attendees a special rate for the Annual Meeting. Please be sure to tell them that you are with the SBL and AAR. Manual wheelchairs are $75 for your entire visit and power chairs are $150. Alternative Mobility will deliver the wheelchair or scooter to your hotel the night before you arrive and will pick up the scooter from the front desk at your hotel once you depart. Please call Alternative Mobility at 619-427-2525 to make individual arrangements. They suggest that you make your reservation as soon as possible to ensure availability.

Annual Meeting Program Accessibility

Assisted Listening System

We can equip any room in the Convention Center or the Hilton Bayfront with an assisted listening system. SBL or AAR will provide receivers to attendees who request them in advance. If you would like to make use of this service, please email Soraya Shahrak at SShahrak@aarweb.org by November 14.

Assisted listening services will be available in Convention Center-26, which is designated for sessions sponsored by the Religion and Disability Studies Group and the Committee on the Status of People with Disabilities. Advance notice is needed to provide assistive listening device support in other convention center rooms. If you would like to use the system, please provide us with a schedule of sessions and their room numbers as soon as possible so that the technology can be set up in advance for the sessions.

Materials in Alternative Format

Attendees who need materials in alternative formats should contact the presenters directly. If you need contact information, please email annualmeeting@sbl-site.org or annualmeeting@aarweb.org. If members inform SBL or AAR about their needs and their anticipated attendance at particular sessions, SBL or AAR staff will do their best to coordinate with presenters and session presiders to facilitate the availability of handouts or other session materials in alternative formats.

Accessibility for Presenters

The room format for Annual Meeting sessions commonly includes a podium with a microphone designed for standing presentations. Most session rooms will not have risers. Presenters who need an alternative format (such as a tabletop microphone or podium) or who anticipate a problem with the riser should contact annualmeeting@aarweb.org or annualmeeting@sbl-site.org to arrange for appropriate presentation technology.

Meeting Room Accessibility

All sessions at the Annual Meeting are accessible to attendees using wheelchairs. Meeting room chairs will be arranged to ensure two open spaces for attendees using wheelchairs.

Designated Room for Religion and Disability Studies Group Sessions

AAR has scheduled all sessions sponsored/cosponsored by the Religion and Disability Studies Group and the AAR Status of People with Disabilities in the Profession Committee in the same room at the Convention Center-26.

Sighted Guide or Mobility Assistance

Attendees who need a sighted guide or other mobility assistance to navigate the annual meeting should email Soraya Shahrak at SShahrak@aarweb.org by November 14.

Volunteer to Assist Your Colleagues

Are you able to devote a few hours of your time at the annual meeting to assist a colleague? Please contact Soraya Shahrak at SShahrak@aarweb.org if you are able to serve as a sighted guide or to provide mobility assistance during a portion of the meeting.

Employment Center Accessibility

AAR is committed to maximizing accessibility for employers and job seekers who are making use of the Employment Center. AAR can arrange for a quiet booth, to minimize noise or distraction from adjacent booths, or may be able to arrange for a private interview room if space is available. If you need a quiet room or have other accessibility needs, please contact careers@aarsbl.org by October 27 so that we can adequately accommodate you.

- The entire event program, including SBL, AAR, and Additional Meetings sessions
- Exhibitor information, including an interactive Exhibit Hall map
- Maps of the Annual Meetings hotels and Convention Center
- Find-a-Friend functionality to allow you to locate your colleagues

You can search for the app in the App Store for iOS or the Google Play store for Android using the keyword SBLAARAM14.

FOCUS ON EMPLOYMENT

The SBL and AAR have teamed up to present a series of sessions focused on academic, alt-ac, and post-academic employment. The goal of these sessions is to open a dialogue about the changing nature of academic employment and to reflect on the realities of the current job market.

Job Transitions over 40 with a PhD

Saturday, 9:00 AM-10:30 AM

Grand Hyatt-Coronado A

Changing your career at midlife isn't easy, and the PhD can be both an asset and a hindrance. This workshop will provide an overview of the specific challenges that over 40s with a PhD face in making career transitions, either into or outside of academia. We will discuss the conditions and concerns that people at midlife face and you will quickly realize that you are not alone. We will become empowered by the idea that a job is only one facet of a person's life, and nowhere is that more evident than in middle age.

We will also do some exercises to help identify skills, discuss strategies for talking about one's varied career history confidently to prospective employers and also to others. We will work on advanced elevator pitches designed for people in career transition. We will discuss the importance of networking and continuing education and discuss ways to leverage these resources in the community.

Finally we will look at some case studies of individuals who have been successful with career transitions at midlife, one who worked in religion and moved successfully to an academic career, and hear their inspiring stories and tips.

A22-245

Alt-Ac Employment in Religious Studies and Creative Careers in Church and Faith-Based Non-Profits

Saturday, 1:00 PM-3:00 PM

Grand Hyatt-America's Cup C-D

This workshop is intended to offer guidance for those with degrees in religious studies and theology who are considering careers beyond traditional teaching and tenure-track positions. The purpose is to discuss opportunities for training, strategies for seeking employment, and recommendations regarding work-life balance for employment in both faith-based and professional positions.

For those considering careers in churches and faith-based non-profits, the first presenter will offer insights into on how spiritual entrepreneurship has changed and is changing.

Topics will include:

- The diverse lifestyle expectations of spiritual leadership;
- Discernment tools to partner with the right church or non-profit;
- Supplemental skills and accreditations to build your resume and enhance your career opportunities;
- Organizational principles and accountability structures beyond the academy;
- Tips and tactics to enter the non-profit or for-profit sectors;
- Essential steps to start your own non-profit or business;

For those considering transitioning into traditional professional employment, the second presenter will discuss transitioning to alt-ac and the differences between professional recruitment and the academic employment circuit. Additionally, she will offer insights into going from a CV to a resume, how to draft application material that will appeal to a hiring manager, how to interview the interviewer, how to discover a company's culture in an hour-long interview, and what red flags to look for in professional recruitment.

Learn more about the possibilities and perils of self-employment or non-profit organizations. Learn about the attitude, integrity, skills, and collaboration required to transition from traditional academic teaching to other sectors. Learn how to repackage academic skills and experiences to fit faith-based, non-profit and professional recruitment programs.

The workshop will include presentation and dialogue, and the organizers encourage participants to discuss their own ideas for innovative careers.

A23-234

Religious Studies and Nonprofit Management

Sunday, 1:00 PM-2:30 PM

Grand Hyatt-America's Cup C-D

Recent research data indicates that students who study religion often pursue careers in nonprofit administration. Given the historical connection between religious communities and nonprofit organizations, it is natural to consider how religious studies as an academic field can collaborate with the professional training offered in nonprofit management education.

This workshop, led by the Chair of the Department of Religious Studies at Georgia State University, will reflect upon possible collaborations, using their own department's Concentration in Religion and Nonprofit Management program as a model for students seeking employment outside of the academy.

Online Pedagogies and Leveraging Online Experience in the Job Market

Sunday, 3:00 PM-4:30 PM

Grand Hyatt-America's Cup C-D

Higher education is rapidly transforming as online learning revolutionizes teaching and precipitates paradigm-shifts. Ivy Leagues schools now offer online classes for degree credit. Long-established graduate programs are going online. Purely negative assessments of the swift growth in online learning obscure the manifold opportunities and hitherto unseen vistas it presents.

This workshop explores online teaching and learning along with strategies to secure online teaching experience advantageous in the job market. Pedagogical topics surveyed will include principles for designing and teaching quality courses on par with traditional on-ground courses, utilizing course management system resources to maximize student learning outcomes, asynchronous and synchronous instruction, and tips for saving time without sacrificing instructional quality. Job-market strategies will include ways to gain online experience, develop marketable online knowledge and skill sets, and present competitive online expertise when applying for full-time positions.

Envisioning Academic Alternatives

Monday, 10:00 AM-11:30 AM

Grand Hyatt-America's Cup C-D

How do we sustain ourselves as scholars when most academic jobs are casual and part-time? The shift away from tenure-track positions has only continued, creating new financial, social, and emotional challenges for those who entered academia hoping for professorships. This new academic job market demands a creative, entrepreneurial approach to making a living — as well as the willingness to collaborate in maintaining the academy's mission to serve the public.

This workshop is designed to help academics in the Humanities and Social Sciences to approach academic work as only one part of a wider picture that potentially integrates a variety of income streams.

Participants will examine their own history and relationships to academia, and become more empowered through discovering marketable skill sets they may not know they possess. We will strategically build sustainable life strategies, considering what activities and relationships bring us real joy and can therefore be maintained in the long term.

Participants will have the opportunity to:

- Reframe the issue of work/life balance in the context of an academic career
- Describe their abilities in terms of marketable skill sets
- Consider alternatives to traditional research, teaching, publishing and academic engagement

Marketing Matters for Academics: It's Not Just a Corporate Thing!

Monday, 1:00 PM-2:30 PM

Grand Hyatt-America's Cup C-D

Contrary to popular opinion, marketing is not just a "corporate thing." It is a vital facet of commerce and public affairs. In fact, the shift in technology to all things digital has increased the significance of marketing, and all of its assets (driven in part by the exponential growth in social, new, and digital media), within industries that do not normally implement marketing, communications, or branding tactics.

Are your books available for sale? Are you called upon as an expert for the media? Do you give talks or lectures during conferences? Is your CV published online? Do you blog or write op-eds? If so, you engage in the promotional aspect of marketing. Have you been compelled to act or comment as a result of a crisis: #Bringbackourgirls, #EbolaOutbreak, #Ferguson, #Gaza, #ISIS, #MH370, or #Sewol? Crisis management and public relations are marketing functions.

Using industry lingo and popular, relatable examples, participants will learn marketing principles. Participants will also review and discuss pop culture and other case studies by industry.

Upon successful completion of this course, participants will be able to:

- Define aspects of marketing;
- Pinpoint attributes and assets that increase marketability;
- Draft a brand-driven marketing plan;

Faculty, administrators, consultants, experts/gurus, entrepreneurs, intrapreneurs, staff, career changers, and others who desire to understand and utilize marketing principles for personal or professional gain are encouraged to attend this workshop.

HOW TO USE THE PROGRAM BOOK

In response to comments from previous years' Annual Meetings surveys, and in order to better serve the needs of Annual Meetings attendees, we changed our Annual Meetings publications in a number of ways:

The Program Book is being mailed to all Annual Meeting attendees who did not opt out registered by September 18.

This Program Book contains the room assignments for all sessions. A location key is provided on the bottom of each odd numbered page. We anticipate that there will be very few changes from the time of this publication until the meeting. Any updated room assignments will be noted in the onsite At-A-Glance, which will be stuffed into attendee tote bags, and in the Mobile App.

All AAR, SBL, Related Scholarly Organizations (RSOs), Program Affiliates, and Additional Meetings sessions are listed in this Program Book. The sessions have been divided into three sections:

- AAR sessions (designated by an A#) and AAR RSO sessions (designated by a P#)
- SBL sessions (designated by an S#) and SBL Program Affiliate sessions (designated by a P#)
- Additional Meetings sessions (designated by an M#)

There is some overlap between the AAR's RSOs and SBL's Program Affiliates, and in these cases, the sessions are listed in both the AAR and SBL sections. To determine in which section to look for a session, please consult the Session Index at the back of the book.

The A/S/P/M numbers will tell you the date and time of a session. For example, A22-102 occurs on Saturday, November 22 and takes place between 9:00 AM–12:59 PM.

Session Number Key:

1–99	Begin before 9:00 AM
100–199	Begin between 9:00 AM–12:59 PM
200–299	Begin between 1:00 PM–3:59 PM
300–399	Begin between 4:00 PM–6:29 PM
400–499	Begin after 6:30 PM

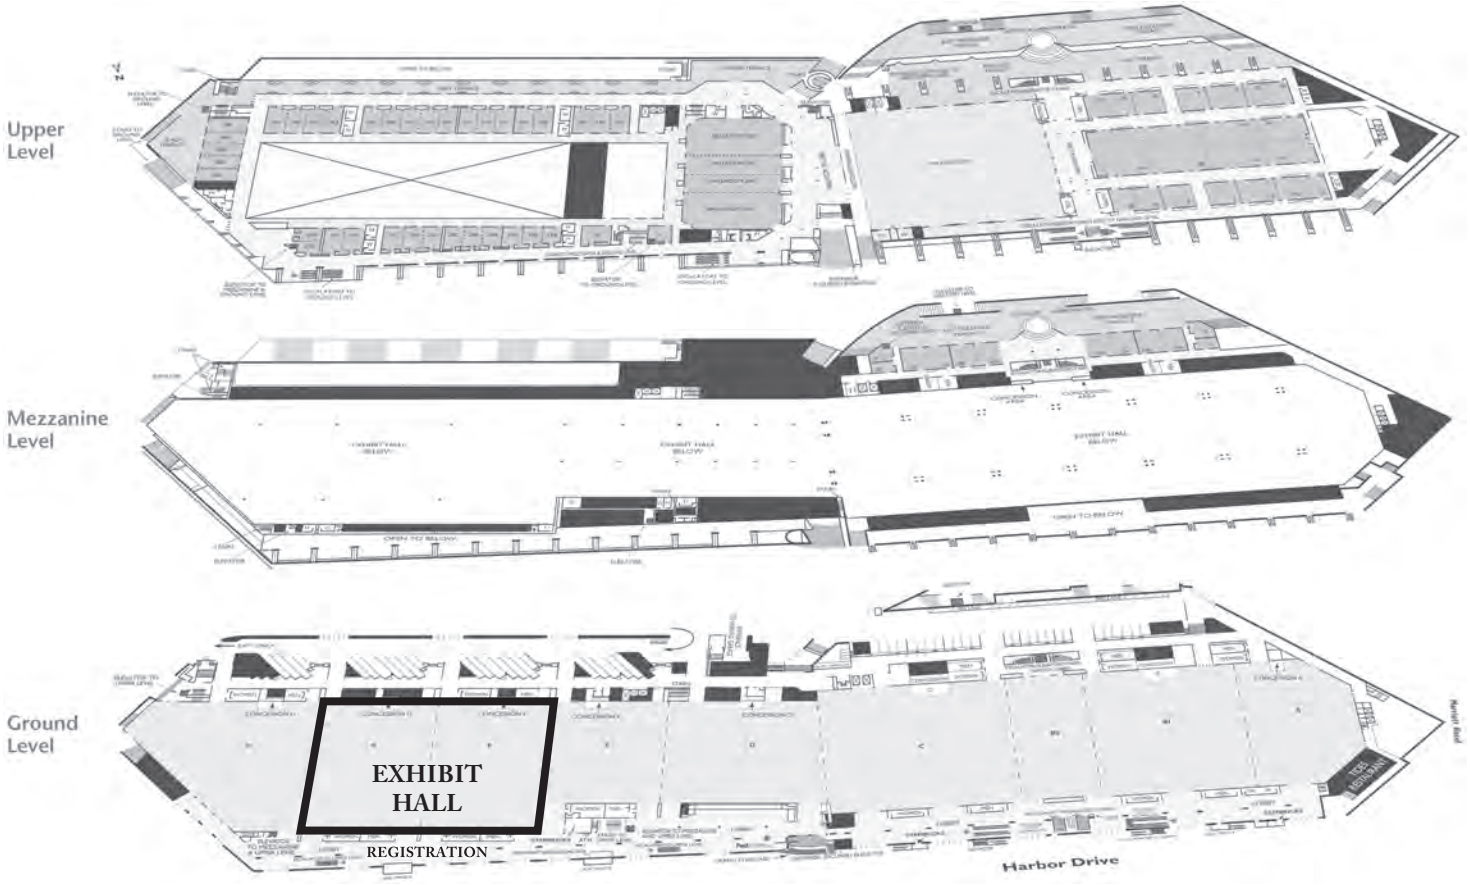

Each page has a tab marker on the side indicating the dates located on that page. Additionally, session start times are denoted by a gray header bar with the time.

Symbols located adjacent to the session number indicate sessions which highlight special subjects in the AAR program. A symbol key is provided on the bottom of each even numbered page.

Please remember to bring your Program Book to San Diego with you. We will have a very limited supply for those who forget their books at home or in their hotel room.

SOCIETY INFORMATION

The mission of the Society of Biblical Literature is to foster biblical scholarship. This mission is accomplished through seven strategic goals:

- Collaborate with educational institutions and other appropriate organizations to support biblical scholarship and teaching
- Develop resources for diverse audiences, including students, religious communities and the general public
- Encourage study of biblical literature and its cultural contexts
- Facilitate broad and open discussion from a variety of perspectives
- Offer members opportunities for mutual support, intellectual growth, and professional development as teachers and scholars
- Organize congresses for scholarly exchange
- Publish biblical scholarship

These strategic goals are, in turn, pursued through a number of SBL programs and initiatives under the leadership of SBL volunteers and staff .

Programs and Initiatives

Congresses

The Society's meetings bring together scholars from around the world to foster biblical scholarship by:

- showcasing the latest in biblical research
- fostering collegial contacts
- advancing research
- highlighting a wide range of professional issues

Annual Meeting

The North American Annual Meeting is the largest international gathering of biblical scholars in the world. Each meeting highlights the study of the Bible, archaeology, related languages and literatures, theology, religion, and contemporary issues such as the Bible in American public education. The Annual Meeting also features the world's largest exhibit of books and digital resources for biblical studies—all of which are also for sale at this congress. Members benefit from the meetings of other organizations that convene at the same time.

International Meeting

The International Meeting is held annually outside North America. Drawing between 500 and 800 attendees from over 40 countries, the size and varying locales of this meeting provide a unique and intimate forum for scholarly discourse across continents. The program draws attention to the regional interests of biblical scholarship, both in our host institution and as represented in the institutions of our attendees. The meeting usually takes place between the beginning of July and the middle of August.

Publications and Technology

SBL Publications offers a wide variety of resources for biblical studies specialists as well as students in colleges, universities, and seminaries; leaders in church and synagogue settings; and members of the general public. Books published include major reference works, commentaries, text editions and translations, scholarly monographs, tools for teaching and research, and works of general interest. In addition, the SBL serves as the exclusive distributor of all Brown Judaic Studies volumes and as the North American distributor of works by Sheffield Phoenix Press. The Journal of Biblical Literature is one of the oldest and most distinguished journals in biblical scholarship, while the online Review of Biblical Literature offers the most comprehensive review of biblical studies publications. The Society also sponsors the online journal TC: A Journal of Biblical Textual Criticism and The Online Critical Pseudepigrapha. Finally, the Society continues to provide leadership for font development, markup standards, and digitization of primary sources through partnerships with museums and related institutions.

The Profession

Career Resources

The Society provides resources for employment and professional development information in a variety of ways. Through its Annual Meeting, the Society offers career development and job listing and interview resources, with which employers are able to list job openings online for member access, and members are able to register to display their Curriculum Vitae and interview with employers. Beginning in 2011, SBL and AAR held their Annual Meetings concurrently, as well as one jointly sponsored Employment Center at the Annual Meetings. The Center includes all of the services AAR and SBL have offered independently, including the ability to list jobs online and to display candidate credentials and register for interviews. Plans are underway to create a single job-listing site, which will be managed jointly by SBL and AAR. The societies also offer helpful events such as panel reviews of pertinent topics that focus on the "how to" of the application and job-interview process.

Career Development Committee

The SBL Professional Development Committee addresses the variety of needs that arise throughout the career life cycle of all the society's members. Its major responsibilities are to:

- focus on all aspects of the career landscape and life cycle, including the ways in which our members' identities and personal lives intersect with their careers
- develop resources for members in all institutional locations
- educate members regarding professional issues, especially when new concerns arise (e.g., the rise of adjunct positions over tenure track, cultural taxation, retirement planning in a depressed economy)
- advocate with other organizations on behalf of the interests and needs of members

International Cooperation Initiative

The Society's International Cooperation Initiative (ICI) was launched in 2007, and each year SBL has seen growth in participation and interest from scholars and students from all over the globe. From the initial organizational meeting in Vienna to this 2014 gathering in the same city, ICI has established an online depository of published resources available freely to anyone in ICI countries; initiated two online, open-access monograph series; set up a communications network of liaisons; sponsored a database of scholars to facilitate scholarly exchange, mentoring programs, and possibilities for collaborative teaching; provided over four hundred students and scholars in ICI countries with special rates for SBL membership; and maintained a calendar of events covering biblical studies and related conferences all over the world.

ICI Online Books

The Online Book depository now has over four hundred titles from SBL and our publishing partners: Brown Judaic Studies, Catholic Biblical Association, Fortress Press, Gorgias Press, Sheffield Phoenix Press, Westminster John Knox, and Wiley-Blackwell.

Open-Access Monograph Series

Ancient Near East Monographs (ANEM) is a co-publication effort between SBL and the Centro de Estudios de Historia del Antiguo Oriente at the Universidad Católica Argentina. The series currently has seven published titles available online, with five of the titles available through print-on-demand.

International Voices in Biblical Studies (IVBS) is guided by an editorial board comprised of international scholars. The series is designed to provide a venue for publication and distribution of scholarly work from all areas of the world, and to particularly make the excellent scholarship from underresourced areas available to the more traditional centers of biblical scholarship. The five titles published to date are all available online or through print-on-demand.

ICI Liaison Network

In order to facilitate worldwide communications, the Liaison Network engages scholars in ICI countries to facilitate the two-way flow of information pertaining to SBL and global biblical scholarship. A monthly newsletter serves the ICI liaisons and other interested parties by providing updates to conferences, publications, and other SBL news.

ICI Scholarly Exchange

SBL hosts two databases that allow scholars, students, and institutions to establish contact and make arrangements for various types of scholarly exchange. Members have discovered opportunities to teach in other countries and have found creative ways to use technology in order to share teaching experiences with classrooms on other continents.

Global Participation in the SBL Annual Meeting

SBL has committed to engage scholars and students who would not otherwise have opportunities to participate in the Annual Meeting by transmitting live broadcasts of selected sessions. In 2013, sessions were broadcast from the Baltimore meeting to groups in Bolivia, Brazil, Egypt, Ghana, India, Nigeria, Peru, Poland, South Africa, and Ukraine. Plans for the 2014 San Diego meeting include a continuation of this program, with hopes of engaging audiences from additional countries.

Status of Women in the Profession Committee

The Status of Women in the Profession Committee encourages the participation of women in all areas of biblical studies. In pursuit of this mandate, the committee focuses its efforts in the areas of mentoring, networking, and opening biblical studies to greater participation by women. Funding is given for a limited number of non–North American women to attend congresses.

Student Advisory Board

Started in 2005, the purpose of this advisory group is to coordinate student participation across all Society activities, committees, and programs in an effort to foster greater opportunities for student participation and leadership development. The explicit goals of this group are to:

- facilitate a greater connection between students and the Society with a view toward lifetime membership, volunteer involvement, and leadership
- provide resources and programming specifically geared toward student members
- to develop and groom the next generation of leaders

Underrepresented Racial and Ethnic Minorities Committee
The Underrepresented Racial and Ethnic Minorities in the Profession Committee has long supported the recruitment and mentoring of racial and ethnic minority students from among the African American, Asian, Hispanic, and Native American populations.

Regions
Throughout the academic year, the regions coordinate lectures and conferences that keep the regions active and up to date in the latest biblical research and teaching. These meetings provide an intimate setting for scholarly exchange.

Regional Scholars Program
The eleven regions identify exemplary new scholars, particularly women and underrepresented minorities, for consideration and selection as one of the Society's Regional Scholars. A maximum of six regional scholars are selected each year and given stipends to cover a portion of the cost of attending the Annual Meeting.

Administration
The work of the Society is guided by its Council and is administered through SBL's professional staff and key volunteers who serve on various committees.

The Council consists of fourteen members of the Society and the Executive Director. This board approves general policies.

PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS (S22-401)

Criticism in Critical Times: Reflections on Vision and Task

Saturday, November 22, 7:00 PM–8:00 PM • San Diego Convention Center, Room 20A

Fernando F. Segovia, Oberlin Graduate Professor of New Testament and Early Christianity at Vanderbilt University Divinity School, will deliver the 2014 SBL Presidential Address.

Athalya Brenner, Tel Aviv University, Presiding

Fernando Francisco Segovia Guerra is a first-generation immigrant to the United States. He was born and grew up in La Habana, Cuba, where he attended the Catholic school system through the first year of secondary education. He and his family came to the United States on a visa waiver as political refugees, settling in New York City. There he finished his secondary education in the Catholic school system. Upon graduation, he decided to pursue studies toward the priesthood, under the auspices of the Archdiocese of La Habana, and was sent to the Pontifical College Josephinum in Columbus, Ohio, where he received a B.A. in philosophical studies and undertook theological studies. In the aftermath of the Second Vatican Council and its reforms, he put aside the goal of the ordained ministry and began graduate studies as a lay person. He joined the doctoral program in Jewish and Christian Antiquity in the Department of Theology at the University of Notre Dame, earning both the M.A. and Ph.D.

Segovia began his professional career in 1977 as Assistant Professor in the Department of Theology at Marquette University, where he taught for seven years. Since 1984 he has been at Vanderbilt University, where he is affiliated with the Divinity School, the Graduate Department of Religion, and the Center for Latin American Studies. He presently holds the Oberlin Graduate Chair in New Testament and Early Christianity. He is also Professor Extraordinary in the Old & New Testament Division in the Faculty of Theology at Stellenbosch University in the Republic of South Africa.

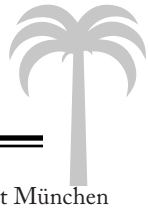

Segovia's interests lie in both Biblical Studies and Theological Studies. As a critic, he was formed in the context of historical criticism, specializing at first in the area of Johannine Studies. With the new winds blowing in the field in the late 1970s and early 1980s, he developed an interest in both literary and sociocultural criticism. Afterwards, from the mid 1980s, he pursued work in various directions: matters of method and theory; the history of the field; the problematic of contextualization; the relation of biblical criticism to other academic fields of studies; and ideological criticism, with particular focus on the conjunction with Postcolonial, Racial-Ethnic, and Materialist Studies. Such work has addressed not only the production and distribution but also the reception and appropriation of the texts of antiquity. As a theologian, he was influenced by Political Theology and Liberation Theology. His areas of interest have revolved around the religious-theological production of the Global South, especially Latin America and the Caribbean, as well as of racial-ethnic minoritized groups in the Global North, above all that of Latino/a Americans. He is a past President of the Association of Catholic Hispanic Theologians in the United States.

Segovia's publications are many, including twenty-one authored, edited, or co-edited volumes, with several more underway. The most recent include: Latino/a Biblical Criticism: Visions and Tasks (2014), The Future of the Biblical Past (2012), and They Were All Together in One Place? Toward Minority Criticism (2009). He has lectured and taught widely, nationally as well as internationally. Most recently, he served as the Dom Hélder Câmara Visiting Professor for Liberation and Justice at the Free University of Amsterdam. Over the years, he has been a member of many editorial boards, including at present Biblical Interpretation, the Journal for the Study of the New Testament, and Horizontes Decoloniales; has functioned as consultant for many publishing houses and critical projects, such as Postcolonial Networks; and taken part in countless projects on criticism and theology, like Intercultural Biblical Reading.

Within the Society of Biblical Literature, his positions and duties have been many. He has been chair or co-chair of multiple program units, both at the Annual Meeting and the International Meeting. Nowadays, he serves in this capacity with respect to Minoritized Criticism and Biblical Interpretation as well as Cultural Studies and Early Christian Studies. He also has formed part of various groups and formations: Council; Nominations Committee (chair); Program Committee; Underrepresented Ethnic and Racial Committee; and SBL Executive Search Committee (chair). Further, he has been asked to serve as Chair of the new Task Force on Global Initiative.

In the end, of all his academic and professional achievements, Segovia takes particular pride in the many doctoral students throughout the world on whose Dissertation Board he has sat, including the more than thirty doctoral students for whom he has had the honor and privilege of serving as Director.

SBL Paul and the Apocalyptic Imagination

12:30 PM–5:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront – 300 A (Level 3 (Aqua))

Across various branches of biblical and theological study, there is a renewed interest in "apocalyptic". This development is seen particularly in the study of Paul's theology, where it is now widely agreed that Paul promotes an "apocalyptic theology". However, there is little agreement on what this means. Scholars from different perspectives have, as a result, continued to talk past each other. This special session provides an opportunity for leading Pauline scholars from different perspectives to engage in discussion about the meaning of Paul as an apocalyptic thinker. Indeed, one of the strengths and aims of this event is that different and opposing views are set next to each other. The session will hopefully bring greater clarity to the "apocalyptic" reading of Paul by providing much needed definition to central terms and interpretive approaches and by highlighting both their strengths and weaknesses.

SBL Principles and Strategies for Analyzing NT Greek Discourse

1:00 PM–4:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront – 311 A (Level 3 (Aqua))

Theme: Workshop: Pre-registration Required

There is growing interest in linguistic approaches to NT exegesis, but non-specialists face a formidable barrier of background knowledge and jargon before obtaining any practical benefit. This interactive workshop offers scholars and graduate students an opportunity to learn basic principles of discourse analysis and discourse grammar and then apply them to practical exegetical problems in the Greek text. Although these presentations are based on original research, none will require anything more than a basic background in Greek and an interest in seeing what the field of linguistics and discourse studies has to offer. Registration is required and is available through Annual Meetings registration. Space is limited.

Theme: Pre-Conference Workshop Co-sponsored by SARTS: Teaching Visual Arts in Religious Studies and Theology Classrooms

Pre-registration is required for this event and limited to the first 50 registrants. To register, contract Trish Overpeck at overpecp@wabash.edu.

This workshop will provide faculty with various strategies and methods for teaching the visual arts in religious studies and theology classrooms. Participants will explore a range of ways by which specific pedagogical methods can help students engage the visual arts as loci for the study of religious studies, theology, ethics, bible, etc. Specific attention will be given to the following pedagogical methods: a dialogical method that sees artist, art, and the viewer (theologian, ethicists, whoever) in conversation with the viewer drawing on material from other disciplines; a method that considers the role of material evidence, which means beginning with methodological questions in order to engage students (and colleagues no less) in the definition of evidence in historical and cultural analysis; and a method that attends to the ethics of observation as part of the hermeneutics of visual cultures, including the viewer's gaze.

Workshop participants will explore both meta-level questions about engaging the visual arts and explore specific strategies for teaching visual arts in contemporary higher educational contexts through a range of questions. The pre-meeting workshop will include mini-lectures, plenary conversations, and small group work. In addition, participants will be exposed to materials for study and teaching including: methods of visual analysis, ethics of inquiry, exhibition practices, subject areas (Christianity, Buddhism, Islam, etc.), theories of visual culture, and so on.

Theme: Research Group: Scripture in Global Context

One effect of globalization is an increasing consensus that biblical and theological discourse can no longer be a solely Western phenomenon. As Christianity continues to expand in the global South and East, demand has grown for thoughtful theological analysis that addresses the concerns of the majority of Christians. This study group aims to harness this promising moment by addressing both classical and non-traditional theological loci through engagement with the best resources from non- Western Christianity, bringing them into dialog with each other and Western thought. For information contact Gene Green (gene.green@wheaton.edu) and K. K. Yeo (kkyeo@garrett.edu). See further http://www.ibr-bbr.org (Research Groups: Scripture in Global Context). This year's session will focus on Pneumatology. Presenters will summarize their papers followed by discussion. Theme: Research Group: Book of the Twelve Prophets in Biblical Scholarship

The purpose of this IBR research group is to provide a diverse professional forum to examine the Book of the Twelve Prophets. While a broad variety of approaches will be accepted and encouraged, this study session will be particularly interested in synchronic readings of the Book of the Twelve, including, but not limited to, discourse analysis, linguistic analysis, and literary analysis. Discussion may involve development of past theories, discussions of methodology, as well as developing new approaches to study the corpus or individual books within the Book of the Twelve. The following represent potential topics for discussion to facilitate further conversation: (1) The impact of synchronic readings of Book of the Twelve as a corpus; (2) How synchronic approaches impact understanding the theology, themes, metaphors, etc. of the Book of the Twelve; (3) Focused study of individual books of the Book of the Twelve; (4) Intertextuality and intratextuality in the Book of the Twelve (examples include: allusion from other parts of the Old Testament within the Book of the Twelve either as a corpus or in terms of individual books, allusion between different parts of the Book of the Twelve, or allusions from the Book of the Twelve in later writings). For further information contact Beth M. Stovell at bstovell@ambrose.edu and Colin Toffelmire at CToffelmire@ambrose.edu and see http://www.bbr-ibr.org (Research Groups: The Book of the Twelve Prophets in Biblical Scholarship).

SBL Embodied Students and Educators: Negotiating Gender, Sexuality, and Race in the Classroom

1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center – Room 16 A (Mezzanine level)

Theme: Hosted by the Student Advisory Board

If we're lucky, we have a chance to teach in our field while earning our graduate degrees. A precious few might even receive some training in pedagogy from their institutions. However, one area that deserves more attention and training is how we should negotiate the classroom as embodied educators teaching embodied students. How do we address challenges that arise from differences in gender, sexual, and racial identifications? In what ways do such identifications intersect in the classroom? How do we enable inclusive classrooms? Such matters are particularly sensitive for graduate student educators who need to prove their legitimacy to a host of established interests, including their students. Panelists will share their own experiences as well as offer helpful pedagogical practices for current graduate students who are training to be educators.

Theme: Sexual Violence and Sacred Texts

Violence against wo/men is inscribed in the Scriptures of all 3 monotheistic religions: Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Feminist scholars in religion are well versed in analyzing and interpreting sacred texts in critical, historical, literary, and cultural terms but we have less developed methods of conscientization or consciousness-raising for enabling wo/men who have experienced sexual abuse to work through such sacred texts of violence in bible, TaNaKh and Qu'ran . The panel will seek to engender conversation across religious interpretive boundaries and to identify methods of interpretation that could engender a process of healing from sexual violence and abuse perpetrated in and through Sacred Scriptures.

SBL Persons with Disability Issues in the Academy

1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center – Room 30 E (Upper level)

Theme: Hosted by the Student Advisory Board

This session aims to illuminate the barriers faced by scholars and students experiencing disabilities—including mental health disabilities, chronic illness, invisible physical, and sensory disabilities, chronic fatigue and chronic pain, as well as those who identify with the neurodiversity movement or who are on the autism spectrum. The session features three scholars who have navigated the academic world with a disability. This panel will examine issues of negotiating disclosure, navigating physical conference and classroom restrictions, and highlight the institutions and individuals who are working to create policies and practices that improve accessibility. As of now, there is no panel addressing these concerns in the SBL at large, and it is the hope of the panel that graduate students with disabilities will find this panel a source of networking and support for their future academic work.

SBL Sacred Texts and Public Life Seminar

1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront – Sapphire Ballroom I (Level 4 (Sapphire))

Theme: (Im)migration, Borders, and the Other

This session supports the discussion of the way sacred texts, and especially the Bible, play a role in and intersect with public policies. We hope to bring people and institutions together to unravel the past relationships of sacred texts and public policies and envision new ways to shape this lively intersection. With its proximity to U.S.-Mexico border, this year's meeting in San Diego will play off of the themes of (im)migration, borders, and the other. Participants will answer these questions: How would you describe the nexus "sacred texts and public life," itself a border of sorts? Who are the (im)migrants, border-crossers, others in this conjunction? Who/what is (il)legal or sacred/profane? In your view, what is the status of this conversation both in scholarship and in the public? In your view, what are the major points in the conversation? If you were to explain to a class of incoming freshmen why they should develop critical awareness related to the topic (sacred texts and public life vis-à-vis borders), what would you say?

4:00 PM–5:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront – 303 (Level 3 (Aqua))

After more than twenty years, a new edition of the UBS Greek New Testament is now available: UBS5 is here. The most widely used edition of the Greek New Testament in the world is now available in a fundamentally revised edition. This session will highlight the most important changes. Improvements and new features that apply to the complete New Testament will be explained. We will also discuss the principles of the revision of the Catholic Epistles, illustrating how the edition has been made consistent with the "Editio Critica Maior". —Together with Hendrickson Publishers, the German Bible Society has also published a Reader's Edition of the Biblia Hebraica Stuttgartensia (BHS). The BHS: A Reader's Edition is a valuable tool for beginners in Biblical Hebrew who wish to read the text of the pre-eminent edition of the Hebrew OT with translations of words used less than 70 times and parsing information provided at the bottom of each page.

SBL Poverty in the Biblical World Section

4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center – Room 5 B (Upper level)

Theme: The Common Good and Community Responsibility in Response to Poverty

The Bible is filled with texts that assume people's right to a livelihood, often emphasizing the community's collective responsibility for ensuring their members' economic well-being. The Hebrew Bible contains a rich array of customs, laws, prophecies, teachings, and even royal propaganda that articulate community and/or state responsibility for people's economic sufficiency. Gospel texts of covenant renewal insist upon mutual aid and cooperation. Paul engages in a "collection for the poor." Such biblical texts stand in stark contrast to eroding public values and the idea of "the common good" in public discourse today. This session will turn to key texts on the collective responsibility of responding to poverty in maintaining the common good, understood in their historical contexts and pertinence for addressing poverty in the modern world.

SBL The Prospects and Pitfalls of Students Participating in Academic Conferences

4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center – Room 31 B (Upper level)

Theme: Hosted by the Student Advisory Board

Increasingly we as graduate students feel the pressure to participate and present research in academic conferences. Each year the number and variety of conferences continues to expand. However, we rarely discuss the assets and liabilities of participating in a public forum. What do we potentially gain or lose by attending scholarly meetings? How does one plan a graduate conference at their home institution? How do we pick which conference to submit that seminar paper? Such issues are a central concern for graduate students negotiating the profession. Panelists will share from their own experiences as well as offer advice for current graduate students training to become specialist researchers.

SBL Bible in Ancient and Modern Media Section

9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Theme: Difficult Reputations in Media and Memory: The Work of Gary Fine

Gary Alan Fine (Professor of Sociology, Northwestern University) has drawn attention to "difficult reputations," the dynamics of and debates over the memory of figures such as Joseph McCarthy and Warren Harding. The social dynamics of remembering and invoking ambiguous and/or villainous figures differ from the use of heroic reputations. Sometimes the differences are striking. In this invited panel, Fine presents his social theory of reputation-making, followed by responses that suggest potential applications of Fine's reputation research to texts from second-temple and Rabbinic Judaism and early Christianity. This discussion advances the recent interest in social memory research and its potential for historical questions pertaining to ancient Judaism and Christian origins.

The papers on this panel treat one or more of the less studied senses (taste, touch, olfaction, kinesthesia, proprioception) and relate the sense(s) under study to larger questions, such as social order, cosmology, cognition, embodiment, or cultural values.

Theme: Hosted by the Student Advisory Board

In today's world, the academic world is often perceived as detached from political and policy conversations in this country. This panel features prominent scholars in the field of biblical studies who balance academic research with social justice concerns. The speakers will speak to graduate students and young scholars about successfully navigating the world of academia while maintaining their passion for engaging contemporary issues. While each speaker will tailor their remarks to their particular experiences and viewpoints around these issues, they have been asked to think about the professional aspect of maintaining these commitments. Questions which will be important for our speakers to address include the process of translating academic research for a popular audience and the role of a scholar in raising awareness of issues of social injustice. Forming young scholars who can articulate the ways that contemporary injustice motivates historical and biblical inquiry promises to allow for greater contact between the university and our larger society.

SBL Navigating the New Publishing Landscape

1:00 PM–2:30 PM

Convention Center – Room 17 A (Mezzanine level)

Theme: A Conversation with Publishers, Librarians, and Scholars

Academic publishing has gone through major changes over the past decade years. These changes – e.g., the emergence of digital, new online research habits, shrinking in library budgets, unsettled legal and administrative framework surrounding copyright – have upended long-standing conventions and models. Publishing is in turmoil, with unclear consequences for scholarship and scholars. We propose a high-level discussion to address some of the key challenges in scholarly publishing and their impact on the production and dissemination of scholarly knowledge, as well as on academic careers.

Some of the topics we will address include: the changing economics of scholarly publishing, access concerns (open access: What is it? What does it mean for the dissemination of scholarly work? What are its consequences for copyrights and long-term sustainability? Embargoes, institutional repositories and online archives), digital publishing (print vs. electronic format: the future of the monograph and implications for scholars; new avenues for scholarly publishing; copyright and reuse policies; t&p issues), peer review innovations and pitfalls, collaboration, and metrics for assessing scholarly research.

Translating Alterity

1:00 PM-3:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront - AB (Level 3 (Aqua))

Theme: Altering Translation

This special session will explore questions of alterity and process in translation, inspired by Michael Cronin's 2013 Translation in the Digital Age. Blending translation theory, media studies and materialist cultural analysis, Cronin suggests we consider the present Digital Age as the Age of Translation, characterized by an "interaction society of translators" participating in the "intransitive excess" of translation. This fast-paced participatory session will offer a series of short (5 minute) experiments stimulated by Cronin's work as seeds for extended discussion.

SBL Writing/Reading Jeremiah Section

1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront – 307 (Level 3 (Aqua))

Theme: Cultural Production of "the Body" in Jeremiah.

Key discursive moments in Jeremiah narrate the "body" of Judah and the "body" of the prophet Jeremiah. This panel seeks to theorize ways in which ancient and contemporary cultural production of "the body" (Jeremiah's, Judah's) inscribes relations of power and vulnerability. Interdisciplinary investigations of embodiment are encouraged.

GOCN Forum on Missional Hermeneutics

4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center – Room 8 (Upper level)

Theme: Reflecting on Paul and Missional Hermeneutics: A Conversation with N. T. Wright

In "Paul and the Faithfulness of God," N. T. Wright identifies three major motifs that characterize the heart of Paul's theology, focusing on the one God of Israel, the people of God, and God's future for the world. This dynamic interaction between theology, ecclesiology, and eschatology has been a major and recurring interest in the work of the GOCN Forum on Missional Hermeneutics as well. In this session, Wright will draw together themes from his treatment of Paul that focus upon and illumine specifically the sense of the mission in which the people of God are called to participate. How does this mission originate in the Bible's portrayal of who God is and what God is up to? How does this mission reshape the way we think about what it means to be the people of God? And how does this mission shape the hope to which we are called? Please join us for what promises to be a fascinating panel discussion (featuring biblical scholars N. T. Wright, Sylvia Keesmaat, Michael J. Gorman, and James V. Brownson) and open conversation about the missiological dimensions of Paul's theology in Wright's work.

This session gathers scholars working on the Textual History of the Ethiopic Old Testament project to present the outcomes of research on several specific books of the Old Testament, to develop a picture of the textual history that emerges, and to plan the future direction of the project. This session invites presenters and attendees from those participating in the project, or from others working on Ethiopian manuscripts, or manuscripts from other traditions who feel that they could make a contribution to the development of this project.

SBL John's Apocalypse and Cultural Contexts Ancient and Modern Section

9:00 AM–11:15 AM

Hilton Bayfront – D (Level 3 (Aqua))

Theme: A Bad Translation of the Book of Revelation

Translators always improve the readability and register of the Revelation of John, giving readers an inaccurate and misleading impression of the text. The Bad Translation attempts to render the rough Koine Greek into appropriately rough Standard American English. In this session the panel will take specific portions of the Bad Translation and discuss the problems and possibilities of such an approach. Among other things, it raises questions of the implications of translation for education, socio-economic status, gender, reception, religious practice, and canon.

Theme: Labor and Migration I

This session will consider how the study of labor, migration, and their interconnections, have impacted biblical studies. This session will explore how particular approaches to labor and migration—-as both separate and interconnected themes and as both theoretical and social scientific foci—-have been employed within scriptures and as practices surrounding scriptures. We will particularly attend to how communities negotiate labor and migration across dynamics of power (e.g. historical, linguistic, racial, ethnic, cultural, gender, sexual, differently-abled, human/non-human dynamics). We will examine how labor and migration have framed and been understood, contextualized, theorized, and practiced in the bible, in its interpretation, and in its political and religious uses. This session will comprise a panel on labor and migration as well as a "study together" session following the panel that more deeply excavates particular theoretical texts and issues in the conjunction of labor, migration, and biblical studies.

SBL History and Literature of Early Rabbinic Judaism Section / Healthcare and Disability in the Ancient World Section

1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center – Room 26 AB (Upper level)

Theme: Corporeality and Difference: Animality, Disability, and Gender in Rabbinic Literature

This panel brings together scholars working on rabbinic literature through the lenses of animal studies, disability studies, gender studies, queer theory, and sensory studies. Through critical examination of texts centered on animal bodies, gender-blurred embryos, blemished brides, blind sages, and the androgynous, we aim to consider how bodily difference and corporeal deviance is marked and managed in rabbinic literature. The panel aims to examine the theoretical and textual overlaps and blurred edges between these identity categories, about the way in which animality becomes gendered, for example, or how women's disability becomes particularly fraught through the sexual charge rabbinic culture affords to men's visual engagement with women's bodies. This is a joint session with the AAR Animals and Religion Group, Religion and Disability Studies Group.

Joint session with Teaching Religion (AAR). This session addresses classroom implementation of ideas generated from Cultivating the Spirit: How College Can Enhance Students' Inner Lives by Alexander W. Astin, Helen S. Astin, and Jennifer A. Lindholm (Josey-Bass, 2010). The authors first present findings from their longitudinal study of faculty and more than 14,000 students attending a diverse sample of 136 institutions. After the break, the participants will be seated in groups of 8-10 at separate tables where they will have the opportunity to explore possible action agendas to promote discussion and reflection about the role of religion and spirituality in academic life on their campuses: how it can be done; obstacles and challenges to overcome. Each table will give a brief oral report on its deliberations to the whole group.

SBL Wisdom of the Ages

1:00 PM–2:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront – 411 B (Level 4 (Sapphire))

Theme: Encountering the Temple Scroll with Lawrence H. Schiffman

We welcome you to a discussion of the myriad professional issues represented among SBL members. With the hope of establishing recurring sessions, this group will focus on the academic and professional wisdom of SBL's elders and provide opportunities for transferring such wisdom, cultivating mentoring relationships, and engaging the generational gamut in the processes of reflection and preparation. Our hope is that scholars and teachers "wise in years" would join us to discuss the current state of the profession, sharing information and techniques across generations, and mentoring scholars and teachers as they shape their own insights and felt-needs.

Professor Lawrence Schiffman will take us through the many steps involved in studying a text from the Temple Scroll. We will see how he analyzes the textual character and relation to Scripture, the relevant Qumran and Second Temple parallels, Rabbinic and other materials. We will see how these various resources all contribute to understanding the specific text and the scroll as a whole. The session will be self-reflective from the points of view of method, history of the field and wider historical context. Finally, the session will include reflections on the state of Dead Sea Scrolls study.

Theme: Labor and Migration II

This session will consider how the study of labor, migration, and their interconnections, have impacted biblical studies. This session will explore how particular approaches to labor and migration—-as both separate and interconnected themes and as both theoretical and social scientific foci-—have been employed within scriptures and as practices surrounding scriptures. We will particularly attend to how communities negotiate labor and migration across dynamics of power (e.g. historical, linguistic, racial, ethnic, cultural, gender, sexual, differently-abled, human/non-human dynamics). We will examine how labor and migration have framed and been understood, contextualized, theorized, and practiced in the bible, in its interpretation, and in its political and religious uses.

The second session will focus on pedagogy (how to teach labor, migration, and biblical studies) for the first half and then mentoring in the second half. The mentoring session will include small groups facilitated by the participants listed under the mentoring part of the program. Students who do 'non-traditional' scholarly work, along the lines of any of the co-sponsoring program units, are encouraged to come with their questions and concerns about doctoral applications, conference papers, job market, or dissertations.

The session will conclude with a panel of scholars who blog (including Chris Keith and Anthony Le Donne, among others), talking about key moments in the intersection of academic blogging and Biblical studies from recent months. One of the great things about blogging is that it allows discussion of Biblical studies and other academic news over the course of the year. This panel thus makes room for discussion of topics that could not be foreseen when the program was finalized in April. Expect mention of specific topics and panelists on the scholarly blogs prior to November!

Theme: Meals and Sacrifices: The Limits and Overlap Between the Two

The goal of this session is to probe the continuum between ritual consumption and sacrifice. Papers in this session could address questions such as the following: How are the practices of each—and their textual depictions and theoretical reflections (e.g., ordinances in Leviticus)—both related and also different? Why might some texts choose to focus on "sacrificial" aspects and others on "meal" aspects? Or can these be separated? What is the significance of sacrifices that do not include meals and meals that do not carry sacrificial implications? How do textual, iconographic, or archaeological data clarify the overlap and limits between meals and sacrifice?

SBL Poverty in the Biblical World Section / Economics in the Biblical World Section

4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront – Sapphire Ballroom P (Level 4 (Sapphire))

Theme: Control and Resistance: Migration, Labor, and Poverty

Institutions and centers of power in the ancient and modern world have sought to control and "put to use" populations deemed problematic or disposable with policies and mechanisms that sentence people to poverty, coerce labor, and/or disrupt or force migration. Yet people have resisted or eluded such attempts at control of their lives and labor in creative and constructive ways. This session will examine the ways in which religious texts and traditions feed public discourse that legitimizes or obscures operations of control or interrogate or liberate people from such control. We will explore the pedagogical and hermeneutical practices biblical scholars may use to draw awareness to these dynamics of control and resistance and develop accountability in biblical scholarship to how people insisting on their rights today are engaging forces of domination. We are honored to welcome the expertise of two panelists outside the field of biblical studies. Pardis Mahdavi, an expert in the area of gendered labor, human trafficking and migration. Herman Kumara shepherds the thousands-strong fisher people's movement in Sri Lanka that is fighting for food sovereignty and rights to the coastline for fishers in the face of rapid development for tourism. Mahdavi and Kumara will help us explore questions of scholarly accountability to people working for rights and freedom under dominating control today (corporate, political, interpersonal) and open new questions and arenas for biblical scholars to consider in their own pedagogy and research.

SBL Religious Competition in Late Antiquity Section

4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center – Room 5 B (Upper level)

Theme: From within the Ivory Tower: Religious Experts and the 99%

The study of religion and philosophy in antiquity is largely dependent upon analyzing the literary remains of a tiny percentage of elite, educated individuals whose writings largely reflect the competition between themselves and other members of this elite group. We know far less about the religious beliefs and practices of the vast amount of men and women who could not read or write or who were not involved as cultural producers with a stake in the religion game. It is generally acknowledged that the views of religious experts were not necessarily reflective of the views of the (now silent) majority. However, the relationship between religious experts and non-experts was not one of complete disconnect, but often of active engagement, of critique, of encouragement, and of manipulation. This session will examine the various ways in which religious experts sought to shape the beliefs and practices of their lay audience, the ways in which they garnered popular support in their battles with other elites.

Theme: Eastern Christian Spirituality: Perspectives on Ecology, Nature, the Body, and States of the Soul

Understandings of theology and ecology mirror, mimic, and morph each other. They bring new sets of knowledge to each other to produce newer, deeper forms of knowledge. As humans live within these spheres of knowledge in ecology and theology, they must live within their own bodies which place them within the natural and spiritual world(s) in more than only physical, mental, or spiritual beings. The papers in this panel attempt to engage the development of these various ecologies and theologies as they are both envisioned and embodied. The Ethiopic tradition bears as many marks of originality as it does marks of external influence. Influences come from Christian traditions—like the Greek, Syriac, and Armenian—but also from Jews and Muslims in the Horn of Africa. Ethiopian theologians and community leaders developed their own sense of identity and expressed these in their form of the biblical text (unique in form and extent) and in various works of literature. This session invites a vibrant discussion on these themes.

9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Theme: Fighting over Fingerbones: the Competition for Relics in Late Antiquity

This session will explore the role of relics – the venerated remains of "holy individuals" and the objects with which they came into contact – in Greco-Roman religions, Judaism, Christianity, and Islam in late antiquity. This includes the bodies, bones, or ashes of saints, heroes, martyrs, priests, biblical figures, founders of religious traditions, and other holy men and women, as well as the objects that they once owned and, by extension, things that were once in physical contact with them. Like other forms of material culture, relics played significant roles in the formative ages of ancient Mediterranean religions. We invite papers on late-antique religious texts and material culture that unearth the role that these items played in identity formation, religious competition, political propaganda, and the so-called "parting of the ways" between Judaism and Christianity.

NOTES

ACADEMY INFORMATION

AAR MEMBERSHIP INFORMATION

With almost 10,000 members, the American Academy of Religion (AAR) is the world's largest organization serving teachers, scholars, and other professionals in the field of religion. AAR members are affiliated with institutions of higher education, and are also media and publishing professionals, clergy, independent scholars, high school teachers, and nonprofit community workers. The professional diversity of the AAR's membership reflects the substantial and growing role religion plays in the lives of individuals and communities as well as social, political, and economic events worldwide. Through academic conferences and meetings, publications, and a variety of programs and membership services, the Academy fosters excellence in the scholarship and teaching of religion.

The AAR holds a seat on the American Council of Learned Societies and works cooperatively with other associations in promoting the academic study of religion. Membership is open to all who share an interest in this field and in supporting the work of the Academy. AAR members receive the quarterly Journal of the American Academy of Religion (JAAR); Religious Studies News, an online news publication; and E-Bulletins. All members receive discounts on Annual Meeting registration fees and on subscriptions to various publications. Additionally, members have access to Employment Listings, a web-based employment information service.

Membership in the American Academy of Religion can be established by mailing or faxing the form on page 203, by using our online membership system at www.aarweb.org/membership/join-or-renew or by calling our offices at 1-404-727-3049.

AAR SUBSCRIPTIONS

Journal of the American Academy of Religion

Distributed to all AAR members, JAAR includes scholarly articles on the full range of world religious traditions together with studies of methodologies by which they are explored. Each issue contains major articles of general interest and importance and a lengthy book review section.

Published quarterly; approximately 192 pages per issue.

Editor: Amir Hussain, Loyola Marymount University

Institutional Subscription: US$253 print and online; US$233 for print only; or US$203 for online only

For institutional subscriptions to JAAR, please contact Oxford University Press at www.oxfordjournals.org/our_journals/jaarel/access_purchase/buy_online.html or in North America at 1-800-852-7323 or elsewhere at +44 (0) 1865 353907.

Religious Studies News

Religious Studies News (RSN) is the online newspaper of record of the American Academy of Religion and is designed as a platform for professionals and students in the field to report on research trends, examine issues in religious studies and theology, and apply the academic study of religion to broader public conversations. Look for the launch of RSN's new website this fall.

NOMINATION FOR SERVICE IN THE AAR

Much of the work of the Academy is accomplished through its board, committees, and program units. These groups are composed of individuals who contribute their time and talents to the AAR's mission of fostering excellence in teaching and scholarship in religion. For the ongoing vitality of the Academy's work, it is important to continually welcome new voices into the conversation and to achieve a broad and diverse range of member participation in these leadership positions.

Nominations for Elected Office

Each year the Nominations Committee nominates persons for election by the membership as a whole. Because terms of office vary, not every position is open every year. The Nominations Committee seeks the participation of the membership in their processes. Please send your suggestions for nominations for elective office (along with a rationale) to the Nominations Committee in care of the AAR executive offices at nominations@aarweb.org.

Nominations for Appointments to Working Groups

Appointments to working groups are made by the president in consultation with the executive director. If you want to nominate a colleague or yourself, please send a letter explaining interest in serving on a particular committee, participation in the AAR, academic and professional interests, and a C.V. to nominations@aarweb.org. Calls for nominations to elective office and committee appointments are published regularly in Religious Studies News, on the AAR Web site at www.aarweb.org, and in the AAR e-Bulletins.

RELATED SCHOLARLY ORGANIZATIONS

Adventist Society for Religious Studies

The Adventist Society for Religious Studies (ASRS) is a scholarly community whose purpose is to "provide intellectual and social fellowship among its members and encourage scholarly pursuits in all religious studies disciplines, particularly with reference to the Seventh-day Adventist tradition." Having met continuously since 1972, we formally organized in 1979 as the Andrews University Society for Religious Studies. The Society's organizational documents ensure independence from external oversight while remaining dedicated to the Seventh-day Adventist Church's considerable venture in higher education. Our membership is made up of a diverse group of religious scholars from around the world. We believe that our connection to the America Academy of Religion is an important element of the professional development of these professors and our Society. We meet in conjunction with the American Academy of Religion to share presentations and discussion of important issues in religion and higher education.

African Association for the Study of Religions

The African Association for the Study of Religions is an academic association of the scholars of religions posted in universities in Africa, and of scholars of the religions of Africa posted in universities outside Africa. It was founded at an IAHR (International Association for the History of Religions) conference in Harare, Zimbabwe, in September 1992 for the purpose of promoting the academic study of the religions of Africa more generally through the international collaboration of all scholars whose research has a bearing on the subject. The AASR seeks to stimulate the academic study of religions of Africa in a variety of ways: providing a forum for multilateral communications between scholars of African religions; facilitating the exchange of resources and information; encouraging the development of linkages and research contacts between scholars and institutions in Africa, and between scholars in Africa and those overseas. The AASR also endeavors to assist scholars to publish their work and travel to professional meetings. The AASR is an affiliate of the IAHR since 1995. It meets at the IAHR quinquennial congress and organizes conferences in Africa. Its members participate in panels at conferences outside of Africa. The AASR publishes the bi-annual AASR Bulletin and maintains a web site: www.a-asr.org. AASR plans for an online journal are at an advanced stage.

Association of Practical Theology
The purpose of the Association of Practical Theology (APT) is to promote critical reflection on theology and practice. Reconstituted from its predecessor organizations in 1984, the APT was sparked by the understanding of practical theology as an integrative hermeneutical endeavor at the heart of theological education that includes critical examination of religious traditions and practices and exploration of the contributions of ministerial sub-disciplines. The APT meets annually in conjunction with the AAR and biennially for a comprehensive conference. APT meetings at the AAR draw national and international scholars from a variety of disciplines (members of APT and non-members) and the biennial meeting allows for more in depth study of specific issues and the conduct of official business. The APT posts proceedings, membership information, and other news on its website (www.practicaltheology.org) and welcomes new members from all areas of religious and theological study.

Association of Social Scientists of Religion of MERCOSUR
The ACSRM was founded in Montevideo in 1994, in the framework of the IV Conference on Religious Alternatives in Latin America under the name "Asociación de Cientistas Sociales de la Religión en el Mercosur" (ASCRM—Association of Social Scientists of Religion of MERCOSUR*). Progressively the ACSRM was expanding their borders and now includes researchers and professors of the entire Latin America and also from other parts of the world.

The ACSRM is a not-for-profit entity of an academic nature, and is independent from political, religious or economic groups. At present, it is a point of reference for all those in Latin America and the Caribbean who take an interest in studies about the religious phenomenon. Its purposes are

1. To foster research and teaching about social sciences of religion from a Latin American perspective.
2. To encourage social scientists of the MERCOSUR countries to contribute to the analysis of the religious phenomenon in this part of the American continent.
3. To promote scientific meetings, congresses, seminars, conferences, so that members may exchange information among themselves and with those of similar international scientific associations. Every two years, the Association organizes the Conference on Religious Alternatives in Latin America.
4. To support the publication of books and magazines on the topic of religion, securing, to that effect, financial help from public and private institutions. The Association publishes the journal Ciencias Sociales y Religión/Ciências Sociais e Religiao ("Social Sciences and Religion").

*MERCOSUR is the Common Market of the South (of Latin America)

Center for Interdisciplinary Study of Monotheistic Religions
The Center for Interdisciplinary Study of Monotheistic Religions (CISMOR), established in 2003, conducts comprehensive and interdisciplinary research and educational activities related to the monotheistic world. It fosters specialists who can help to achieve coexistence among different civilizations and at the same time makes the results of its research available to the world at large, with the goal of becoming a mediator between the Islamic, Judaic, and Christian worlds. Although, the three Abrahamic religions that originated in the Middle East–Judaism, Christianity, and Islam–are closely related as brothers, Western countries have a long history of repeated conflicts and antagonism with the Islamic world. In order to achieve peace, security, and the coexistence of civilizations in today's world, we must undertake comprehensive and interdisciplinary educational and research activities from a civilizational perspective. CISMOR is unlike any other research institute in the world because it centralizes in-depth interdisciplinary research on all three Abrahamic religions and also because of its unique location in Japan, a country that is free of historical or cultural constraints on such studies, thus allowing the institute to take an entirely objective point of view. Research on Abrahamic religions is still a comparatively new field in Japan, and there is still a lot to be learned. By increasing our understanding of Abrahamic religions, we will at the same time contribute to a deeper understanding of Japanese religion. We try to find the way to contribute to reform the Abrahamic religions from the stand point of Japanese religiosity.

Christian Theological Research Fellowship
The Christian Theological Research Fellowship is a distinctively Christian research organization in systematic and moral theology and related disciplines. The society exists to promote and sustain fellowship and truth-seeking (fides quaerens intellectum) in theological reflection upon the Christian faith, within the mainstream of the Christian tradition. We see ourselves as a spiritual fellowship in service to the Church of Messiah Jesus.

College Theology Society
The College Theology Society (www.collegetheology.org) is a non-profit professional society of college and university professors of religious studies and theology. Founded in 1954 as the Society for Catholic College Teachers of Sacred Doctrine, it adopted its current name in 1967. Each year, from the Thursday after Memorial Day to the following Sunday, the Society convenes its annual meeting at a college or university campus. From 1996 to the present, the at-large region of the National Association of Baptist Professors of Religion has convened its annual meeting in conjunction with the College Theology Society's annual meeting. The College Theology Society also has a long history of scholarly publications. First, beginning in 1955, it has produced an annual volume based upon papers delivered at the annual meeting.

Today the volume is composed of peer-reviewed essays and is published by Orbis Press. The Society's peer-reviewed journal, Horizons, first appeared in 1974 and is currently published biannually through Cambridge University Press (http://journals.cambridge.org/action/displayJournal?jid=HOR). Members receive a copy of the annual volume and Horizons as part of their dues. The College Theology Society remains committed to its role as a professional society that welcomes all those who serve as professors of theological and religious studies at colleges and universities.

Colloquium on Violence and Religion
The Colloquium on Violence and Religion is an international association of scholars founded in 1990. It is dedicated to the exploration, criticism, and development of René Girard's mimetic model of the relationship between violence and religion in the genesis and maintenance of culture. In promoting research in mimetic theory, COV&R welcomes scholars and others from diverse fields and theoretical orientations who are interested in the foundational role of imitation in individual human lives and cultures. In addition to gathering at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Religion, the Colloquium meets each summer, alternating between North American and European venues. COV&R's publications include a website (http://www.uibk.ac.at/theol/cover/), a book series, Studies in Violence, Mimesis, and Culture, published by Michigan State University Press, the journal Contagion and a biannual newsletter (Bulletin of the Colloquium on Violence and Religion). The coordinator of COV&R at the AAR is Professor Martha Reineke, University of Northern Iowa (martha.reineke@uni.edu). COV&R membership information: http://www.uibk.ac.at/theol/cover/aboutcover/membership.html.

Consortium of Christian Study Centers
The Consortium of Christian Study Centers (CCSC) exists to advance the growth and effectiveness of Christian Study Centers at colleges and universities around the world. In pursuit of its mission, CCSC has the following goals: to promote collaboration among Study Centers and other like-minded organizations, to provide mutual stimulation and resources to existing Study Centers, to encourage and support the development of new Study Centers, and to raise awareness of the Study Center movement. For more information, please visit our website at http://www.studycentersonline.org.

European Society for the Study of Western Esotericism
The European Society for the Study of Western Esotericism (ESSWE) was established in 2005 to advance the academic study of the various manifestations of Western esotericism from late antiquity to the present, and to secure the future development of the field. To these ends, the ESSWE holds an international conference every two years in a major European city, publishes an affiliated journal, Aries, a related book series, and a Newsletter (normally appearing twice a year), and provides various resources on its website (http://www.esswe.org/). Occasional workshops, prizes and travel bursaries are also used to advance the ESSWE's objectives. Full membership is open to scholars of Western Esotericism based at European institutions and to scholars based elsewhere who are interested in Western Esotericism in Europe, and non-voting associate membership is open to all. Membership provides free access to some of the ESSWE's activities and discounted access to some other activities. Student members and scholars from economically disadvantaged countries receive further discounts.

European Society of Women in Theological Research
Founded in 1986 in Switzerland, the ESWTR is a scholarly network of women scholars in theological research and religious studies. Currently, the Society has more than 500 members who come from different religious, denominational, national, and academic backgrounds. The ESWTR provides the opportunity for women researchers from the European continent to meet and to dialogue with each other at biannual international conferences held in different European countries. Conference themes raise important issues in feminist theological and religious research. During the year in which no international meeting takes place, members meet nationally or regionally. Currently, country or regional groups exist in Austria, Belgium, Britain, Bulgaria, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, France, Republic of Georgia, Greece, Germany, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, The Netherlands, Norway, Northern America, Palestine, Poland, Rumania, Slovakia, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland. Membership is open to women engaged in the academic study of theology, religious studies, and related areas.

They may live and work in Europe, hold a European passport, or may be admitted after special consideration by the Board. Members receive the ESWTR Newsletter and the annually published Journal of the ESWTR.

Evangelical Philosophical Society
The mission of the Evangelical Philosophical Society is to glorify God through the faithful practice of philosophy, fostering a deeper understanding of God and the world he created while both encouraging and enabling Christian philosophers to engage philosophical and spiritual issues in the academy, church, and culture.

Institute for American Religious and Philosophical Thought
The Institute for American Religious and Philosophical Thought is a community of productive scholars contributing to the academic study of religion and philosophy through interpretive, critical, and constructive reflections on distinctively American religious and philosophical thought. It fosters broad discussion through its sponsorship of conferences, seminars, workshops, and publications (including the American Journal of Theology & Philosophy). The work of the Institute emphasizes: (1) the interface between theology and philosophy, especially as shaped by American empiricist, naturalist, process and pragmatic traditions; (2) the development of liberal religious thought in America. For further information about IARPT, please visit our website, www.hiarpt.org. Our journal, The American Journal of Theology and Philosophy, publishes articles and reviews that make scholarly contributions to these areas of focus. Please see the journal website for further information, http://ajtp.press.illinois.edu/.

IASBS annually publishes The Pure Land, an academic journal in English that contains articles (many from papers presented at IASBS conferences), essays, translations, and book reviews. This is the only scholarly journal specifically dedicated to the study of Pure Land Buddhism. The association also publishes a newsletter twice a year, in the spring and fall. ISCP also sponsors and co-sponsors philosophical, educational, cultural or scientific activities in cooperation with educational, cultural, philosophical, or scientific institutions or organizations associated with the study and research of Chinese Philosophy.

Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Center for Advanced Holocaust Studies
The Mandel Center for Advanced Holocaust Studies of the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum supports scholarship and publications in the field of Holocaust studies, promotes the growth of Holocaust studies at American universities, seeks to foster strong relationships between American and international scholars, and initiates programs to ensure the ongoing training of future generations of scholars specializing in the Holocaust. The Mandel Center accomplishes its mission through sponsorship of fellowship opportunities; seminars for teaching faculty at the college and university levels; research projects and publications; summer research workshops, conferences, lectures, and symposia; and the evaluation, collection, and making available of Holocaust-related archival materials.

The Program on Ethics, Religion, and the Holocaust, an integral part of the Mandel Center, serves as a resource for individuals and groups grappling with the ethical and philosophical issues raised by the Holocaust and contemporary antisemitism, and through its panels, symposia, and workshops investigates the relationship of the Holocaust to the past history and future potential of Jewish/Christian relations. Please contact crc@ushmm.org for more information.

Karl Barth Society of North America

The Society's membership is open to all interested parties: scholars, students, pastors, laypersons. A Newsletter is published twice a year, edited by Dr. Paul D. Molnar, Department of Theology and Religious Studies, St. John's University, 8000 Utopia Parkway, Queens, NY 11439. Annual dues are $25 (students $15). Information is available at http://kbarth.org. Also visit the website (http://www.ptsem.edu/library/barth/) that contains substantial articles as well as information about events, posted by the Center for Barth Studies at Princeton Theological Seminary (contact: barth.studies@ptsem.edu). Two sessions are held each year as Additional Meetings at the AAR Annual Meeting: one on Friday afternoon, the other on Saturday morning. As perhaps is only appropriate, the Society is always more of an event than an institution, whose irregular activities have earned it the well-known Barthian motto: providentia dei, confusione hominum.

The Niebuhr Society serves these purposes through presentations and discussion at its annual meeting, dissemination of information about relevant programs and activities, and support for the collection, preservation, and publication of material related to Reinhold Niebuhr's life and work.…The Society encourages participation by persons from a wide variety of religious backgrounds, academic disciplines, and political viewpoints and seeks to develop a program that reflects the breadth of Niebuhr's interests and concerns." The Society remains in contact not only through its annual meetings but also through occasional emails updating membership on recent developments in Niebuhr studies, and through our Society webpage (http://niebuhrsociety.typepad.com/main/).

North American Association for the Study of Religion

The North American Association for the Study of Religion (NAASR) was founded in 1985 to encourage historical, comparative, structural, theoretical, and cognitive approaches to the study of religion; to represent North American scholars of religion at the international level; and to sustain communication between North American scholars and their international colleagues engaged in the study of religion. NAASR was affiliated to the IAHR at the XVIth congress in 1990. NAASR holds meetings concurrently with the American Academy of Religion (AAR) and Society of Biblical Literature (SBL) and has been a Related Scholarly Organization of the AAR since 1998. NAASR sponsors a quarterly journal published by Brill, Method & Theory in the Study of Religion (MTSR), which is the only international periodical devoted exclusively to methodological and theoretical topics in the academic study of religion. NAASR also sponsors a book series, Key Thinkers in the Study of Religion, which is published by Equinox.

North American Paul Tillich Society

Founded in 1975, the 250-member NAPTS is concerned with Paul Tillich's (1886-1965) philosophical-theological thought, with its analysis, critique, and revision; with the implications and the use of this thought in political, social, psychotherapeutic, scientific, artistic, and ethico-religious spheres; the application of Tillich's thought to questions he himself could never have imagined in his lifetime; finally, with the impact and the creative extension of Tillich's legacy. The Society meets annually in conjunction with AAR, organizes international conferences, collaborates with the German, French speaking, and several other Tillich societies, awards an annual student paper prize, and sponsors publications. The quarterly Bulletin carries papers from meetings and other information on Tillich, publication, letters, et al. Dues $50/year. Polanyi Society

The Polanyi Society, formed in 1972, includes in its membership scholars and students who, inspired by the thought of Michael Polanyi (1891–1976), seek to explore and expand upon his seminal ideas. A Hungarian by birth, Polanyi began his distinguished career as a physical chemist in Germany and England, but it is his later work in economics, social thought, and especially philosophy that continues to be influential today. Polanyi's Gifford Lectures, Personal Knowledge, was a pioneer work demonstrating the contextual, theory-laden, faith-shaped, and passionate character of all human endeavors, including theology and religious practice as well as science and the arts. The Polanyi Society holds its Annual Meeting Friday evening and Saturday morning at the beginning of the AAR Annual Meeting.

Papers to be discussed are posted prior to the meeting on the Society website, http://www.polanyisociety.org/. Archived copies and current issues of the Polanyi Society's peer-reviewed journal, Tradition and Discovery (three issues a year), information about joining the Society, upcoming meetings, and links to Polanyi essays will be found on the website. Personal Knowledge is subtitled "Towards a Post-Critical Philosophy," and the Society invites all those who are interested in exploring postfoundational versions of epistemology, philosophy of religion, ethics, and theology to join with us. Polanyi's notions of tacit knowing, heuristic passion, and conviviality are among the many contributions he makes to this ongoing venture.

Psychology, Culture, and Religion
The Psychology, Culture, and Religion Group is an informal association of scholars and practitioners in the fields of religion and psychology broadly defined, who share common interests in the relationship between religion, psychology, and contemporary cultures. Working at the intersections of religion and psychology, the group enables participants to contextualize religious studies in relationship to the theory and practice of psychotherapy and pastoral counseling. PCR's location on the boundary of academic study and applied professions like clinical psychology and pastoral psychotherapy results in rich, varied, and stimulating interdisciplinary conversations of a kind uncommon in the AAR generally. Elements of the dialogue have included modern and postmodern developments in psychology, counseling, cultural, and social anthropology, sociology, feminist studies, critical literary theory, and other forms of interpretive theory.

Religious Education Association
In 1903, the Religious Education Association (REA) was established "to inspire the educational forces of our country with the religious ideal; to inspire the religious forces of our country with the educational ideal; and to keep before the public mind the ideal of Religious Education, and the sense of its need and value." For over a century, REA has been a community of vision and reflective conversation, composed of peoples from diverse faiths and cultures, focused on scholarship, research, teaching and leadership in religious education—which is now commonly called religious formation. Although predominantly Protestant in the beginning, its membership includes those from the Baha'i, Catholic, Eastern Orthodox, Jewish, Muslim, Mormon, and other traditions involved in all aspects of religious formation. Its membership is 80% professors and researchers but includes clergy, directors of religious education, public leaders, and teachers in elementary and secondary schools. Thus it maintains its commitment to scholarship informed by and accountable to practitioners. Please contact secretary@religiouseducation.net for more information.

REA has sustained and inspired rigorous reflection and research on religious education, formation, and moral development. Its journal, Religious Education, published continuously since 1906, is a leading scholarly education publication. In 2012, a new book series, Horizons in Religious Education, was launched with Wipf and Stock Publishers, with the first volume on interreligious learning published Spring 2014.

REA meets annually on the first weekend in November, in addition to its session at the AAR & SBL Annual Meetings.

Society for Buddhist-Christian Studies
The Society for Buddhist-Christian Studies was founded in 1987 to provide an ongoing organization for those committed to study, reflection, interchange, and practice arising out of Buddhist-Christian encounters. The purposes of the Society are 1) To serve as a coordinating body supporting activities related to the comparative study of, and the practical interaction between, Buddhism and Christianity, by groups and individuals; 2) To encourage those who report on Buddhist-Christian dialogue and comparative study to employ analytical and theoretical tools and to set their discussion within the framework of our larger human history; 3) To be as inclusive as possible in all its activities, seeking a balance with regard to geography, ethnicity, age, sex, denomination or lineage, cultural tradition, and leadership in both academic and religion institutions, and in the public and private sectors.

The Society meets annually in conjunction with the national AAR meeting, having board meetings and a program session one day prior (Friday) to the start of the AAR schedule (Saturday). There is a second program session on Saturday morning. International conferences lasting approximately five days are held every four years, usually in the summer. The Society publishes a scholarly journal, The Journal for Buddhist-Christian Studies (Univ. of Hawaii) and a biannual newsletter. The Society's website, www.society-buddhist-christian-studies.org, includes membership information, upcoming dialogue events, conference summaries, newsletters, and links, including one to the newly launched Buddhist-Christian Studies Database housed at Boston College.

Society for Comparative Research on Iconic and Performative Texts (SCRIPT)

The Society for Comparative Research on Iconic and Performative Texts (SCRIPT) was founded in 2010 to foster academic discourse about the social functions of books and texts that exceed their semantic meaning and interpretation, such as their display as cultural artifacts, their ritual use in religious and political ceremonies, their performance by recitation and theater, and their depiction in art. The society sponsors programming at existing regional and international scholarly meetings and at colleges and universities. We welcome new members and ideas for programs and venues to host them.

Society for Hindu-Christian Studies

The Society for Hindu-Christian Studies was founded in November, 1994 as a logical extension to the dialogue and scholarship being carried on in the Hindu-Christian Studies Bulletin (now the Journal of Hindu Christian Studies), which first appeared in 1988 under its founding editor, Dr. Harold Coward. The society is dedicated to the study of Hinduism and Christianity and their interrelationships. It seeks to create a forum for the presentation of historical research and studies of contemporary practice for the fostering of dialogue and interreligious conversation carried forward in a spirit of openness, respect, and true inquiry. Committed to scholarly interchange according to accepted traditional and contemporary methods, the society understands its scope broadly, so as to include issues related to religious practice, spirituality, and education; it is interested in supporting activities related to the comparative study of Hinduism and Christianity. Our membership includes Christians interested in the study of Hinduism, Hindus interested in the study of Christianity, and scholars — Hindu, Christian, and other — interested in the historical and contemporary interactions of Hinduism and Christianity.

Society for the Arts in Religious and Theological Studies

SARTS is a community of scholars and artists who seek to understand the deepest levels of relationship between works of art and religious sensibility. Our focus is concrete aesthetic encounter with the arts and their religious, ethical and theological interpretation. While originating in the Christian traditions of theological reflection, we seek constructive conversation and critical inquiry that will make sense of a world of increasing cross-influences, both in art and among religious traditions. Through scholarly exchange we explore how art shapes human ways of being in the world. At the same time we explore how the study of art at the intersection of religious and theological traditions leads to artistic vision and to aesthetic modes of perception, practice, and thought. The Society is committed to the implications of these discussions for the teaching of theological and religious approaches to art, and for the nurturing of both recognized and emerging artists and scholars whose work will shape the future of theological and religious understandings of human existence.

Society for the Study of Christian Spirituality

The Society for the Study of Christian Spirituality promotes research and dialogue within the growing community of people interested in spirituality. Formed in 1991, the SSCS is ecumenical and strives to be inclusive of the widest possible range of expressions of Christian spirituality. It is interdisciplinary and welcomes the application of diverse disciplines to the study of spirituality. While the emphasis of the SSCS is clearly on Christian spirituality, it seeks to foster creative dialogue with other traditions of spirituality. Although the Society is comprised of people from diverse, academically oriented communities, the SSCS also appeals to nonscholars such as pastors, practitioners, and those in the helping professions. For more information please contact Anita Houck at ahouck@saintmarys.edu.

Society for the Study of Japanese Religions
The Society for the Study of Japanese Religions (SSJR) is an international association of approximately 200 scholars committed to the academic study of the religions of Japan. Membership is open to students and scholars of Japanese religions or related fields. In addition to the AAR, the Society is also affiliated with the Association for Asian Studies (AAS); our website can be accessed at https://sites.google.com/site/ssjrhome/. The Society publishes newsletters in the fall and spring of each year notifying members of upcoming meeting schedules, recent member news, publications of interest, and so forth. In addition, the Society publishes an annual Supplement based on sponsored presentations at the AAR and AAS.

Society of Christian Philosophers
The Society of Christian Philosophers was organized in 1978 to promote fellowship among Christian Philosophers and to stimulate study and discussion of issues which arise from their Christian and philosophical commitments. One of its chief aims is to go beyond the usual philosophy of religion sessions at the American Philosophical Association and to stimulate thinking about the nature and role of Christian commitment in philosophy. Informal discussion among several Christian philosophers led them to believe that it was possible to form a group designed to promote philosophizing and fellowship among philosophers who shared a commitment to Christianity. Past Presidents include William Alston, Robert Merrihew Adams, Alvin Plantinga, Marilyn McCord Adams, George Mavrodes, Nicholas Wolterstorff, Eleonore Stump, C. Stephen Evans, and Robert Audi. Peter van Inwagen, University of Notre Dame is the current President of the SCP, and Christina Van Dyke of Calvin College is the Executive Director.

The Society is open to anyone interested in philosophy who considers himself or herself a Christian. Membership is not restricted to any particular "school" of philosophy or to any branch of Christianity, nor to professional philosophers.

Søren Kierkegaard Society
Founded by Robert L. Perkins in 1979, the Søren Kierkegaard Society (SKs) exists to encourage study and discussion of the thought of Søren Kierkegaard in all its dimensions and ramifications, including its sources, influences, and implications for contemporary thought. SKs is affiliated with the American Academy of Religion and the American Philosophical Association and usually holds a business meeting at the AAR, though sometimes at the APA. The Society normally host a dinner meeting on the Friday evening at the start of the AAR annual convention; this includes a distinguished guest speaker. The Society also normally organizes a session at the AAR, and encourages scholarship on Kierkegaard in connection with meetings of the AAR, SBL, and APA through an executive committee that includes members of both organizations. Membership in SKs is open to all who are interested in Kierkegaard, and we have members and speakers from around the world. An annual newsletter, a website, and emails inform members of calls for papers and upcoming programs. To join the SKs, please contact the Society's Secretary-Treasurer, Mark Tietjen, University of West Georgia, at mtietjen@westga.edu.

Thomas F. Torrance Theological Fellowship
This distinctively Christian research organization is devoted to the exploration, development, and dissemination of the theology of T. F. Torrance and other theologians contributing to this endeavor. The society exists to promote and sustain fellowship and truth-seeking (jides quaerens intellectum) in theological reflection upon the Christian faith, within the mainstream of the Christian Church and tradition in light of the theological legacy of Thomas F. Torrance. We are a Christian Fellowship serving the Christian faith and the renewal of the Church of Jesus Christ. Membership is open to all scholars, pastors and laypersons who are interested in research in Christian theology and related disciplines, and are in accord with the above mentioned Mission Statement. We support free inquiry and critical examination of the many facets of theology and religion, especially as these relate to issues that concerned Torrance himself, such as the relationship between Science and Religion and how to interpret specific Christian doctrines and their implications for today. We seek to bring T. F. Torrance's important thinking into conversation with other significant theologians in an academic way so as to advance a better understanding of the nature of and meaning of contemporary Christian theology. Our website, http://www.tftorrance.org/, contains information about membership, meetings, the Board of Directors and about T. F. Torrance himself. An online peer reviewed journal, Participatio, edited by Todd Speidell, is published annually. At present we are planning to meet as an Additional Meeting at the AAR Annual Meeting on Friday afternoon. Please check our website for the most up-to-date information.

Convention Center-26

Academics often face challenging questions about whether, when, and how to disclose personal information within the academy—in graduate school, on the job market, or to fellow colleagues. In this session, panelists will address complexities of negotiating disclosure related to disability, sexual identity, family status and pregnancy, racial/ethnic identity and/or religious perspectives and commitment. We pay particular attention to intersectionality as a tool for examining interlocking systems of oppression, attending to dynamics of power and privilege, and resisting the tendency to put different identities under erasure. We will discuss the approaches individuals have taken to disclosure in diverse institutional contexts, opportunities to make strategic use of disclosure, the lines between public and private disclosure, and legal considerations surrounding disclosure.

Release of PRRI/AAR National Survey on Religion, Values, and Climate Change (A22-145)

Saturday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM • Convention Center–20D

What do Americans think about climate change, and how do religious and moral beliefs impact their opinions about science, human responsibility, and environmental policies? This panel will feature the release of a new national public opinion survey, conducted by Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI) in collaboration with the AAR. The survey of 3,000 Americans is one of the largest surveys on religion and climate change ever conducted.

The survey explores a range of topics, including Americans' belief or skepticism about the reality of climate change; the roles that partisanship, religion, and media consumption play in the development of those views; whether Americans see climate change as a manageable problem or an imminent crisis; how committed Millennials are to the issue of climate change; and how important policies that address climate change are to different religious groups.

Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (A22-142)

Saturday, 11:45 AM–12:45 PM • Convention Center–20D

The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) was established by the United Nations Environmental Programme (UNEP) and the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) in 1988 to assess the scientific, technical and socio-economic information relevant for the understanding of human induced climate change, its potential impacts and options for mitigation and adaptation. The IPCC has completed four full assessment reports, guidelines and methodologies, special reports and technical papers.

The IPCC has three working groups:

- Working Group I: The Science of Climate Change
- Working Group II: Impacts, Adaptation, and Vulnerability
- Working Group III: Mitigation of Climate Change

A representative of Working Group II will address the scientific, technical, environmental, economic and social aspects of the vulnerability (sensitivity and adaptability) to climate change of, and the negative and positive consequences for, ecological systems, socio-economic sectors and human health.

Bill McKibben, 350.org

Updates from the Front Lines of the Climate Fight (A22-402)
Saturday, 7:30 PM–8:30 PM • Convention Center–20D

Bill McKibben is an author and environmentalist. His 1989 book The End of Nature is regarded as the first book for a general audience about climate change, and has appeared in 24 languages. He is founder of 350.org, the first planet-wide, grassroots climate change movement. Plenary Panel: Public Understanding of Religion and Issues of Religious Pluralism
Religion and the Roots of Climate Change Skepticism (A23-106)

Sunday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM • CC-20D

Erik Owens, Boston College, Presiding

In the face of a robust scientific consensus that the Earth's climate is slowly changing and that humans are at least partly responsible for this change, a persistent and vocal minority of skeptics has gained traction in American public discourse. Some skeptics reject scientific findings about global warming trends; many others deny human responsibility for the trends. In both cases, religious beliefs about God's sovereignty frequently undergird the skepticism and influence the larger debates about how societies can mitigate climate change or adapt our way of life to adjust to the new realities.

This roundtable brings together four internationally renowned scholars and religious leaders—a Christian evangelical climate scientist, a professor of modern Jewish philosophy and rabbinical thought, an historian of science specializing in debates about climate change, and an evangelical leader in the "creation care" movement—to discuss climate change skepticism and its role in religious communities. A robust discussion among panelists and the audience will follow opening comments from each speaker

Richard Cizik served for ten years as Vice President for Governmental affairs of the National Association of Evangelicals, which he left in 2008 after enduring years of political opposition from the Religious Right, including on the issue of climate change. As a result, Cizik founded the New Evangelical Partnership for the Common Good (www.newevangelicalpartnership.org), a faith-based organization committed to an agenda that fosters values consistent with an open and free society. He has been a leader in bringing evangelicals, scholars, and policy-makers together in the search for common ground on a host of national and international challenges, including climate change, civil liberties, economic justice, and national security.

In 2002, Cizik was a participant in Climate Forum 2002, at Oxford, England, which produced the "Oxford Declaration" on global warming. He was instrumental in creating the Evangelical Climate Initiative, introduced in 2006. The following year, Cizik formed a group of scientists, including nobel laureate Eric Chivian and Harvard Professor Emeritus Edward O. Wilson, along with leading evangelical pastors and professors, to together release a groundbreaking document entitled the "Scientist and Evangelical Call to Action" as well as to hold first-ever dialogues on religion and science.

THATCAMP WORKSHOP

The Humanities and Technology Camp AAR2014 (A21-107)

Friday, November 21, 9:00 AM–5:00 PM • Convention Center–17B

Chris Cantwell, University of Missouri, Kansas City, Presiding

The advent of digital technology and social media has not only transformed how today's religious communities function, but also how scholars teach and research religion more broadly. If you are interested in how technology is changing—or can change—the work of religious studies scholars, then we invite you to attend the AAR's second annual THATCamp!

THATCamp stands for "The Humanities and Technology Camp," and they exist to bring scholars and technologists of every skill level together to learn how to integrate digital technology into their teaching and research. THATCamps are unconferences, which means this learning and building occurs not through formal presentations but in hands-on workshops or sessions proposed on the spot by participants. Topics we will cover could include academic blogging, social media in the classroom, digital research methods, web-based class projects, online publishing, and countless others.

THAT Camp attendees must also register and create profiles on THAT Camp AAR 2014 blog (http://aar2014.thatcamp.org) where they will receive instructions and be able to propose sessions.

The cost for the workshop is $25, which includes the entire day of sessions. Registration is limited to the first 100 participants.

RELIGION AND MEDIA WORKSHOP

The History and Materiality of Religious Circulations (A21-108)

Friday, November 21, 11:00 AM–6:00 PM • Convention Center–5A

Ann M. Burlein, Hofstra University, and Kathleen Foody, College of Charleston, Presiding

The Religion and Media Workshop, one of the most popular sessions at the AAR annually, is a day-long seminar designed to foster collaborative conversation at the cutting edge of the study of religion, media, and culture. In 2014 the Workshop will explore the history and materiality of religious circulations.

Our topic will be religious circulations. What makes it possible for particular forms of religion to become popular? How do obstacles, such as secrecy, silence and censorship, block the circulation of religion (as compared to the role of gossip, scandal, and threat)? What are some good ways of thinking about networks? Most generally, how do media increase contact between diverse religious expressions, even enabling them to circulate globally, while obscuring, obstructing, or enhancing specific religious understandings?

The workshop will not be structured as traditional paper sessions, but rather as a master class in religious circulations, their possibilities and limits. Three to five readings will be circulated to participants before the event. Because of the nature of this year's workshop, it is essential that all participants commit to doing the readings ahead of time and prepare to participate in seminar-style conversation. We invite you to join us for a master class on the possibilities and impossibilities of religious circulations.

Zareena Grewal, Yale University
M. Gail Hamner, Syracuse University
David Morgan, Duke University

The cost for the workshop is $60, which includes lunch and the entire afternoon of sessions. Registration is limited to the first 75 participants.

AAR LEADERSHIP WORKSHOP

Best Practices in an Era of Contingent Labor: A Workshop for Chairs of Religious Studies Programs and Departments (A21-200)

Friday, November 21, 12:00 PM–5:00 PM • Convention Center–11B

Rebecca Todd Peters, Elon University, and Theodore Trost, University of Alabama, Presiding

In plenaries, panels, and breakout sections, participants in this workshop will explore concrete ways for chairs and departments to help contingent faculty members thrive.

Contingent faculty members and experts who have studied the circumstances surrounding "contingent labor" will lead the workshop. A best practices document for contingent faculty drafted by the Academic Relations Committee will focus our discussions.

Teaching Islamic Studies: Key Topics and Best Practices (A21-203)

Friday, November 21, 1:00 PM–5:00 PM • Convention Center–7A

Danielle Widmann Abraham, James Madison University, and Omid Safi, Duke University, Presiding

The 2014 Rethinking Islamic Studies workshop will continue to explore best practices for teaching undergraduates foundational topics in Islamic Studies. This year, we will look at conceptual and pedagogical strategies for teaching four topics: law, Shi'ism, ritual practice, and violence.

Our focus will be pedagogical, exploring the practical aspects involved in enhancing student learning and critical thinking regarding essential topics in the study of Islam. Our goal is to enhance the integration and mutual enrichment of Islamic Studies and the broader field of Religious Studies. Through both presentations and conversation, we will collectively explore such questions as: How can we help students grasp both the historical formation and contemporary practice of Islamic law? How do we situate the authority of law in terms of the various practices that characterize the lived religion of Islam? What resources does the broader field of Religious Studies offer in terms of thinking about law/jurisprudence as a comparative category that can enrich inquiry about Islam? In teaching about Shi'i traditions, how do we facilitate the exploration of distinct interpretive traditions of Islamic history and theology without reifying sectarian differences? How can we build students' appreciation for the multiple effects of ritual performance, as it embodies tradition, forms ethical subjects, and structures temporal human life? Finally, violence remains one of the most crucial questions in religious studies inquiry. How do we shape classroom conversations about violence as an intellectual topic of profound ethical import?

To put it another way, how can we orient analysis of violence in the past so that it contributes to reflexive analysis of violence in the present? What conceptual frames help students think critically about violence in relation to Islamic tradition and in terms of universal human phenomena? And as a corollary, what implicit parallel practices of nonviolence can we excavate for students in the humanities?

The format will consist of presentations by experienced instructors combined with interactive small group discussion. Our aim is to provide an opportunity for reflection on effective teaching and student-centered learning. The workshop is intended both for graduate students and professors of Islamic studies, as well as scholars from other fields in religious studies who are looking to incorporate Islamic materials in their courses.

Group Leaders:

Kambiz GhaneaBassiri, Reed College
Kecia Ali, Boston University
Edward E. Curtis, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis

John Kelsay, Florida State University
Bruce B. Lawrence, Duke University

AAR RELIGION & ECOLOGY WORKSHOP

Religious Environmentalism and Environmental Activism (A21-206)

Friday, November 21, 1:45 PM–5:00 PM • Convention Center–4

Roger S. Gottlieb, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Presiding

The Religion and Ecology Group invites you to examine the fusion of religion and politics in religious environmentalism. Many people of established faiths and of eclectic spirituality are engaged in environmental activism for explicitly religious or spiritual reasons. Simultaneously, many secular environmental organizations define themselves as seeking to protect the "sacredness of life." What are the theoretical and practical implications of these hopeful connections? And should this fusion of religion and politics radically alter our understanding of each?

This workshop will offer:

- An overview of religious environmental activism and the spiritual dimensions of secular environmental groups.
- A theoretical framework to conceptualize types of political activism.
- Case studies of activist religious environmental activism; e.g., civil disobedience by religious leaders over Keystone XL, interfaith reforestation efforts in Southern Africa, indigenous resistance to fracking.
- A chance to join with thoughtful colleagues in examining questions such as:
  - Do progressive movements (for democracy, racial and gender equality, workers' rights, etc.) hold significant lessons for religious environmentalists about political strategy, the role of leadership, and alliances with non-environmental and secular groups?
  - Can explicitly political organizations learn from the religious or spiritual stress on humility, compassion, and self-understanding?
  - Is significant environmental change possible in the face of capitalism or the bureaucratic state (e.g., China)?
  - As scholars are we like engineers studying metallic strengths aboard the Titanic or a Jewish historian studying anti-Semitism in 1938 Germany? How do we combine academic objectivity/professionalism with the fact that we are all affected by and contribute to the environmental crisis?
  - What are the possibilities for environmental activism in our own lives?

The cost for the workshop is $40, which includes the entire afternoon of sessions and a coffee break. Registration is limited to the first 75 participants.

PROGRAM UNIT PROPOSALS

The Program Committee welcomes proposals for new program units, especially proposals that address: 1) areas of pent-up demand, and 2) new and emerging fields.

Which Type of Program Unit to Propose?

GROUPS are established to encourage the exploration of an emergent area of study or methodology, to cultivate the relation between the study of religion and a cognate discipline, or to pursue a long-range and broad research project. More focused than Sections and less restricted in participation than Seminars, Groups are expected to experiment with the format of sessions at the Annual Meeting.

All proposals for new Groups must begin as Exploratory Sessions. An Exploratory Session is a complete prearranged session that provides a platform for a group of members to announce a line of inquiry new to the AAR program and to seek out others interested in pursuing it further. The proposal can be for a papers session, roundtable session, or other creative type of session format. Exploratory sessions are submitted through the Program Administration Proposal, Evaluation, and Review System (PAPERS), and must be submitted before March 2, 2015. Notification of program acceptance will be announced by April 1, 2015. Exploratory sessions that are accepted onto the program are then invited to submit an application for new unit status by December 1, 2015. The Program Committee meets each January to review and approve any proposals. Samples of successful proposals are available from annualmeeting@aarweb.org.

SEMINARS are for an already-identified group of up to twenty members who want to work together on a defined research project with a view to publication. Seminars are approved for a five-year nonrenewable term. Seminar proposals do not require Exploratory Sessions preliminary to the new unit application.

How to Propose a New Program Unit

The proposal is your opportunity to make the case for the new program unit by presenting a clear rationale, analytical focus, approaches, and objectives of the unit. In three-to-five typewritten pages, include:

- The title of the new unit.
- Identify and define/describe the scholarly field the unit addresses, making an intellectual argument for the new unit.
- State the need and the unit's purpose.
- Note the scope, directions, and approaches the unit might take.
- Distinguish the unit from other existing program units. If there is overlap with an existing unit, we would like a letter of support from that unit's chair(s)

Additional information required:

- List the AAR members who will chair the unit (1–2) and serve on the steering committee (3–5).
- A short annotated bibliography of published works on the topic, with an introductory paragraph explaining the status of publications in the subfield.
- Letters of support from AAR members who are interested in, and support the work of, the proposed unit.
- A Call for Papers for the new unit, should it be approved.
- For Group proposals, a description of the Exploratory Session, including an attendance count.

In preparing all petitions, members should be aware of the following policy:

The American Academy of Religion is committed to the policy and practice of including women, minority, and younger members in the activities of the Academy. In Annual Meeting programming, this commitment will be carried out to the degree that each unit works to accomplish it. Thus, unit chairpersons, steering committees, and participants in sessions provide the testing arenas for evaluating our success in adhering to this commitment. The Program Committee will include attention to this policy and practice in evaluating proposals for starting or continuing program units.

For additional questions, please attend the session on How to Propose a New Program Unit (A23-303) on Sunday, 5:00 PM–6:30 PM in the Convention Center-18.

Meet Kristy Slominski, 2014–2015 AAR Student Director

Kristy Slominski

Kristy L. Slominski is a doctoral candidate in religious studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara, where she is also completing a doctoral emphasis in feminist studies and a certificate in college and university teaching. She specializes in sexuality and gender within American religious history and is currently writing her dissertation, "An American Religious History of Sex Education," which covers the late nineteenth century to the present. She received her MA in religious studies from UCSB in 2009 and her BA in religious studies and interdisciplinary studies from Michigan State University in 2007.

Since she joined the AAR in 2006, Slominski has served the organization in multiple leadership capacities. On the national level, she currently serves on the Board of Directors, the Planning Committee, and the Graduate Student Committee. Within the AAR Western region, she has served as elected student representative and board member (2010–present), chair of the Nineteenth Century Section (2009–2012), and founder and chair of the Graduate Student Professional Development Section (2012–present). In addition to her research presentations at regional and national conferences, she has organized and led workshops on professional development for regional and national AAR meetings, as well as for her department and university. For further details, visit http://kristyslominski.wordpress.com.

The LGBTIQ Persons in the Profession Committee invites you to join us at the following Annual Meeting events:

A21-401: Film — The New Black
Friday, 8:00 PM–10:00 PM
Hilton Bayfront-305
Horace Griffin, Pacific School of Religion, Presiding
The award-winning documentary film The New Black tells the story of how the African-American community is addressing LGBTIQ rights in light of the marriage equality movement. This film documents activists, families, and clergy on both sides of the campaign to legalize same-sex marriage, and it examines homophobia in the black community's institutional pillar – the black church. The New Black takes viewers into the pews and onto the streets and provides a seat at the kitchen table as it tells the story of the historic fight to win marriage equality in Maryland and charts the evolution of this issue within the black community. The film screening will be followed by brief presentations and a moderated discussion.

A22-143: LGBTIQ Roundtable Lunch
Saturday, 11:45 AM–12:45 PM
Patrick S. Cheng, Episcopal Divinity School, Presiding
Thelathia Young, Bucknell University, Presiding
All students and junior scholars who identify outside of normative gender histories and/or sexualities are welcome to join us for an informal lunch. No fee or preregistration is required, although an optional preregistration link is available on the LGBTIQ Committee's page on the AAR website. Please bring your own lunch; a cash-and-carry station will be available near the room for those wishing to buy their lunches onsite. The roundtable leaders listed were confirmed attendees as of April; other senior scholars in the field may be joining us as well.

A22-305: Queering the Profession
Saturday, 4:00 PM-6:30 PM
Convention Center–33B
Thelathia Young, Bucknell University, Presiding
LGBTIQ persons in the profession often challenge the structures of academia through and beyond the content of scholarship. In this session, we will discuss the approaches individuals have taken to resisting the normative boundaries of the academy while also contributing to new and diverse possibilities of professional practice. Panelists will address the queer histories, foci, and directions of the profession by focusing on one of six topics including hybrid professions, naming injustices, institution building, activisms, inhabiting traditional academic spaces, and intentional alternative academic spaces.

A22-405: LGBTIQ Scholars / Scholars of LGBTIQ Studies Reception
Saturday, 9:00 PM–11:00 PM
Convention Center-6F
LGBTIQ scholars, scholars of LGBTIQ studies, and friends are invited to a reception. Come network, see old friends, and make new ones!

A23-107: Negotiating Disclosure
Sunday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM
Convention Center-26
Julia Watts Belser, Georgetown University, Presiding
Academics often face challenging questions about whether, when, and how to disclose personal information within the academy—in graduate school, on the job market, or to fellow colleagues. In this session, panelists will address complexities of negotiating disclosure related to disability, sexual identity, family status and pregnancy, racial/ethnic identity and/or religious perspectives and commitment. We pay particular attention to intersectionality as a tool for examining interlocking systems of oppression, attending to dynamics of power and privilege, and resisting the tendency to put different identities under erasure. We will discuss the approaches individuals have taken to disclosure in diverse institutional contexts, opportunities to make strategic use of disclosure, the lines between public and private disclosure, and legal considerations surrounding disclosure.

Theme: Author Meets Readers: Elizabeth Pritchard's *Religion in Public: Locke's Political Theology

Friday, 9:30 AM–12:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-303

Craig Martin, St. Thomas Aquinas College, Presiding

This panel brings together scholars from different fields to discuss Elizabeth Pritchard's recent book on John Locke's political theology and its legacy for how we think about secularization, the public/private divide, religion and power, and liberalism's configuration of toleration and religious freedom, to name a few themes. The panel will surely draw a wide scholarly audience by considering a series of historical, methodological, political, and theoretical questions: how might Pritchard's rereading of a foundational archive in secularization theory change our approach to contemporary theoretical debates over secularization? How does Locke's political theology compare to some of his rough contemporaries (e.g. Hobbes, Spinoza, etc.)? What previously unmarked forms of religiosity does this text make visible? What resources does this text offer for analyzing liberalism's figuration of religion and the legacy of that figuration both in its Anglo-American context and in its colonial reach? What are some of the legal "lessons" to learn from rethinking Locke? What resources does this text offer for studying religious phenomena? And, finally: in spite of definitive evidence to the contrary, the supposedly Lockean definition of religion as private and apolitical remains persuasive and appealing to religious practitioners and scholars alike; why does this definition persist and how might Pritchard's work shed light on the social, political, theological, and scholarly stakes of this persistence?

San Diego City Tour

Friday, 1:00 PM–5:00 PM

Meet at Convention Center-Hall H Foyer

As the birthplace of California, San Diego is blessed with a rich history, stunning geography and a Mediterranean climate, making it one of the world's most delightful cities. Your bus tour begins with an introduction to the downtown area, with its modern buildings and bustling businesses, which is in stark contrast to the historic Gaslamp Quarter located just a few blocks away. We'll cross the award winning Coronado Bay Bridge next, where you will visit the island and drive by one of San Diego's most treasured icons, the Hotel del Coronado. As we return to the mainland, enjoy the open beauty and manicured lawns of Balboa Park, the nation's largest urban cultural park and site of the 1915 Panama-California Expo. We'll continue on to San Diego's birthplace in Old Town where you have free time to explore the historic exhibits, as well as the numerous shops and restaurants in this unique village atmosphere.

The tour will continue to La Jolla ("the jewel" in Spanish), where you will be able to gaze out onto the beautiful Pacific Ocean, driving by Bird Rock to watch the kayakers, and then by the children's pool, which is now a sanctuary for the local sea lions. You will continue onto Mount Soledad, where in 1946, a cross was built for Korean War heroes. This monument has been the source of a long-running legal case regarding the separation of church and state. You'll drive by the Embarcadero and Marine Museum, which holds a collection of many historical ships, including the famous USS Midway. Passing Seaport Village and the fishing fleet, the bus heads back to the Convention Center. The cost of the tour is $40.

Theme: Teaching Visual Arts in Religious Studies and Theology Classrooms

Friday, 1:00 PM–5:00 PM

Marriott Marquis-Laguna

Wilson Yates, United Theological Seminary of the Twin Cities, Paul Myhre, Wabash Center, Vivian-Lee Nyitray, Prospect College (Yuanjing College), and David Morgan, Duke University, Presiding

This workshop will provide faculty with various strategies and methods for teaching the visual arts in religious studies and theology classrooms. Participants will explore a range of ways by which specific pedagogical methods can help students engage the visual arts as loci for the study of religious studies, theology, ethics, bible, etc. Specific attention will be given to the following pedagogical methods: a dialogical method that sees artist, art, and the viewer (theologian, ethicists, whoever) in conversation with the viewer drawing on material from other disciplines; a method that considers the role of material evidence, which means beginning with methodological questions in order to engage students (and colleagues no less) in the definition of evidence in historical and cultural analysis; and a method that attends to the ethics of observation as part of the hermeneutics of visual cultures, including the viewer's gaze. Workshop participants will explore both meta-level questions about engaging the visual arts and explore specific strategies for teaching visual arts in contemporary higher educational contexts through a range of questions. The pre-meeting workshop will include mini-lectures, plenary conversations, and small group work. In addition, participants will be exposed to materials for study and teaching including: methods of visual analysis, ethics of inquiry, exhibition practices, subject areas (Christianity, Buddhism, Islam, etc.), theories of visual culture, and so on.

Pre-registration is required for this event and limited to the first 50 registrants. To register, contract Trish Overpeck at overpecp@wabash.edu.

AAR/SBL Women's Caucus Brown Bag Luncheon: Ecofeminism and Earth Healing

Friday, 1:30 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-14A

Theresa Ann Yugar, Claremont Graduate University, Presiding, Elizabeth Ursic, Mesa Community College, and Kathy McCallie, Phillips Theological Seminary, Presiding

Come enjoy the camaraderie of the Women's Caucus and network with other scholars. The 2014 pre-conference luncheon will focus on the contribution of [eco]feminism, theories and praxis, to the theological academy. Feminism, like ecofeminism, has offered fresh/new/alternative perspectives in the disciplines of theology and Bible, particularly on the intersection of God, religion and humanity's relationship with human and non-human nature. In this light, this panel will explore the ways that ecofeminist perspectives have shaped and could profoundly shape God-talk and discourse in the study of religion and public life. Case studies are ideal as a starting point for a reflection on this topic moving from a micro to a macro perspective on a globally sensitized universe where varied disciplines in religion are positive mediums in promoting earth-healing practices.

Theme: Re-appropriation and Re-examination of Raimon Panikkar's Thoughts

Friday, 2:00 PM–6:00 PM

Marriott Marquis-La Costa

Young-chan Ro, George Mason University, Presiding

This panel is to explore some of the fundamental issues involved in Raimon Pannikar's theological approach, philosophical analysis, and metaphysical structure to unpack the intellectual and spiritual foundation of his thinking. In this respect, the panel will focus on Panikkar's idea of the triadic myth and the Trinitarian structure of reality. Panikkar's re-interpretation of the Trinity as the universal structure of all beings challenges the monopoly of the traditional Christian doctrine of Trinity by extending it to the triadic model of all beings. The panel will also discuss about Panikkar's eschatology, ontology, and Christology in relationship to other traditions including Asian and African traditions, and the gender issues. The symposium is followed by a reception.

Theme: Liberation Theology and Engaged Buddhism: Challenging Each Other, Learning from Each Other

Friday, 4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Omni-Gallery 3B

Kristin Largen, Lutheran Theological Seminary, Presiding

"Liberation Theology" includes any form of interpreting the Christian message that addresses the needs of the world by seeking to transform the structures of the world. "Engaged Buddhism" seeks non-violently to address social problems and needs on the basis of Buddhist thought and practice. Everyone on this panel is acquainted, to a reasonable degree, with both perspectives, and is exploring ways that Christian and Buddhist social analyses pose challenges to each other, while also providing new opportunities to learn from each other. Does each tradition have limitations that it does not see clearly enough until viewed from the point of view of the other tradition? Does each have strengths from which the other should learn? Panel presenters will each speak to a selection of topics under that rubric.

Film: The New Black

Friday, 8:00 PM–10:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-305

Horace Griffin, Pacific School of Religion, Presiding

Sponsored by the Status of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Intersex, and Queer Persons in the Profession Committee, Afro-American Religious History Group, Black Theology Group, and Womanist Approaches to Religion and Society Group.

The award-winning documentary film The New Black tells the story of how the African-American community is addressing LGBTIQ rights in light of the marriage equality movement. This film documents activists, families, and clergy on both sides of the campaign to legalize same-sex marriage, and it examines homophobia in the black community's institutional pillar — the black church. The New Black takes viewers into the pews and onto the streets and provides a seat at the kitchen table as it tells the story of the historic fight to win marriage equality in Maryland and charts the evolution of this issue within the black community. The film screening will be followed by brief presentations and a moderated discussion.

8:00 AM–10:00 AM - Board Meeting

10:00 AM–11:30 AM - Special Session

12:00 PM–2:00 PM - Board Meeting

This session will offer a brief comment on the theologian's interest in 20th and 21st century visual art that began roughly 70 years ago. Certain of the successes important to developing that conversation and certain of the failures that still haunt us will be acknowledged. In response to where we have been and where we are, I will sketch the importance of a dialogical approach in which the viewer, the artwork, and the artists are each necessarily present in a conversation that takes seriously the formal aspects of art, the importance of style, the artists sense of the work and intentions for it, the viewers' theological interests and skill at interpretation and the context of all three parties at the table.

Theme: Job Transitions over 40 with a PhD

Saturday, 9:00 AM–10:30 AM

Grand Hyatt-Coronado A

Changing your career at midlife isn't easy, and the PhD can be both an asset and a hindrance. This workshop will provide an overview of the specific challenges that over 40s with a PhD face in making career transitions, either into or outside of academia. We will discuss the conditions and concerns that people at midlife face and you will quickly realize that you are not alone. We will become empowered by the idea that a job is only one facet of a person's life, and nowhere is that more evident than in middle age.

We will also do some exercises to help identify skills, discuss strategies for talking about one's varied career history confidently to prospective employers and also to others. We will work on advanced elevator pitches designed for people in career transition. We will discuss the importance of networking and continuing education and discuss ways to leverage these resources in the community.

Finally we will look at some case studies of individuals who have been successful with career transitions at midlife, one who worked in religion and moved successfully to an academic career, and hear their inspiring stories and tips.

Theme: Teaching World Religions: Challenges and Opportunities Using The Norton Anthology of World Religions (2014)

Saturday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-9

Kimberly Rae Connor, University of San Francisco, Presiding

The newly published Norton Anthology of World Religions is a two-volume, 4000 page anthology of hundreds of primary texts, includes the six major, living, international, religious traditions with introductions and text-by-text headnotes by the respective associate editors. All experts in their fields, the editors have chosen both canonical and contemporary texts—including some in contested areas—and in between, representations from the long, less-visited middle of each tradition. Our goal is to explore the ways this achievement in scholarship and publishing translates into pedagogy and classroom application. By establishing a link between our committees' purviews, we hope to recognize the link between the work of specialists in their various disciplines and the teachers in the classroom who rely on these materials to provide instruction.

The general editor of the project will establish the birth and growth of this large and complex work and with the panelists will discuss how a professor trained in some aspect of Christianity or Judaism but called on to teach world religions responsibly might use this work to gain a rapid overall orientation and a classroom resource.

They will also explore how a department of religious studies with a world religions curriculum, with or without a graduate program in world religions, could use this work as a foundation and shared reference point.

Theme: Keywords: Religion and... the Limits of Normativity

Saturday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-22

Ann Braude, Harvard University, Presiding

Adapting the keywords framework developed by Raymond Williams in which he identified central ideas and categories ("keywords") from the dominant culture and went about deconstructing and reconstructing normative uses, misconceptions, ideological formations and manipulations, and possible ways that these keywords might be clarified and opened up to emancipatory possibilities, the panel explores how "religion" is deployed as a keyword from Asian American studies, African American studies, Latina/o studies, and Native American studies. Scholars from each of these disciplines will begin the dialogue with a presentation of "religion" as a keyword from their respective fields, as well as discuss how religion as a keyword figures in each of these racial and ethnic traditions and communities.

Theme: The Shifting Boundaries of the Secular, Spiritual, and Religious

Saturday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-30C

Marc Pugliese, Saint Leo University, Presiding

This panel brings together papers that explore the fluid, antagonistic, and overlapping boundaries of the secular, spiritual, and religious. Each paper considers how various actors draw these boundaries differently by relying on multiple understandings of the religious and the secular and by creating hybrid identities that cut across religious traditions or the secular/religious divide. Together they reveal the wide range of unique configurations of the secular, spiritual, and religious and further nuance our understanding of their co-constitution.

Theme: Researching Sexuality and Religion: Cultivating Self-Reflexive Practices and Ethical Relationalities

Saturday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-28A

Katherine Ewing, Columbia University, Presiding

To date there appear to be few empirically grounded studies on the intimate topic of religion and sexuality that render transparent the self-reflexive practices of the researcher and the intricate relationship that evolves between the researcher and the researched. Although the importance of self-reflexivity and the development of ethically sound research relationships are stressed by numerous scholars in religious studies, few in fact "showcase" these critical processes in their writing. Hence, what does a commitment to self-reflexivity actually mean; and how do we do it?

This roundtable seeks to address these important questions by highlighting some of our own experiences of doing empirical research, our ethical quandaries "pre-field", "in the field", and "post-field", and whether research on the intimate topic of religion and sexuality requires new and innovative methodological approaches that are increasingly responsive to our research focus.

John B. Cobb, Jr.

John B. Cobb, Jr., has exerted extraordinary influence on how scholars think about a wide range of topics. In addition to being a foremost spokesman for process theology, Cobb's work on economics, liberal theology, postmodernism, ecology, Wesleyan theology, politics, metaphysics, feminism, religious pluralism, science and religion, and more is remarkable. Cobb has authored more than 50 books, co-established a major theological center for research, and is recognized around the world as an extraordinary scholar of transdisciplinary studies. His stamp on theology — especially in America and China — is indelible. As Cobb nears his 90th birthday (Feb. 2015), this quad-sponsored session honors his intellectual legacy. Panelists explore Cobb's contributions to many subjects, and Cobb will be present in the session to respond.

Theme: Release of PRRI/AAR National Survey on Religion, Values, and Climate Change

Saturday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-20D

Robert P. Jones, Public Religion Research Institute, Washington, D.C., Presiding

What do Americans think about climate change, and how do religious and moral beliefs impact their opinions about science, human responsibility, and environmental policies? This panel will feature the release of a new national public opinion survey, conducted by Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI) in collaboration with the AAR. The survey of 3,000 Americans is one of the largest surveys on religion and climate change ever conducted.

The survey explores a range of topics, including Americans' belief or skepticism about the reality of climate change; the roles that partisanship, religion, and media consumption play in the development of those views; whether Americans see climate change as a manageable problem or an imminent crisis; how committed Millennials are to the issue of climate change; and how important policies that address climate change are to different religious groups.

S. Kip Elolia, Emmanuel Christian Seminary, Presiding

The roundtable discussion offers a profile of African Theology from its inception and break from the mission Churches in the 1950s. Before then, there was no conscious engagement between Western mission theology and African culture. African theology was therefore an attempt to bring about such a dialogue. Over the years, other variations of African theology emerged out of particular contexts. Black African theology arose out of the racist context of South Africa. Another significant approach was developed by the Circle of concerned African women that challenged the prevalence of patriarchy in the culture and the Church. We shall consider the methodology and general contributions of professional theologians as well as the stories of the poor in communities where faith is lived concretely, after all it is the poor people that give form and texture to African theology. Indeed it is in their context that African theology is given birth.

Ritual Studies Workshop

Theme: Possession, Exorcism, and Psychiatry on Film

Saturday, 9:00 AM–12:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-303

Jens Kreinath, Wichita State University, Presiding

The main questions addressed in this film screening are:

- What is the relationship between ethnographic film, ritual healing, and religious experience?
- What possibilities can the medium of film offer for studying ritual healing and religious experience?
- Which aspects of ritual and religion can we express and communicate through film?
- How has ethnographic film influenced our understanding of ritual and religious experience?

This film screening will address these issues based on two recent ethnographic films, namely Vertigo, Vodoun, Verite (Sasha Rubel, 25 min, 2011) and Descending with Angels (Christian Suhr, 75. min, 2013). These films experiment with the use of film as a means for exploring possession ritual in two distinct ways.

Sasha Rubel's Vertigo, Vodoun, Verite includes footage of possession dances in France and Benin. Rubel uses montage as a cinematographic technique to translate trance-inducing rhythms into a filmic form, incorporating the bodies of viewers directly in the ritual action. The montage is a technique for providing resonance and syncopation between synchronizing sounds and images, humans and spirits, and film subjects and viewers.

Christian Suhr's film Descending with Angels documents Muslim psychiatric patients in Denmark. These patients find themselves torn between psychiatrists prescribing psychotropic medications and Muslim healers prescribing prayers and exorcism. Here, a montage of footage is used as a method of comparison and critique. By juxtaposing Islamic exorcism and Danish psychiatry, views of the human psyche, science, and religion are turned upside down.

Both films will be shown along with critical presentations by each of the two directors. One respondent, Rane Willerslev, will further elaborate on the possibilities and limitations in applying film to the study of ritual and religious experience.

Theme: Strategies of Mythmaking at Christian Tourist Attractions

Saturday, 9:30 AM–11:50 AM

Hilton Bayfront-202B

This panel theorizes four present-day Christian tourist attractions as sites of ongoing social and mythic formation: The Creation Museum in Petersburg, KY, the Ark Encounter in Williamstown, KY, Bible Walk in Mansfield, OH, and the Holy Land Experience in Orlando, FL. Working from Bruce Lincoln's observation that "myth is ideology in narrative form," the papers examine various strategies by which Christian tourist attractions enable visitors to interact directly within mythic configurations. This direct interaction functions as a type of pilgrimage, whereby visitors locate themselves within a mythic trajectory that begins with the creation of the world and points toward an eternity with (or, perhaps, without) Christ.

Theme: Sharing Your PhD: Using the "Religion in North Carolina Digital Collection" to Explore Creative Approaches to Doctoral Formation

Saturday, 11:00 AM–12:00 PM

Convention Center-14B

Pauline Kneale and others have highlighted the need for graduate training that both fosters self-awareness of one's formation and relates to "employability." The academic job market increasingly requires candidates to demonstrate skills in non-traditional areas such as personal effectiveness, decision-making, and awareness of institutional dynamics. The federally funded Religion in North Carolina Digital Collection demonstrates a new model for training scholars of religion. Data indicates that this project has produced desirable outcomes. These include the acquisition of skills in networking, program development and management, digital humanities, and marketing projects to audiences within and outside the university. This creative partnership between the library and academic departments is a model for producing better prepared and more versatile scholars, with skills important to succeeding in both academic positions and careers outside traditional academia. The presenter will be able to discuss his experience as a participant in this grant funded project.

The IPCC has completed four full assessment reports, guidelines and methodologies, special reports and technical papers.

The IPCC has three working groups:

Working Group I: The Science of Climate Change

Working Group II: Impacts, Adaptation and Vulnerability

Working Group III: Mitigation of Climate Change

Two representatives of Working Group II will address the scientific, technical, environmental, economic and social aspects of the vulnerability (sensitivity and adaptability) to climate change of, and the negative and positive consequences for, ecological systems, socio-economic sectors and human health.

Theme: Graduate Training and Scholarly Formation

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-23A

Adam D. J. Brett, Syracuse University, Presiding

Graduate training is one of the foundations of our academy. It shapes individual scholars, academic structures and expectations, and conceptual categories and methods within scholarship. This panel considers the following: Are scholars in the academic study of religion "well trained"? For what are students being trained? Through which avenues does scholarly formation take place?

How does graduate training shape scholarly identity and career options? How do mentoring relationships factor into graduate training? What innovative methods and "best practices" have been developed by those doing the training and those experiencing the training? To what extent does this training take into account the conditions of graduate life? These concerns relate to the larger task of how we might re-envision the relationship of graduate training to the rest of the academy and how a critical re-evaluation of our current practices of scholarly formation could be used shape the future of our discipline.

Theme: Editing Encyclopedias and Handbooks in Religious Studies in the Twenty-first Century: Aims and Challenges

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-29A

Rhonda Burnette-Bletsch, Greensboro College, Presiding

In the age of the Internet, Wikipedia, digitalization, and tightened library budgets, what purposes are served by large reference works, specifically encyclopedias and handbooks, in religious studies? What are their uses in research and teaching? What roles can, and do, they play in the production and advancement of knowledge? Who are their intended readers, and how are these readers—including their needs and experiences—changing? Comprised of editors and co-editors of major reference works in religious studies, this panel will discuss these and related questions, and assess the future prospects of such resources.

Theme: Work/Life Balance? Relationships and Academic Life

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-28D

Jacqueline Hidalgo, Williams College, Presiding

As part of the Status of Women in the Profession's multi-year project on work/life balance, this panel will discuss the possibilities and challenges of navigating "relationships" in academic life. The main foci of this discussion will include: academic careers when both spouses/partners are academics; academic and institutional cultures of heteronormativity; career decisions while also taking care of one's elderly parents; and being single amidst academic and institutional cultures of "couple normativity." For more information on the project, go to: https://www.aarweb.org/worklife-balance-project.

Theme: Roundtable Discussion of Christian Wedemeyer's Making Sense of Tantric Buddhism: History, Semiology, and Transgression in the Indian Traditions (Columbia University Press, 2013)

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-30A

John Nemec, University of Virginia, Presiding

Christian K. Wedemeyer's Making Sense of Tantric Buddhism: History, Semiology, and Transgression in the Indian Traditions, published in 2013 and awarded the AAR's prize for Excellence in the Study of Religion (Historical Studies) the same year, offers a renewed estimation of the place of tantric ideas and practices in the history of Buddhism—and Hinduism—by challenging preconceived notions regarding the very antinomian practices that have served to marginalize Tantra.

Applying the ideas of Roland Barthes, Wedemeyer develops a constructive analysis of the many texts that describe tantric transgressive practices and argues, firstly, that they were rarely practiced and, secondly and counter-intuitively, that they served to reinforce normative practices in Buddhism. This panel will explore the implications of this book for our understanding of Buddhist and Hindu tantra, Buddhism in India and Tibet, yogic practice, and, ultimately, Buddhist thought and practice tout court.

Theme: A New Theology of Hope? An Ecumenical Reception of John Thiel's Icons of Hope (University of Notre Dame Press, 2013)

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-29C

Joy McDougall, Emory University, Presiding

John Thiel's Icons of Hope: The Last Things in Catholic Imagination (2013) reimagines Roman Catholic eschatology in response to its eclipse in post-conciliar theology and piety. Eschewing a dogmatic restoration of traditional teachings, Thiel instead puts these teachings on a new footing. He anchors them in a Catholic "non-competitive spirituality," in which the moral value of works does not compete with God's perfectly gracious gift of salvation, and in which persons of faith do not compete in a "hierarchy of discipleship" that has ascetical values as its ideal. Here heaven offers an unbounded time to consummate the unfinished earthly work of human reconciliation and forgiveness. Finally, Thiel imagines the Last Judgment as a collective event in which individuals confront the wounds inflicted by their broken promises and their corporate entanglement in social sin. Icons of Hope presents a provocative new "Theology of Hope" in its speculative agenda and ecumenical impulses. In this spirit, this session engages in a constructive ecumenical conversation with Thiel's project with the aim of promoting a wider debate in Christian eschatology today.

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Kirsi Stjerna, Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, and Philip Stoltzfus, United Theological Seminary of the Twin Cities, Presiding

This session explores the ways in which the music of Johann Sebastian Bach appropriates and extends the theology of Martin Luther, and how Albert Schweitzer, a Lutheran theologian and Bach expert, articulates this legacy for later generations in different global contexts. Weaving together the expertise of theologians and musicologists, the session consists of presentations and a live performance of significant portions of BWV 77 "Du sollt Gott, deinen Herren, Lieben" by The Boston University Marsh Chapel Choir with the Bach Collegium San Diego. The interconnectedness of law and gospel/law and love in the theological visions of Luther and Bach are explored in light of Schweitzer's philosophy of "Reverence for Life" and with analysis of the numerology and symbolism used in Bach's music. Interpreted together, Luther, Bach and Schweitzer address the human condition, the God-given-ness of redemption, and the commonality of the creatures' "Will to Live."

Theme: Junior Faculty Activism

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-31B

Joseph Tucker Edmonds, Indiana University-Purdue University, Indianapolis, Presiding

In what kinds of contemporary campus activism are junior faculty engaged? How do junior faculty's definitions of activism align and/or conflict with those of the institutions in which they work? This panel examines both conventional and unconventional forms of activism, and the stakes involved for junior faculty. It includes the voices of faculty who make public political stands on issues of the day and those who work in their own institutions to encourage economic, gender, or racial equity. But it also incorporates the activism of those who advocate progressive pedagogies or who understand their teaching — wherever it takes place— to be a work of activism.

Theme: Presidential Panel: The Category of Religion in the Technology of Statecraft: Theorizing Religions as Vestigial States

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront-202B

Robert A. Yelle, University of Munich, Presiding

This panel will explore the theory that religions can be productively and interestingly thought of as vestigial states. Naomi Goldenberg describes 'religions' as sets of institutions, ideologies and practices that originate with reference to former sovereignties. The term 'religion' gains traction through history and is applied to 'states' that have been displaced through war, invasion or colonization. Vestigial states – i.e. 'religions' – are both tolerated and encouraged as attenuated and marginalized governments within fully functioning nation states as long as most forms of violence are renounced. Indeed, vestigial states tend to behave as once and future states that, although always restive, nevertheless ground the powers that authorize them by recalling earlier, now mystified forms of male sovereignty from which present (i.e. 'secular') states arise.

Theme: The Promiscuous Term Paper: CV Building through Effective Use of Seminar Papers

Saturday, 4:00 PM–5:00 PM

Convention Center-14B

Graduate school has been compared to sprinting a marathon. How are students to complete the task at hand without going insane or losing all their hair? I propose that they use smart planning, or what I like to call "the promiscuous term paper." Here's how it works: when I start a term paper I look at my comprehensive exam reading list and integrate a few of these books into my bibliography. I then submit an abstract of the finished paper to a conference and turn this presentation into an article. At the end I have knocked off four tasks with one assignment. Some may ask if this is legitimate, but in my program at Boston College they actually encourage this sort of thing. This roundtable will get students to think strategically about their work as a multi-faceted project, and not just a one-off assignment.

Public Understanding of Religion Committee and Religion and Politics Section

Theme: Promise and Peril in the US Government's Engagement with Religious Communities

Saturday, 4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center-20D

Erik Owens, Boston College, Presiding

This panel will discuss recent efforts by the United States government to engage religious communities on domestic and international policy issues. The White House Office of Faith Based and Neighborhood Partnerships (founded in 2001 as the White House Office of Faith-Based Initiatives) coordinates the executive branch's engagement of religious communities on domestic policy issues, while several offices at the State Department play related roles with regard to US foreign policy. Unique questions of principle and practice arise in both contexts, including the government's use and understanding of "religion"; which religious communities or leaders are selected for "engagement" (are dissenting and minority groups also a part of the process?); the nature of that engagement; the connection to the national security agenda and apparatus; and, not least, the constitutional questions regarding religious establishment. Panelists include a diverse array of scholars and practitioners who have extensive experience with the US government's efforts.

Based on notions that scholars have an understanding of the books needed in the fields of religion, religious studies, and theology, the AAR publishing program with Oxford University Press (OUP) produces quality scholarship for religious scholars and their students. OUP is an outstanding international publisher and the AAR has published hundreds of titles, many of which have become critical tools in the development of our fields and in training new scholars. AAR/OUP books include five published series: Academy Series; Reflection and Theory in the Study of Religion Series; Religion, Culture and History; Religion in Translation Series; and Teaching Religious Studies Series.

Contingent Faculty Task Force

Theme: Contingency in Religious Studies: A Roundtable

Saturday, 4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Marriott Marquis-Marina F

David Harrington Watt, Temple University, Presiding

According to the American Association of University Professors, 76% of instructional staff at American universities are non-tenure track positions. 50% of faculty hold part-time positions. The modern university relies heavily on contingent labor for student instruction. While there is much general information about the experiences of non-tenure track faculty in the humanities, this roundtable explores how the adjunctification of higher education impacts the work and lives of religious studies scholars. Relying upon short presentations, each panelist explores the effects of contingency in our lives. Additionally, the panelists are members of the new AAR Contingency Task Force, and we are eager to hear the audience's experiences of contract labor. The AAR realizes that contingency is a major issue to address and hopes to find ways to support non-tenure track faculty.

Theme: From Advisor = Mentor to Color Matching: Questioning Common Assumptions About Mentoring in Religious Studies and Theology

Saturday, 5:00 PM–6:00 PM

Convention Center-14B

Much of what graduate students are told about mentoring and career paths at the beginning of their graduate studies is often insufficient and inadequate. Many students are told their advisor is their primary mentor and sole source for career advice (the conventional model of apprenticeship), erratic mentoring is better than no mentoring, every student has equal access to mentors, and that someone of your own race/ethnicity will automatically be a superior mentor. So what are the elements of mentoring and how can graduate students increase their own capacity for mentorship? Drawing from the lived experience of graduate students and related research on mentoring in graduate education, this presentation will discuss mentoring styles (individual, group or network), functions (career, psycho-social, informal or formal), and creative mentee strategies. Participants will have the opportunity to create their own mentor network map to apply within the context of their mentoring and support practices.

Religious Education Association

Theme: God Beyond Borders: Interreligious Learning and Global Possibilities

Saturday, 6:30 PM–8:00 PM

Marriott Marquis-Carlsbad

Harold Horell, Fordham University, Presiding

How can people of differing religious traditions learn from one another? What within each religious tradition inspires its congregations to build interfaith cooperation? How can they work together to bring the wisdom of religious traditions into public discussions of socio-moral issues?

This panel discussion will focus on these and other questions as it explores the ground breaking book God Beyond Borders: Interreligious Learning Among Faith Communities by Sheryl Kujawa-Holbrook. The book offers a comprehensive overview of current practices of interreligious learning in faith communities in the United States. It discusses interreligious families, clergy groups, chaplaincies, and community organizations; and examines interreligious encounters, prayer, and social action.

The panelists—international, inter-professional, inter-disciplinary—are border-crossers and bridge-builders who have contributed significantly to scholarship on religious plurality, interreligious dialogue, teaching religious diversity, conflict resolution, justice and reconciliation. Discussion will explore the promises and possibilities of interreligious education in our global, postmodern age.

God Beyond Borders is the first book in Horizons in Religious Education, a new series from the Religious Education Association.

Film: Trails of Hope and Terror

Saturday, 7:00 PM–9:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-300A

Miguel A. De La Torre, Iliff School of Theology, and Vincent De La Torre, Denver, CO, Presiding

The film Trails of Hope and Terror, based on the book by the same name which was written by Miguel De La Torre, explores the plight of the undocumented Latin American immigrant from their perspectives. Through the stories of two young teenage girls — one a story of hope while the other a story of terror — the film explores how the present broken immigration laws creates oppression and repression. The film focuses on why we have an immigration problem, how the militarization of the borders creates abuse and death to many crossing borders, and how some, based on their religious convictions, stand in solidarity with the disenfranchised. This film is designed to unmask the underlining causes of oppression on our southern borders which the national immigration narrative ignores. The estimated time of the film is 1 hour. A trailer to the film can be watched at: http://vimeo.com/79285280.

Film: Frisbee: The Life and Death of a Hippy Preacher

Saturday, 8:00 PM–10:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-303

Michael J. McClymond, Saint Louis University, Presiding

Sponsored by the Pentecostal-Charismatic Movements Group

Lonnie Frisbee was a young hippie seeker fully immersed in the 1960s counter culture when he claimed to have experienced an encounter with God while on an acid trip. This event so transformed him that Lonnie became an itinerant Christian evangelist, something of a John the Baptist of Southern California who compelled thousands of fellow spiritual seekers to make a profession of faith in Jesus Christ. During the 1970s Lonnie Frisbee became widely known as California's "hippie preacher," the quintessential "Jesus freak" whose pictures frequented such magazines as Time and Life as the media told the story of a burgeoning "Jesus movement." Lonnie Frisbee provided the charismatic spark that launched the Calvary Chapel church into a worldwide ministry and propelled many fledgling leaders into some of the most powerful movers and shakers of the evangelical movement. During the 1980s Lonnie was at the center of the "signs and wonders" movement, one that focused on reviving the practice of spiritual power through diving healing, speaking in tongues and other demonstrative manners of manifesting the power of God. But besides his influence and beyond the miraculous stories that swirl in the wake of his life, what makes the story most fascinating is that his call into the ministry came while deeply involved in the Laguna Beach homosexual scene. Treated with contempt by the ministers whom he helped establish, Lonnie has been written out of their collective histories. He died as a result of the AIDS virus in 1993.

G-DOG

Documentary, 2012, TRT: 92 mins

Written, produced and directed by Oscar-winner Freida Mock

G-DOG is about second chances - about a charismatic visionary who launched Homeboy Industries the largest, most successful gang intervention and rehab program in the country.

The film tells the entertaining, hilarious and unlikely story of how a white Jesuit priest became an expert in gang lives. Called "G-Dog" by his homies – Jesuit Father Greg Boyle centers his work compassion, creating kinship, and takes unconditional love to the extremes. His book, Tattoos of the Heart, captures more of these stories.

G-DOG chronicles a tough year at Homeboy Industries: 2010 was rife with tumult, change and pain.

Out of the Fire

Narrative short film, 2010 TRT: 11 mins

Produced and Directed by AAR member, Dr. Jeanette Reedy Solano

Featuring Homeboy Industries former gang members turned poets, this narrative short follows Marco, newly released from prison, as he chooses between returning to his gang family or reconciling with his 4 year old daughter and starting over. The talented musicians, poets, and artists of Homeboy Industries enrich the film. It is a faith-based story of despair, discipline, discovery, and hope.

Tomáš Halík

According to C. G. Jung, human life is like a day, the first half of which — the "morning" — involves the task of building the personality's external structure. After that comes the "noontime crisis." In the second part of one's life, "in the afternoon," one can stand back and set off on a journey "into the depths."

From its beginning until the dawn of modern times, the history of Christianity was "the morning," during which its institutional and doctrinal aspects evolved. Christianity, especially in Europe, is now undergoing a protracted "mid-life crisis" that it can only overcome if it realizes that it is standing at a critical crossroads and chooses one of many possible avenues.

Tomáš Halík, a Czech priest and philosopher who risked imprisonment for illegally advancing religious and cultural freedoms after the Soviet invasion of his country, and has since become a leading international advocate for dialogue among different faiths and non-believers, won the 2014 Templeton Prize.

Reading together in community in friendship has been the focus of the Buddhist Resources for Womanist Reflection gatherings between scholars in Buddhist Studies and Womanist Religious Thought since 2009. Together, these scholars have engaged in interreligious critical conversation and dialogue about the contributions that each field makes to the other on issues of justice, peace, and compassion when reading Buddhist texts from Sri Lanka, Tibet, and Japan. The Womanist scholars on this panel will share reflections on their engagement with particular Buddhist texts, showing how a Womanist lens can freshly illumine aspects of Buddhism and how Buddhism can provide new resources for Womanist reflection.

What events would you like to see the Graduate Student Committee plan in the future? What are your main concerns as a student member within the American Academy of Religion? How can the Graduate Student Committee better represent student needs? This is also an opportunity to ask questions and to learn more about student resources and initiatives. You will have an opportunity to meet the regionally elected student directors who serve on the Graduate Student Committee and represent students on their regional board of directors. This is also a great opportunity to network with other student members and to learn tips for making the most of your Annual Meeting experience and AAR membership.

Plenary Address

Theme: Religion and the Roots of Climate Change Skepticism

Sunday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-20D

Erik Owens, Boston College, Presiding

In the face of a robust scientific consensus that the Earth's climate is slowly changing and that humans are at least partly responsible for this change, a persistent and vocal minority of skeptics has gained traction in American public discourse. Some skeptics reject scientific findings about global warming trends; many others deny human responsibility for the trends. In both cases, religious beliefs about God's sovereignty frequently undergird the skepticism and influence the larger debates about how societies can mitigate climate change or adapt our way of life to adjust to the new realities.

This roundtable brings together four internationally renowned scholars and religious leaders—a Christian evangelical climate scientist, a professor of modern Jewish philosophy and rabbinical thought, an historian of science specializing in debates about climate change, and an evangelical leader in the "creation care" movement—to discuss climate change skepticism and its role in religious communities. A robust discussion among panelists and the audience will follow opening comments from each speaker.

Theme: Negotiating Disclosure

Sunday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-26

Julia Watts Belser, Georgetown University, Presiding

Academics often face challenging questions about whether, when, and how to disclose personal information within the academy—in graduate school, on the job market, or to fellow colleagues. In this session, panelists will address complexities of negotiating disclosure related to disability, sexual identity, family status and pregnancy, racial/ethnic identity and/or religious perspectives and commitment. We pay particular attention to intersectionality as a tool for examining interlocking systems of oppression, attending to dynamics of power and privilege, and resisting the tendency to put different identities under erasure. We will discuss the approaches individuals have taken to disclosure in diverse institutional contexts, opportunities to make strategic use of disclosure, the lines between public and private disclosure, and legal considerations surrounding disclosure.

Hannah Hofheinz, Harvard University, Presiding

In regards to religious identity and conversion this panel seeks to examine issues relating to how conversion establishes and destabilizes identity formation. Jewish, Evangelical Christian, and Fundamentalist Christian cases are explored where belonging to gender strict faith communities with conventional and predetermined sexual identity templates makes individual human conversion/reconversion/change necessary. In the Pagan case, the community itself converts the sexual identity of its deities—not only its symbolisation but its conceptualization—by letting gender fluidity evolve in the divine keeping a strong experiential tie between individual experience of gender and interpretations of the world of spirit. Panelists make use of historical material, ethnography and personal experiences. The panel seeks to examine deeply the questions of what is ideal and what is real, and asks whether an evolving Goddess (or God) makes a difference.

Wildcard Session

Theme: Videographic Methods in Studying Ritual

Sunday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-1A

Laurel Zwissler, Central Michigan University, Presiding

Rituals were a staple, if not the dominant subject matter, of visual anthropology from its beginning at the dawn of the twentieth century. Even so, the use of audio-visual technology has been slow in coming to the ethnographic study of religion generally and the study of ritual specifically. University teachers have appropriated films in classrooms but rarely reflected methodologically and theoretically on AV technology or treated documentary video as primary subject matter. This session is built around responses to the videography of four books on ritual:

Ronald L. Grimes, Ritual Studies International, Waterloo, ON
The Craft of Ritual Studies (Oxford University Press, 2013)

Responding:

Kathryn McClymond, Georgia State University

Barry Stephenson, Memorial University

Sarah M. Pike, California State University, Chico

Ute Huesken, University of Oslo
Vishnu's Children: Prenatal Life-cycle Rituals in South India (Harrassowitz Verlag, 2009)

Responding:

Frederick M. Smith, University of Iowa

Among the questions we expect to discuss are: How are scholars currently using video to study ritual? What does video offer that writing does not? What are the problems with using videographic methods? How are visual presentations related to verbal arguments? What are the theoretical implications of using video to study ritual? What's the next step?

Theme: Effective Teaching: What We Know From Research on Learning

Sunday, 10:00 AM–11:00 AM

Convention Center-14B

In the past 25 years, research on how people learn has expanded considerably, and is being translated into scholarly work on effective pedagogy. Books like How Learning Works: 7 Research-Based Principles for Smart Teaching, by Susan Ambrose, et.al, (Jossey-Bass 2010) and Cheating Lessons: Learning from Academic Dishonesty (Harvard University Press, 2013) use insights from cognitive science, educational psychology and organizational behavior to offer strategies for enhancing the ways that we can most effectively teach the content and skills our students need to learn. This interactive workshop focuses on bringing effective, research-based teaching strategies into the religious studies classroom.

Susan Hill is the Director of the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning and Professor of Religion at the University of Northern Iowa.

Student Lounge Roundtable

Theme: Managing Your Thesis: Tools Towards Empowerment

Sunday, 12:00 PM–1:00 PM

Convention Center-14B

Unwieldy research projects typically suffer from mismanagement. Indeed unmanageable research is research that, quite simply, is unmanaged, lacking the organizational attention it requires to flourish. Thesis-oriented research projects — like all involved undertakings — require competent project management. Contrary to what most graduate researchers think, it is not the role of the academic advisor to manage the research process. This roundtable is geared towards addressing (or, ideally, preventing) dissertational angst by engaging a simple, but powerful truth: you are your research's Project Manager. This session offers specific administrational tools and strategies designed to empower you to take control of your project. Effective project management can render the dissertation process an enjoyable and expedient one.

Theme: Book Review: For Freedom or Bondage? A Critique of African Pastoral Practices (Eerdmans, 2014) by Esther E. Acolatse

Sunday, 12:00 PM–1:30 PM

Convention Center-29B

The CTRF/AASR panel will host a review and discussion of the book For Freedom or Bondage? A Critique of African Pastoral Practices. The book describes and discusses aspects of the rise of Pentecostal/Charismatic denominations throughout Africa and the Diaspora which account for reports of the explosion of African Christianity and its impact on Christianity globally. This highly influential expression of Christianity includes troubling aspects of pastoral practice in these ecclesial spaces and so necessitates the attention of Pentecostal/Evangelical/Charismatic theologians from both Africa and the West. In this book Acolatse offers a theologically informed pastoral diagnosis of this phenomenon which is relevant to Pentecostal practices across the globe. As such, it offers an opportunity to engage the Pentecostal/Charismatic phenomenon in critical and constructive ways. Panelists will address these and other possibilities as they review the book.

Sunday, 1:00 PM–2:00 PM

Convention Center-14B

"You want me to what…teach?" We've all been there. Having been students for nearly a decade (or more in some instances) and now the appellation of Adjunct Professor is thrust in our faces. Having been a PhD student and an adjunct professor at a four-year research institution and a two-year community college using in-person, online, and hybrid course settings, I have been through this difficult process and through trial and error, discovered efficient techniques for conceptualizing, creating, maintaining, and evaluating introductory through senior-level college courses. In this workshop, I will illustrate the theory behind such models, exemplify these processes and, using a dynamic dialogue, engage attendees with illustrative design techniques and guidelines that will transform their courses using tested techniques with proven results.

Theme: Survey of the Long Term Impacts of Liberal Education on Religious Studies Majors

Sunday, 1:00 PM–2:30 PM

Convention Center-3

Christine E. Gudorf, Florida International University, Presiding

In 2010, the AAR received a grant from the Teagle Foundation to study the long-term impact of liberal education on religious studies majors. With the help of the institutional research team at Georgia State University and the Academic Relations Committee, a survey instrument was developed and piloted in five schools in 2012. Surveys were sent to religious studies majors who had graduated from these schools between 1970 and 2010; 425 surveys were completed and returned for a response rate of 49%. In 2014 dozens more schools participated in the survey (24 of which were helped by small seed grants from the AAR to defray costs). This session will discuss the very promising results from the study with a focus on how this data can help strengthen the case for strong programs of religious studies at our institutions.

Public Understanding of Religion Committee

Theme: The Doniger Affair: Censorship, Self-Censorship, and the Role of the Academy in the Public Understanding of Religion

Sunday, 1:00 PM–2:30 PM

Convention Center-20D

Barbara A. McGraw, Saint Mary's College of California, Presiding

Wendy Doniger

In February 2014, Penguin India agreed to cease all publication of Wendy Doniger's The Hindus: An Alternative History (2009) in connection with the settlement of a defamation lawsuit in India about the book. This alarming development raises major issues for the academic study of religion: censorship, self-censorship, the methodological challenges of authenticity and representation, and tensions between insider and outsider perspectives. Focusing on the Doniger book controversy, this panel will explore the issue of censorship, how identity politics is employed to challenge what constitutes viable scholarship, and how the AAR can maintain a robust, responsible, and open debate on controversial issues, based on well-researched scholarship from many perspectives, to further the public understanding of religion.

Sunday, 1:00 PM–2:30 PM

Mormonism sparks the imagination because of its epic history, theology, cosmology, and its resilience. As such its themes have been taken up in popular cultural forms, especially in science fiction literature, television, and film. This session explores Mormonism and its consequences in outer space as imagined and played out in the wildly popular Battlestar Galactica television series, and the science fictional worlds and actors elaborated in the Enders Game series by Mormon author Orson Scott Card.

Theme: "Jewish Food" in the American Marketplace: Contested Forms

Sunday, 1:00 PM–2:30 PM

Laura S. Levitt, Temple University, Presiding

In the United States, kashrut observance to the letter of the law has diminished for many Jews, even as "Jewish food" has become increasingly popular. This panel will explore a number of spaces, texts, and forms that have been associated with "Jewish food," arguing that these culinary habits and products have been central to the negotiation of authenticity, community, and Jewish difference. Jews have made decisions about what to eat, how to eat, and how to describe their food practices on the basis of convenience, price, local cultures, family traditions, and personal feelings and tastes rather than according to legal obligation or enclosed culinary canons. Contributing to the growing scholarship on religion and food, the visual and material cultures of religion, and Jews and commerce, this panel argues that these decisions about cooking and eating are not inauthentic or secular, however, but constitute lived religious practices and performances.

Recent research data indicates that students who study religion often pursue careers in nonprofit administration. Given the historical connection between religious communities and nonprofit organizations, it is natural to consider how religious studies as an academic field can collaborate with the professional training offered in nonprofit management education. This workshop, led by the Chair of the Department of Religious Studies at Georgia State University, will reflect upon possible collaborations, using their own department's Concentration in Religion and Nonprofit Management program as a model for students seeking employment outside of the academy.

Meet at Convention Center-Hall H Foyer

This walking tour includes architecturally significant structures of the period from Old City Hall (1874) to the Romanesque style Keating Building (1890) to the Baroque Revival Louis Bank of Commerce (1888), along with fascinating stories of the people and characters that shaped the destiny of San Diego. From William Heath Davis, who first attempted the building of "New Town," to Alonzo Horton who came here in 1867 and finished the job, the cultural heritage of San Diego speaks through the buildings of a by-gone era that stand as testimony to its richness.

The tour costs $15 and takes 90 minutes, including the William Heath Davis House Museum. Theme: Introducing Theory in the Classroom Workshop

Sunday, 2:45 PM–5:05 PM

Marriott Marquis-Solana

Tara Baldrick-Morrone, Florida State University, Rebekka King, Middle Tennessee State University, Suzanne Owen, University of Chester, and Matt Sheedy, University of Manitoba, Presiding

This workshop—limited to approximately 15 participants—will focus on practical steps for introducing theory in the classroom. If you are interested in participating, please email the organizer, Tara Baldrick-Morrone (tbaldrickmorrone@campus.fsu.edu). Participants will also be asked to read three essays on theory and the introductory course in preparation for the workshop (essays are TBD). The organizers will place the participants into groups by question before the workshop. The three questions that we will address are:

1. Who? Which theorists should be included in an introductory course, and which theorists should be excluded? Just as we must be self-conscious with our choices of data, so too must we be with our choices of theory. Simply, "why 'this' rather than 'that'"?
2. What? If "there is nothing that must be taught," what data should be included in an introductory course? How does one decide what to keep and what to discard? Are there "necessary" data that one must teach when "covering" certain ideas?
3. Where? Where should theory be placed in the structure of a course? At the end after the data have been presented? At the beginning in order to provide a lens through which the data should be considered? Throughout the semester? What are the benefits/drawbacks of each approach?

Student Lounge Roundtable

Theme: Partnering Communities and Universities: The Transformative Power of Community-Engaged Research, Scholarship, and Teaching

Sunday, 3:00 PM–4:00 PM

Convention Center-14B

The Carnegie Foundation defines "community engagement" as the "collaboration between institutions of higher education and their... communities...for the mutually beneficial exchange of knowledge and resources in a context of partnership and reciprocity." This work serves to cultivate: 1) academic inquiry and scholarship; 2) the public good. Through serious community engagement, humanities scholars can answer charges of social irrelevance and elitism. Emory University is a leader in these areas. This roundtable will share lessons learned over the last decade, further synthesized in a graduate seminar, "Partnering Communities and Universities: The Transformative Power of Community-Engaged Research, Scholarship, and Teaching." This roundtable will define assumptions that ground and motivate engaged learning research and praxis and propose pedagogical models and research methodologies shown to be effective for engaged scholarship and teaching. Sharing lessons learned through this session will enrich current understandings and point to new directions for the future of the humanities.

Theme: Opportunities and Obstacles in Pilgrimage Study: Research Traditions in a Global Context

Sunday, 3:00 PM–4:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront-Sapphire E

Thomas A. Tweed, University of Notre Dame, Presiding

Since the 1990s a wide range of research on religious pilgrimage and related phenomena has developed which is informed by different disciplinary and linguistic traditions linked to national structures of knowledge production and an increasingly globalized economy of academic publication dominated by Anglophone presses. This diversity could be considered a strength in the sense that research on pilgrimage can find multiple audiences and is not confined by a dominant theoretical tradition or substantive problematic. Yet, disciplinary and linguistic boundaries have limited the dissemination of knowledge regionally and globally – hence, the aim of this panel is foster a broader vision and explore avenues where those from different traditions can engage in productive dialogue.

Sunday, 3:00 PM–4:30 PM

Convention Center-15B

The Road to Tepeyac

Mexican-British photographer, Alinka Echeverria's award winning photographic series, The Road to Tepeyac, consists of three hundred photographic portraits of believers on pilgrimage to the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe in Mexico City. Each on caries a sacred burden on their back as they make their journey: mobile altars, oversized framed prints, family photographs, large statues. Echeverria's photographs evoke the themes of religious materiality, pilgrimage and sacred sojourn, artistic and religious hybridity and pastiche, ritual engagement with holy images, among many others. The artist will speak about her work, with two scholars responding drawing on their own research and exploring themes evoked in Echeverria's photographs. Ample time provided for question and answer with the artist.

Polishing Paper Proposals!

Sunday, 3:00 PM–4:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront-500

Proposing papers is much like any other type of writing, it gets better with practice. The AAR Annual Meeting is one of the most competitive academic Call for Papers, and rejection is just part of the process experienced by all, no matter what stage you are in your career. Still, there are some simple steps (tricks of the trade) that you can implement to ensure that your proposal will be as rigorous and compelling as possible. Join Program Committee members Whitney Bauman and Miguel A. De La Torre for a session devoted to helping demystify the proposal writing process. Feel free to bring a proposal that you are working on and make revision notes during the session or ask us specific questions about. You can even email potential proposals prior to the session (at least 3 weeks) for feedback! All are welcome regardless, but please RSVP to this event if you are inclined to attend so that we can get an idea of how many will be present: wbauman@fiu.edu.

Special Topics Forum

Theme: Religious Studies and the Crisis of the Humanities

Sunday, 3:00 PM–4:30 PM

Convention Center-23A

Charles Mathewes, University of Virginia, Presiding

The humanities today are under fire. The study of religion, marginalized as both a topic and a field, appears doubly threatened. Indeed the field's most powerful recent movements have argued against the field's putative object of study—"religion." Self-consciously normative work, in philosophy of religion, religious ethics, and related areas, is often viewed with suspicion. In this context, but in defiance of the dire prognoses, this roundtable contends that now is the time for the academic study of religion to push back against its multiply marginalized status. The academic study of religion should enable not just skeptical critique of traditional norms, values, and practices, but energizing encounters with them as well. We gather scholars working at this nexus to discuss what this work means, what its strengths and weaknesses are, and what this means for the future of religious studies in the academy.

Theme: Interreligious Aesthetics

Sunday, 3:00 PM–4:30 PM

Convention Center-33B

Diane Apostolos-Cappadona, Georgetown University, Presiding

Given that images, ritual and music are often integral to the experience of religious devotion and worship, it is important to understand the ways in which aesthetic practices are experienced as religious. This session will explore the role of artistic expression in various modes of worship through a comparative look at several religious traditions as well as a consideration of aesthetics as a medium for interreligious engagement.

Theme: Lessons Learned? Religious and Political Violence in Central Africa Twenty Years after the Rwandan Genocide

Sunday, 3:00 PM–4:30 PM

Convention Center-5A

Mary Nyangweso, East Carolina University, Presiding

Two decades after the Rwandan Genocide, President Kagame still leads Rwanda. Rwanda's gacaca courts that judged genocide perpetrators only closed in 2012, and violence continues just beyond Rwanda's border in the neighboring Democratic Republic of the Congo. Recently, conflict again erupted in the Central African Republic, featuring genocidal violence against Muslims, especially in the western part of the country. With a long record of violence in the central African region, one wonders what, if anything, we have learned from the Rwandan genocide. Our panelists seek to respond to this question with reflections drawn from Rwanda, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and the Central African Republic. The panelists examine the role of Catholicism in the Rwandan genocide, the status of violence in the Central African Republic as "religious," and the possibility that religious discourses in the Democratic Republic of the Congo might contribute to peacebuilding as much as to conflict.

The Supreme Court's decision in Burwell vs. Hobby Lobby (2013) has generated significant controversy. Does the decision dangerously over-extend the scope of religious rights, or does it fall comfortably within the Court's tradition of granting exemptions on religious grounds? What role, if any, ought issues of gender, reproductive rights and corporate identity play in debates surrounding religious freedom? This roundtable event promises to cut through the polemic, as panelists situate the decision within the longer historical debates surrounding reproductive rights, corporate rights and religious liberty. The session will include significant time for conversation amongst panel members and attendees.

Higher education is rapidly transforming as online learning revolutionizes teaching and precipitates paradigm-shifts. Ivy Leagues schools now offer online classes for degree credit. Long-established graduate programs are going online. Purely negative assessments of the swift growth in online learning obscure the manifold opportunities and hitherto unseen vistas it presents.

This workshop explores online teaching and learning along with strategies to secure online teaching experience advantageous in the job market. Pedagogical topics surveyed will include principles for designing and teaching quality courses on par with traditional on-ground courses, utilizing course management system resources to maximize student learning outcomes, asynchronous and synchronous instruction, and tips for saving time without sacrificing instructional quality. Job-market strategies will include ways to gain online experience, develop marketable online knowledge and skill sets, and present competitive online expertise when applying for full-time positions.

Theme: D. T. Suzuki and the Making of a Modern Pure Land Buddhism

Sunday, 3:00 PM–5:00 PM

Omni-Grand Ballroom B

D. T. Suzuki (1870–1966), who is well known for popularizing Zen Buddhism in the West, also wrote extensively on Pure Land Buddhism, especially the Shin Buddhist tradition of Shinran (1173-1262). He did so in the context of the crisis that Japanese Buddhism faced in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century, as its classical world-view and relevance were challenged.

This crisis confronted both Zen and Pure Land Buddhism, and inspired a generation of young Buddhist reformers who proposed new ways of understanding Buddhism, seeking to re-situate it in the modern world. Suzuki was one of these new Buddhists.

This session examines Suzuki's attempt to articulate Pure Land Buddhism in a language compatible to modern intellectual concerns, especially in the fields of religious studies and philosophy of religion. It explores influences on Suzuki's thinking, including Western scholarship, and his adoption of such concepts as religious experience, mysticism, and spirituality to explain Pure Land Buddhism. In using these concepts, Suzuki tended to emphasize three motifs: religion in the present life rather than the next, religion as experience, and religion as nondualistic realization. Through them he highlighted aspects of Pure Land Buddhism that lent themselves to a modern understanding of religion, while deemphasizing ones that did not. This paper explores concrete ways in which Suzuki did so, thereby producing his distinctive and influential interpretation of Pure Land Buddhism.

Sunday, 4:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center-14A

This session invites early career researchers and emerging scholars to debate the future(s) of feminist theology in light of their own research. It provides a platform for upcoming scholars to reflect upon how their own work is shaping and re-shaping feminist discourse in religion and to speak about their own personal and professional formation. As such, this session encourages the creative work of weaving new visions. It invites panelists to discuss the direction of feminist scholarship in the 21st century — to name areas of scholarship and debate which they believe may need extending, transforming, reworking or redefining in light of global and contemporary challenges — and to do this in consort with reflection on how their own thinking has been challenged.

Wine and Religion: A Pairing of the Spirits Tour

Sunday, 4:15 PM–8:00 PM

Meet at Convention Center-Hall H Foyer

Nora L. Rubel, University of Rochester, Presiding

Participate in a unique session at the San Diego Cellars winery, where you may listen to a presentation on wine and religion, and afterward enjoy a pairing flight consisting of six different regional wines paired with light fare. You'll learn the wine origins, nuances, and rationale for the pairings. Stephen R. Lloyd-Moffett, Associate Professor of Religious Studies at California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, and an amateur vintner himself, will present a talk entitled "In Vino Sanctus: Finding Religion in the Fruit of the Vine." Informed by over 60 interviews with wine makers in France, Australia, and the United States, his paper examines the way that wine acts as a surrogate for religion in the lives of contemporary wine makers. Drawing upon the concept of implicit religion, Lloyd-Moffett presents some common characteristics of spiritual wine makers. Finally, he queries which unique characteristics of wine offers the potential to transform the mere production of a common beverage into a holistic spiritual vocation. Participants will meet at the Convention Center, take the trolley (light rail) to Little Italy, and then walk 0.4 miles to San Diego Cellars. Registration for this event will only be open until Friday, November 21 at 6 pm PST.

Theme: The Ethics and Politics of Queer Identity in the Field

Sunday, 5:00 PM–6:00 PM

Convention Center-14B

This roundtable will include a discussion on identity politics, with a special focus on issues faced by queer-identified researchers. My interest in this topic arises from my own experiences as a queer researcher among primarily non-queer populations. While my proposed discussion questions arise from ethnographic research, they are relevant to scholars who utilize other methodologies, including archival research. The discussion will explore a variety of questions, including: What are some common experiences of queer researchers among non-queer research populations? What challenges does visibility (or invisibility) pose? What ethics regarding disclosure are involved? How does the choice to disclose or not disclose affect researchers' relationships with consultants as well as what data is collected? What about queer researchers' experiences might be particular to work in religious studies?

Makoto Fujimura

Makoto Fujimura is an artist, writer, and speaker who is recognized worldwide as a cultural shaper. A Presidential appointee to the National Council on the Arts from 2003–2009, Fujimura served as an international advocate for the arts, speaking with decision makers and advising governmental policies on the arts.

Fujimura's second book, Refractions: A Journey of Faith, Art and Culture, is a collection of essays bringing together people of all backgrounds in a conversation and meditation on culture, art, and humanity. In celebration of the 400th anniversary of the King James Bible, Crossway Publishing commissioned and published The Four Holy Gospels, featuring Fujimura's illuminations of the sacred texts.

In 2011 the Fujimura Institute was established and launched the Four Qu4rtets, a collaboration between Fujimura, painter Bruce Herman, Duke theologian/pianist Jeremy Begbie, and Yale composer Christopher Theofanidis, based on T.S. Eliot's Four Quartets. The exhibition will travel to Baylor, Duke, and Yale Universities, Gordon College and other institutions around the globe.

Responsible Research Practices Seminar

Theme: Toward an AAR Code of Conduct

Sunday, 5:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center-24A

Thomas A. Tweed, University of Notre Dame, Presiding

The American Academy of Religion has issued guidelines on many moral issues, including statements about best practices for employers and teachers; but, unlike many other ACLS organizations, the AAR has had no ethical code regarding research. That will change soon.

Using the format of the AAR seminar, the AAR's president-elect, Thomas Tweed, will convene a small group of scholars to discuss the issues, solicit member comment, and draft a code of conduct. As the participants now see it, that code will offer moral principles and practical suggestions about planning, conducting, and representing research. However, the members of the seminar—and the AAR—have no intention to adjudicate claims about unethical behavior or to take part in the review process that is the responsibility of the Institutional Review Board at the researcher's own institution. Rather, the purpose of this code is to generate conversation about the moral challenges of research and to provide tentative guidelines about responsible conduct.

In this public session, the participants hope to pass on the tentative results of their deliberations. During this gathering, attendees will have a chance to ask questions and make comments about the initial draft.

The open process will conclude with a second AAR Seminar session in 2015, when the participants hope to present and discuss the revised draft of the statement. Along the way, they will consult with representatives of other ACLS organizations and solicit comment from AAR program units, standing committees, and working groups. AAR members who want to offer reflections are welcome to contact either Thomas Tweed, president-elect (ttweed@nd.edu) or Jack Fitzmier, executive director (jfitzmier@aarweb.org).

Theme: Unsettled: Critiquing Categories of Professional Identity in American Higher Education

Sunday, 5:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center-7B

Daniel Sack, Washington, DC, Presiding

The conventional notion of the academic guild is increasingly detached from economic and professional realities of higher education in the 21st century. Both "adjunctification" and "bureaucratization" within higher education have become rallying cries for various constituencies, generating increasingly robust public and professional discussions about the role of higher education in American society. But whereas both issues can (and have) productively magnify systemic inequalities among the professoriate and within administrative hierarchies, the discussants in this roundtable seek to nuance these blanket categorizations through their own experiences of unsettled professional identities. Composed of "hybrid" academics/administrators within the university structure and trained academics who have redirected professional aspirations into other vocations (non-profit, journalistic, or otherwise), this discussion is not an echo chamber of grievances but a structured interrogation of changing professional roles within the academy as well as the role of academia in American public life.

Theme: Hiring for Diversity in the Context of Recent Supreme Court Decisions

Sunday, 5:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center-23A

James Logan, Earlham College, Presiding

Recent Supreme Court decisions favor university admissions policies that prioritize admission without reference to race over an institution's desire to create diverse communities through race-sensitive admissions policies. Many schools have revisited institutional commitments to cultural diversity not only in admissions policies, but also with regard to hiring practices. This session explores the role of faculty and administrators as advocates for cultural diversity in the face of continuing constitutional challenges to affirmative action.

Theme: Region or Tradition in the Study of South Asian Religions?

Sunday, 5:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center-10

Carla Bellamy, City University of New York, Presiding

This panel explores the relative value and drawbacks of region-based vs. tradition-based approaches to the study of religions with a connection to South Asia. In recent years, scholars have developed nuanced understandings of South Asian religiosity as simultaneously informed by and defiant of traditional religious labels. While tradition-based and regionally informed analyses of religions of South Asia enrich and nuance one another, these approaches can also compete, in both theoretical and practical ways. This panel explores what is gained and what is lost when we emphasize region or tradition in our scholarship and teaching on South Asian religions.

Sunday, 5:00 PM–6:30 PM

Convention Center-4

Brian J. Nichols, Mount Royal University, Presiding

Travel to religious sites in Asia creates extensive religious, economic, and environmental consequences. These papers utilize recent ethnographic research to examine such places and assess the relationship between tourism, pilgrimage, and ritual in travelers' activities. The first, focusing on the holy lake in Pushkar, India, utilizes Catherine Bell's work to consider how environmentalism becomes ritualized and thereby makes place sacred. The second considers the Bishnoi of central Rajasthan in India and examines the relationship between village tourism and the discourse of authenticity concerning the Bishnoi's well-known environmentalism. The last, focusing on Mt. Puto in China's Zhejiang province, interrogates the theories of pilgrimage of Victor and Edith Turner, John Eade, and Michael Sallinow, arguing for recognition of the hetero-topic nature of pilgrimage space. Echoing the presidential theme of religion and climate change, these papers chart new ways of understanding the complex intersection of travel, religious places, and environmental sustainability.

Film: The Eyes of Tammy Faye

Sunday, 8:00 PM–10:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-303

Denis Bekkering, University of Waterloo, Presiding

Sponsored by the Religion, Film, and Visual Culture Group

Produced and directed by Fenton Bailey and Randy Barbato

The collapse of Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker's televangelical empire in the late-1980s was one of the most entertaining religious scandals in American history – a captivating mix of sexual sin, unholy greed, and, for unsympathetic observers, bizarre characters. Perhaps the most unintentionally entertaining player in the extended media drama was the diminutive Tammy Faye, whose love of shopping, heavy makeup, and penchant for tears earned her widespread ridicule.

As an amusing symbol of the "ludicrously tragic," however, Tammy Faye also acquired a coterie of "campy" fans, two of whom, Fenton Bailey and Randy Barbato, selected her as a documentary subject. Steeped in camp's characteristic blend of ironic mockery and genuine affection, The Eyes of Tammy Faye revels in common representations of the televangelist as a kooky religious flake, while at the same time rehabilitating her as an exemplar of an authentic Christianity centered on tolerance and compassion.

Film: Kumaré

Sunday, 8:00 PM–10:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-307

Gregory Grieve, University of North Carolina, Greensboro, Presiding

Sponsored by the Religion and Popular Culture Group

A provocative social experiment-turned-documentary, Kumaré follows American filmmaker Vikram Gandhi who transforms himself into the stereotype of a wise Indian guru, hoping to prove the absurdity of blind faith. Instead, he finds himself forging profound connections with people from all walks of life — and wondering if and when to reveal his true self. Winner of South by Southwest's Audience Award, Kumaré is seen by many as insightful look at faith and belief. For instance, Stephen Holden of the New York Times and Roger Ebert of the Chicago Sun-Times, praised the film's message of "finding the guru within." Many movie reviewers, however, have criticized Gandhi's deception as immoral, and have compared the deception by Gandhi to Sacha Baron Cohen's Borat character. Others partially forgave Gandhi for realizing that the experiment had grown out of his control.

Theme: Dollars and Cents: Making Sense of Funding Education and Academic Research

Monday, 9:00 AM–10:00 AM

Convention Center-14B

When graduate students want to fund their education or academic research, how do they find funding? Once they find it, how do they go after it? And once they get it, how do they renew funding? This workshop will explore these three questions through an anecdotal, practiced-based approach that unravels some of the mystery associated with securing external funding for educational and research purposes. The workshop content will be informed by my combined experience securing $447,000 in private and federal grants, managing a $1.1 million grant, personally receiving $110,000 of outside scholarship and grant funding for educational purposes, and being awarded $107,000 in merit-based scholarships. Drawing from my experience as a Proposal and Fundraising Associate at a research university and theological training, I will include tips and tricks relevant to fundraising, illustrations inspired by past grant writing successes and failures, and theological reflections about the limits of fundraising.

Theme: Islamic Liberation Theology and Decolonization

Monday, 9:00 AM–11:30 AM

Convention Center-31C

Charles W. Amjad-Ali, Seminary Consortium for Urban Pastoral Education (SCUPE), Presiding

This panel focuses on the subject of Islam, decolonisation and liberation in different contexts. As an important theme within postcolonial studies a clearer understanding of definitions, approaches and difficulties of the struggle for decolonisation, liberation and self-autonomy is required as well as the implications of talking about Islam in a liberative way in a (post)colonial and post-9/11 world. Against this backdrop, the speakers discuss the following questions from the various perspectives of postcolonial studies and liberation theology in relation to Islam and Muslims: On what basis do people attempt to critique and break with an oppressive present? How and on what basis do people formulate change and movements for a different future? and How is "decolonisation" and "liberation" defined, conceptualized and approached? In answering this question, the panelists will each draw explicitly on their own research or area of engagement

Monday, 9:30 AM–1:00 PM

Meet at the Convention Center-Hall H Foyer

Start your day at the San Diego Art Museum with a one hour, decent-led tour of the Renaissance and Baroque, Asian, Persian, and the Art of the Americas galleries. The Museum's collections are all encompassing, with objects from across the globe, and ranging in date from 5,000 B.C. to the present. Perhaps best known for its Spanish old master paintings, the Museum holds a broad collection of European, American, Latin American, and Asian Art. Among the most important aspect of the Museum's holdings in Asian art are the world-class South Asian paintings from the encyclopedic collection of Edwin Binney III; Buddhist sculpture of China and Japan; Ukiyo-e woodblock prints; and a wide variety of ceramics, metalwork, and decorative arts ranging in date from about 1,600 BCE until the present-day. The European collection also holds strong groups of paintings ranging from the Renaissance and Baroque eras to Impressionism and Post-Impressionism. Recently, the Museum has made significant acquisitions of contemporary art and photography, and of art from Africa, Oceania, and the indigenous peoples of the Americas. You will have ample time to explore the museum on your own after the tour. The cost of the tour is $40 and includes museum admission and round-trip transportation.

Student Lounge Roundtable

Theme: Eating Disorders, Food Issues, and Managing Graduate School

Monday, 10:00 AM–11:00 AM

Convention Center-14B

Food can be an issue in graduate school. From not having the time or resources to cook and consume the healthiest or most desirable food, to being pressured to eat free food given at graduate school events, food and the social situations surrounding food permeates all areas of graduate school life. These pressures can be particularly stressful for those with or in recovery from eating disorders. I will share some of my experiences of being in graduate school while in recovery from an eating disorder, and will then offer a place of support, brainstorming, and discussion of how to best manage the added stress of recovery in graduate school. While this discussion will focus on the experience and how to help those with eating disorders, this discussion may be useful for those with dietary restrictions, those trying to change their eating habits, and those who struggle with body image.

Employment Services Advisory Committee

Theme: Envisioning Academic Alternatives

Monday, 10:00 AM–11:30 AM

Grand Hyatt-America's Cup C-D

How do we sustain ourselves as scholars when most academic jobs are casual and part-time? The shift away from tenure-track positions has only continued, creating new financial, social, and emotional challenges for those who entered academia hoping for professorships. This new academic job market demands a creative, entrepreneurial approach to making a living – as well as the willingness to collaborate in maintaining the academy's mission to serve the public.

This workshop is designed to help academics in the Humanities and Social Sciences to approach academic work as only one part of a wider picture that potentially integrates a variety of income streams. Participants will examine their own history and relationships to academia, and become more empowered through discovering marketable skill sets they may not know they possess. We will strategically build sustainable life strategies, considering what activities and relationships bring us real joy and can therefore be maintained in the long term.

Participants will have the opportunity to:

- Reframe the issue of work/life balance in the context of an academic career
- Describe their abilities in terms of marketable skill sets
- Consider alternatives to traditional research, teaching, publishing and academic engagement

Amy Hale, Golden Gate University

Theme: Time Management: The Coveted Key to a Healthy Work-Life Balance

Monday, 11:00 AM–12:00 PM

Convention Center-14B

Making time for family, friends, and yourself is often one of the biggest challenges a graduate student must face. The pitiful state of the academic job market has led to mounting expectations on graduate students who hope to eventually get a job. The familiar idiom "publish or perish" is no longer accurate: now early-career researchers must publish, teach, present at and organize conferences, engage in self-promotion, and maintain a strong digital presence or perish. These expectations have the potential to easily overwhelm even the most hardened graduate student. Time and priority management could quite possibly be the key to success in this sort of environment. This workshop will serve as a guided open forum in which students will be able to discuss both successful and unsuccessful priority and time management techniques, while brainstorming potential new techniques.

Theme: Seeking Sanity: Balancing Graduate Work with Marriage, Children, and Employment

Convention Center-14B

To say that my PhD experience has been stressful is an understatement. My first child was born a year before I began my studies, my second child was born 2 weeks before my classes begun, and my third (and final!) child was born as I was preparing for my comprehensive exams. In addition, I have balanced a full-time job and have logged thousands of miles a year commuting to and from school. Now that I have made it to the dissertation stage (which cuts down on the commute) and all three of my children are finally sleeping through the night (which cuts down on the coffee), I feel like I've finally made it! If selected, I would be honored to chat about how I made it all "work" with other students who may be facing similar challenges in their own academic journey. Success is possible.

Theme: Marketing Matters for Academics: It's Not Just a Corporate Thing!

Grand Hyatt-America's Cup CD

Contrary to popular opinion, marketing is not just a "corporate thing." It is a vital facet of commerce and public affairs. In fact, the shift in technology to all things digital has increased the significance of marketing, and all of its assets (driven in part by the exponential growth in social, new, and digital media), within industries that do not normally implement marketing, communications, or branding tactics.

Are your books available for sale? Are you called upon as an expert for the media? Do you give talks or lectures during conferences? Is your CV published online? Do you blog or write op-eds? If so, you engage in the promotional aspect of marketing. Have you been compelled to act or comment as a result of a crisis: #Bringbackourgirls, #EbolaOutbreak, #Ferguson, #Gaza, #ISIS, #MH370, or #Sewol? Crisis management and public relations are marketing functions.

Using industry lingo and popular, relatable examples, participants will learn marketing principles. Participants will also review and discuss pop culture and other case studies by industry.

Upon successful completion of this course, participants will be able to:

1. Define aspects of marketing;
2. Pinpoint attributes and assets that increase marketability;
3. Draft a brand-driven marketing plan;

This workshop is for individuals who want to 1. Learn aspects of marketing, 2. Launch a successful marketing campaign, or 3. Increase awareness or sales of a person, product, or entity. Faculty, administrators, consultants, experts/gurus, entrepreneurs, intrapreneurs, staff, career changers, and others who desire to understand and utilize marketing principles for personal or professional gain are encouraged to attend this workshop.

Michelle Morgan, New Haven, CT, Presiding

2014 marks the thirty- and forty-year anniversaries of key works in French social theory, including Julia Kristeva's Revolution in Poetic Language (40th anniversary) and Luce Irigaray's Speculum of the Other Woman (40th) and An Ethics of Sexual Difference (30th). In honor of their legacies, the panelists in this session explore related questions of feminism and subjectivity in the study of religion. With reference not only to Irigaray and Kristeva, but also to Michel Foucault, Judith Butler, and Saba Mahmood, they treat critical turns in affect theory and speech act theory, the ethics of alterity, and the discursive formation of subjectivity as a crucial category in the study of religion.

Theme: Religious Responses to Climate Change and Climate Challenges in Africa

Monday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-24C

Christopher Duncanson-Hales, MindGap Scholastics, Ontario, Canada, Presiding

As apocalyptic scenarios for climate change and its impacts on the Global South gain attention, religious authorities and ethicists are interpreting changing climate patterns in moral terms or taking ritual action to address them, giving scholars of religion opportunities to assess the religious and ethical aspects of the current situation. Religious studies therefore has contributions to make to these topics. Along these lines, this panel explores religious responses to climate challenges in Africa from diverse methodological and historical perspectives.

Topics include an exploration of the hermeneutics of Ifá divination practices in Nigeria, Larry Rasmussen's "earth ethics" as a possible basis for ecological peacebuilding in the Democratic Republic of Congo, and encounters between Christian Afrikaner missionaries and indigenous rain specialists in South Africa. Our respondent brings her research on religious responses to climate change in Mali to bear on the discussion.

Theme: Corporeality and Difference: Animality, Disability, and Gender in Rabbinic Literature

Monday, 1:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-26

Rachel Neis, University of Michigan, Presiding

This panel brings together scholars working on rabbinic literature through the lenses of animal studies, disability studies, gender studies, queer theory, and sensory studies. Through critical examination of texts centered on animal bodies, gender-blurred embryos, blemished brides, blind sages, and the androgynos, we aim to consider how bodily difference and corporeal deviance is marked and managed in rabbinic literature.

The panel aims to examine the theoretical and textual overlaps and blurred edges between these identity categories, about the way in which animality becomes gendered, for example, or how women's disability becomes particularly fraught through the sexual charge rabbinic culture affords to men's visual engagement with women's bodies.

Religious Architecture Tour

Monday, 1:00 PM–5:00 PM

Meet at Convention Center-Hall H Foyer

Jeanne Halgren Kilde, University of Minnesota, David Bains, Samford University, and Rick Kennedy, Point Loma Nazarene University, Presiding

This bus tour explores how San Diego's religious landscape has been shaped by a variety of immigrant communities and international contacts. It will likely include an exploration of noted architect Robert E. Des Lauriers's use of architectural modernism in the Islamic Center of San Diego (1986), formerly the Abi Bakr Al Siddiq Mosque; as well as the more traditional styles and spaces of the Spanish-revival Chinese Mission (1927), now the San Diego Chinese Historical Museum; a small Portuguese chapel on Point Loma (1922); and Our Lady of the Rosary Church (1925), a landmark church in Little Italy featuring murals by the immigrant painter Fausto Tasca. Visiting Shelter Island, the tour will also consider the mid-twentieth-century use of Polynesian architecture and Tiki decoration, including religious imagery, to evoke the free-thinking and free-living sought by many in Southern California. The cost of the tour is $30.

Somewhere along the way graduate students earned the reputation of being poor time managers. From the hundreds of pages that must be read to the papers due next week to watching too much Netflix to the incessant demands of social media, many graduate students feel overwhelmed and simply do not think of managing their time; they simply get by. But it doesn't have to be this way. Graduate school is simultaneously an amazingly challenging and wonderfully rewarding experience. Don't let poor time management rob you of that. In this hour-long conversation/workshop we will discuss some best practices when it comes to time management, specifically those relevant to graduate student life.

We will look at some useful tools and practices such was Wunderlist, Evernote, and targeted calendaring, as well as talk about how to prioritize and manage your time in a way that works best for you.

Public Understanding of Religion Committee

Theme: Religion, Skepticism and Scientific Consensus on Climate Change

Monday, 2:00 PM–3:30 PM

Convention Center-8

Erik Owens, Boston College, Presiding

Naomi Oreskes

What does climate change have to do with religion and religion with climate change? Quite a lot, but the grounds on which these two domains meet is complex and conflicted. Many commentators have suggested that "religious" believers reject the scientific evidence of climate change. That broad claim is clearly incorrect. Across the globe, religious leaders from the Pope Francis and Patriarch Bartholomew to the Dalai Lama have addressed climate change as a religious issue. In the United States, several denominations and sectarian colleges have divested, or announced their intention to divest, from the fossil fuel industry. In all these cases, there is a shared understanding that climate change is a religious issue because it involves the care and preservation of creation, and because it involves protecting the poor from harm. Yet, at the same time, it is also true that in the United States evangelical Protestants are more likely than other groups to reject the scientific evidence of climate change.

The reasons for this are not difficult to discern: American evangelicals tend to be politically conservative, and link climate change to 'liberal' causes of which they are skeptical, particularly the role of government in protecting the poor. American evangelicals also tend to link climate science to other forms of science that they question, most obviously evolutionary theory, and to a general perception that scientists are anti-religion. This suggests that if one wishes to reaches evangelicals, it may be useful to remind them that not all solutions to climate change involve big government, and many scientists, historically and currently, have been people of faith.

Jimmy Carter

Jimmy Carter served as the thirty-ninth president of the United States from 1977 to 1981. His administration negotiated the Panama Canal treaties, the Camp David Accords between Egypt and Israel, the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union, and U.S. diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China. In 1982 President Carter became University Distinguished Professor at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, and founded The Carter Center, a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that actively addresses international and national issues of public policy. He is the author of twenty-eight books and numerous articles. In 2002, he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

In this panel, President Carter will answer questions about his efforts to address climate change both during and after his administration, and his latest book, A Call to Action: Women, Religion, Violence, and Power (Simon and Schuster, 2014). Questions will be posed by Steven D. Kepnes, Colgate University and Mary Evelyn Tucker, Yale University, but additional questions may be submitted at https://aar.wufoo.com/forms/questions-for-president-carter/ before November 15. Arts, Literature, and Religion Section, Childhood Studies and Religion Group, Chinese Religions Group, and Japanese Religions Group

Theme: Oh Hell! The Infernal in Children's Literature

Monday, 4:00 PM–6:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-313

Rebekah Richert, University of California, Riverside, Presiding

Representations of hell open up questions about the boundaries of childhood and the flexibility of religious categories in modern societies.

Although hell, together with related ideas of death, sin, and punishment, may not always be considered an appropriate topic for children, it has by no means disappeared from children's literature. As hell is re-imagined and re-presented for a younger audience, its depiction illustrates shifting rapprochements between religious ideas and social norms. These new geographies of the infernal are the subject of this panel, which examines representations and transformations of hell in children's literature from the 1970s to the present, bringing together papers on Taiwanese, Japanese, North American, and British children's fiction and picture books. Comparative in scope, the panel focuses on visual and textual narratives shaped by Buddhist scripture, Jewish storytelling, and Welsh myth.

Film: Mental

Monday, 7:00 PM–10:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront-303

Mark Rowe, McMaster University, Presiding

Sponsored by the Japanese Religious Group

Mental (Seishin; 2008, 135 minutes) is a documentary film focuses on the lives of patients, doctors and staff in a small mental clinic in Okayama, Japan. The director Soda Kazuhiro is a Japanese documentary filmmaker based in New York, and is known for his observational style and method of documentary film-making. Mental gives an unvarnished look at the everyday life of people with various mental illnesses—schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, eating disorders, panic disorder, and personality disorder—showing such scenes as waiting rooms filled with patients and smoke, consultations and treatments of patients by Dr. Yamamoto, staff members negotiating with government agencies to maintain quality services, patients talking to one another and to Soda, who remains invisible but present behind the camera.

Having graduated from Tokyo University with a major in religious studies, Soda sees the similarities between the perception of mental illness and that of "religion" in Japan; there is the moralizing imperative to domesticate or demonize them, and to establish the "us/them" dichotomy. "Mental" profoundly destabilizes such dichotomies with the power of intimate and engaged observation.

The film won the Best Documentary Award at both the Pusan International Film Festival and the Dubai International Film Festival in 2008, Special Jury Mention at the 2009 Miami International Film Festival, Outstanding Documentary Award at the 2009 Hong Kong International Film Festival, and Inter-religious Jury Prize at Visions du Reel in 2009.

Film: In God's House: The Religious Landscape of Utica, NY

Monday, 8:00 PM–10:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-305

S. Brent Plate, Hamilton College, Presiding

This documentary explores the sacred spaces of the rustbelt city of Utica, New York, once a thriving port on the Erie Canal and now a key refugee relocation center. In the midst of changing demographics, the buildings of bygone eras continue to stand and be adapted to the different transitory users that embody them. On one hand an ethnographic study, this video is also an artistic exploration of the spatial practices of these places. This includes a Bosnian mosque operating in a converted Methodist church; Jewish synagogues, one Reform and one Conservative, now meeting in one building due to economic realities; an American Baptist congregation that has been revived due to an influx of Burmese Karen refugees; a Vietnamese Buddhist Temple that retrofitted an Episcopalian church; a Roman Catholic church at the same site for almost two hundred years, but now with services in English, Vietnamese, and Spanish; and an African-American church worshipping in the midst of the former Jewish quarter. Each site has undergone unique changes that reflect and influence the social life surrounding them, and demonstrates the linkage between buildings and the communities' abilities to sustain themselves. Directed by Robert Knight. Produced by S. Brent Plate.

Film: Star Wars: The Legacy Revealed

Monday, 8:00 PM–10:00 PM

Hilton Bayfront-307

John Lyden, Grand View University, Presiding

Sponsored by the Religious, Film, and Visual Culture Group

Star Wars: The Legacy Revealed is a documentary that originally aired on the History Channel in 2007, commissioned by George Lucas to mark the 30th anniversary of the original Star Wars film. It provides a perspective on how the series of six films made use of mythological, religious, and historical material to construct a pastiche that represents a modern myth to its fans. Clips from the films are interpreted by journalists, filmmakers, politicians, and scholars including Dan Rather, Tom Brokaw, Newt Gingrich, Stephen Colbert, Peter Jackson, and Kevin Smith, among others. John Lyden, who was also interviewed in the film, will introduce it and lead a discussion on the creation and marketing of the films, their mythological and religious import, and their links to the development of fan culture and the "religion" surrounding the film. Directed by Kevin Burns. 90 minutes.

New Paths: Christians Engaging Israel

Theme: Teaching "Images of Israel"

Friday, 1:30 PM–4:30 PM

Marriott Marquis-Coronado

Peter Pettit, Muhlenberg College, Presiding

Learn about the exciting new curriculum for Christian communities to engage Israel realistically — beyond apologetics, defensiveness, and condemnation. This values-based approach, with its first course, "Images of Israel", has been developed by a team of American Christian scholars and educators as a project of the Shalom Hartman Institute in Jerusalem. Participants will lead discussion of the foundational ideas and demonstrate the pedagogical methods that make this a distinctive new resource for Christians engaging Israel. Elements of the curriculum and its approach will also prove useful in defusing polarization around Israel in college, university, and seminary classrooms.

Theme: In a Time of Schism: Love and Responsibility

Saturday, 9:00 AM–11:00 AM

Marriott Marquis-Carlsbad

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is in the midst of a schism, which follows hard on the heels of at least 3 earlier divisions over the last 50 years. This year's "Theology for the PC(USA)" will explore what love requires of us in the midst of these denominational divisions. What mutual obligations do individuals, congregations, and denominations bear to those with whom we were recently joined in a single denomination? What are the common confessional commitments that we share, and how do those shared commitments make it easier or more difficult for us to live together in ways that embody Christ's love? What responsibility do we have as Reformed and Presbyterian churches to represent our common commitments to other churches and the world? How can we continue to support each other in prayer and ministry even though we no longer share institutional structures? Answers to these questions will have implications for how we view ourselves, one another, our denominational structures, and how we engage in theological education. Three speakers will address these questions, and there will be time for discussion.

Society for the Study of Anglicanism

Theme: Dimensions of Reconciliation

Saturday, 9:00 AM–12:30 PM

Marriott Marquis-Torrey Pines 3

Ian Markham, Virginia Theological Seminary, Presiding

The Center for Anglican Communion Studies at Virginia Theological Seminary and Ripon College Cuddesdon partner each year to host the annual Society for the Study of Anglicanism meeting. The Society is a research-led body that is committed to excellence in promoting the study of Anglicanism. The scholarly presentations inform dynamic discussions on varied topics. Martyn Percy and Rob Slocum serve as co-Conveners of the Society.

The Society has chosen as this year's topic, "Dimensions of Reconciliation." Within the world of Anglicanism and beyond the world of Anglicanism otherness and the exclusion of the other remains a fundamental challenge that we continue to face and at which we continue to fail. A thoroughly theological approach to these issues that emerges from such ongoing realities and addresses these realities is critical.

They will discuss such questions as why a particular dissertation does or does not lend itself to trade (commercial) publishing, whether a scholar-author needs an agent and how to get one, what to expect from the trade publishing process, and what happens after the book comes out.

Theology Without Walls Group

Theme: Is Constructive Transreligious Theology Possible?

Saturday, 1:00 PM–3:00 PM

Omni-Gaslamp 2

Jerry L. Martin, National Endowment for the Humanities, Presiding

Often theology is defined as the articulation of the beliefs about the divine reality within one's own tradition. In light of the widespread experience of finding spiritual insight in other traditions as well, that definition seems inappropriately limited. Surely, the aim of theology should be to learn all we can about ultimate reality, regardless of the source of the insights. Even comparatively theology, when it is regarded as finally confessional, limited to asking what light other traditions throw on my own, stops short. What is needed is a Theology Without Walls, without confessional boundaries, without blinders, as it were. That does not mean that we do not stand somewhere, but that our sense of our goal is not limited to where we stand at the outset. The aim of this Roundtable is to begin to sketch the concept, methods, implications, and challenges of Theology Without Walls, conceived not as one grand theory but rather as what philosopher of science Imre Lakatos called a "research programme" — an intellectual enterprise sufficiently defined to guide inquiry but keeping terms open-textured and provisional.

Marriott Marquis-Torrey Pines 1

Kevin L. Hughes, Villanova University, Presiding

Daniel Wade McClain, Loyola University Maryland, Presiding

Bonaventure of Bagnoregio (1219-1274) was arguably one of the most important Franciscan theologians of the middle ages. Among other things, Bonaventure is famous as the youngest minister general of the Franciscan order, and later a cardinal. However, Bonaventure's academic career and contribution to theological education are often overshadowed, by his own ecclesial involvement later in life, as well as by the theology of his contemporary Thomas Aquinas and, later, another Franciscan, John Duns Scotus. This panel seeks to address the marginalization of Bonaventure's pedagogical significance by reconsidering it historically and constructively. Panelists:s will examine Bonaventure's educational impact in light of his involvement with the University of Paris, the Franciscan order, the relationship of theology and philosophy, historical and contemporary social concerns, and theological inquiry broadly conceived.

Explorations in Theology and Apocalyptic

Theme: Is Apocalyptic Dogmatics Possible?

Saturday, 6:30 PM–9:00 PM

Omni-Gaslamp 2

Philip G. Ziegler, University of Aberdeen, Presiding

Does an apocalyptic orientation in Christian life and thought subvert the very idea of dogmatic theology? If so, why and how? Or, might an apocalyptic orientation open up the possibility of doing dogmatic theology differently? If so, what impact would such orientation to apocalyptic have upon the shape, content, style and performance of dogmatics. Are there unexplored avenues and untapped resources that might contribute to such a project? Are there historical or current exemplars that might usefully guide it?

Fourth Annual Analytic Theology Lecture

Sunday, 3:00 PM–4:30 PM

Hilton Bayfront-Indigo B

In recent Christian systematic theology there has been a renewed interest in discussion of the nature of atonement. Substitutionary accounts of Christ's work have largely fallen out of favor, and various versions of the so-called Ransom Model of atonement have been touted as superior alternatives to older, substitutionary models. In the same period there has been an interest in the atonement shown by analytics, though few have treated the Ransom Model in detail. This lecture addresses that lacuna by offering a critique of the recent rash of Ransom Models from an analytic-theological perspective. The lecture offers reasons for thinking that the notion of Ransom is better understood as one aspect of a more comprehensive model of atonement, one in which substitution plays a fundamental role.

Sponsored by the Center for Philosophy of Religion at the University of Notre Dame. A reception will follow this lecture in the Indigo Ballroom C at 6:30 PM. Food and drinks will be served.

In this meeting, CAC would like to gather Western and Chinese leaders who are committed to China's theological education. In China today, there are many Christian university professors who want to contribute to the development of China's indigenous church. They are looking for nontraditional ways to get access to theological education. In this meeting, we will discuss creating an action plan to develop China's educated lay leaders. Our passion is to mentor scholars who will impact the church in China. We welcome those who are interested in hearing more about this project and possibly participating.

China Academic Consortium (CAC)'s mission is academic dialogue and exchange on the subjects of religion, worldviews, values and ethics with the Chinese Intellectual community. As Protestant representatives of the Christian faith, we seek to make contributions to China and her intellectual community in the belief that these Christian resources are relevant to Chinese culture and modern society.

SBL PRESS

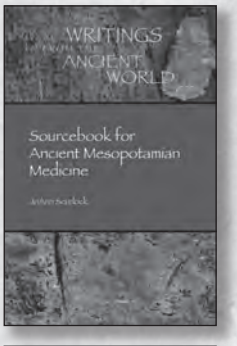

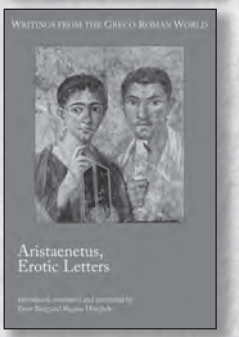

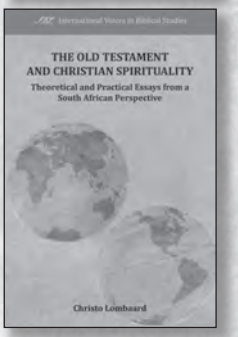

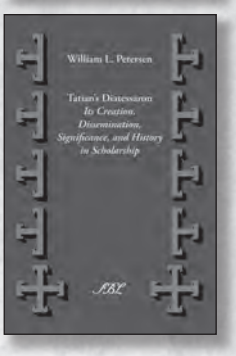

THE SOCIETY OF BIBLICAL LITERATURE ESTABLISHES SBL PRESS

The Society of Biblical Literature's publications program became SBL Press on July 1, 2014, continuing a legacy of publishing excellence that stretches back to the first issue of the Journal of Biblical Literature in 1880.

Through the years SBL has published monographs and edited collections with various publishing partners as a service to members, students, and scholars. Over the last five years the program has grown from twenty-eight books a year to forty. The establishment of SBL Press strengthens the identity and mission of the Society's publishing program in the changing worlds of publishing and higher education. In order to serve the needs of its customers, SBL Press will continue to publish its titles simultaneously in hardcover, paperback, and digital editions.

As part of the new program, SBL Press will publish a new edition of the SBL Handbook of Style and launch four new book series. Two will be on the history of interpretation and reception of the Bible in ancient and contemporary contexts. A third, Writings from the Islamic World, debuting this year, makes English translations of ancient texts from Eastern traditions of biblical studies widely available. The fourth, The Hebrew Bible: A Critical Edition, whose first volume will appear at the Annual Meeting, is a multivolume project offering an eclectic edition of the Hebrew Bible.

In addition to its own series, SBL Press continues to license and publish paperback editions of select Brill titles. SBL Press will continue as the worldwide distributor for Brown Judaic Studies and the North American distributor for Sheffield Phoenix Press.

The Society of Biblical Literature, founded in 1880, is the oldest and largest learned society devoted to the critical investigation of the Bible from a variety of academic disciplines. As an international organization, the Society offers its members opportunities for mutual support, intellectual growth, and professional development and is a member of the American Council of Learned Societies.

NEW FROM IVP ACADEMIC

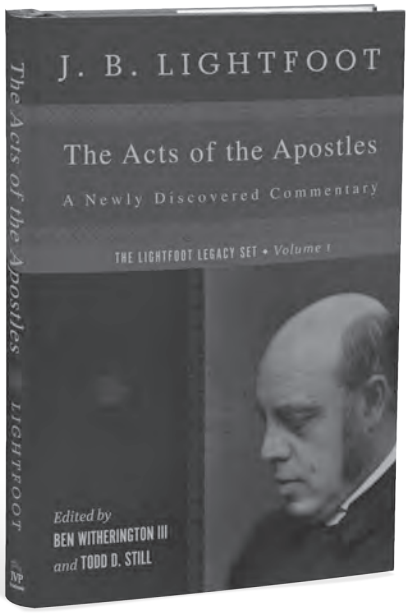

Encyclopedia of Ancient Christianity
general editor Angelo Di Berardino, consulting editors Thomas C. Oden, Joel C. Elowsky and James Hoover, $450.00

This three-volume encyclopedia offers unparalleled, comprehensive coverage of the people, places and ideas of ancient Christianity, with 3,220 articles by an international team of 266 scholars, covering eight centuries and drawing upon fields from archaeology, architecture and biography, to ecclesiology, geography and theology.

"Words fail me for celebrating the fullness and excellence of this unique pioneer compendium, which brings together just about everything that is known about the first eight Christian centuries. A must-have for libraries, it will prove an invaluable resource for scholars and students alike."

— J. I. Packer

The Acts of the Apostles: A Newly Discovered Commentary
J. B. Lightfoot, edited by Ben Witherington III and Todd D. Still, $40.00

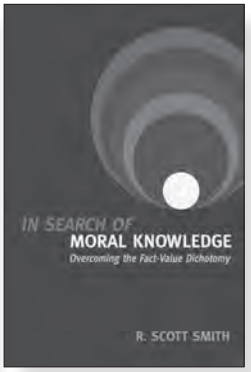

The recent discovery of previously unpublished J. B. Lightfoot commentaries in the Durham Cathedral Library is a landmark event of great significance to both church and academy. Carefully transcribed and edited by Ben Witherington III and Todd D. Still, this first volume on the Acts of the Apostles gives us a new appreciation for Lightfoot's contributions to biblical scholarship. The second of three volumes will cover 1 Corinthians and 1 Peter and will be available fall of 2015.

"The discovery of hitherto unknown exegetical works by J. B. Lightfoot is a rare gift, full of potential for fresh insight both about the man himself (acknowledged worldwide as the leading scholar of his day) and, as he would have wished, about texts which he knew so well and which themselves express the heart of the gospel."

ROBERT ORLANDO

FOREWORD BY GERD LÜDEMANN

978-1-62564-972-0 | forthcoming from Cascade Books

"Paul's life, of which we get snippets from his letters and also from the accounts of others about him, was a dramatic one. Robert Orlando takes those details, and the insights and interpretations of scholars, and weaves them together with the skill of a filmmaker to provide a compelling narrative of Paul's life, his aims, his struggles."

TEMPLETON PRIZE

Plenary Lecture

"Afternoon of Christianity"

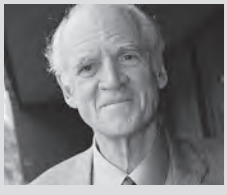

According to C. G. Jung, human life is like a day, the first half of which—the "morning"—involves the task of building the personality's external structure. After that comes the "noontime crisis." In the second part of one's life, "in the afternoon," one can stand back and set off on a journey "into the depths."

From its beginning until the dawn of modern times, the history of Christianity was "the morning," during which its institutional and doctrinal aspects evolved. Christianity, especially in Europe, is now undergoing a protracted "mid-life crisis" that it can only overcome if it realizes that it is standing at a critical crossroads and chooses one of many possible avenues.

Isaiah 56–66

Paul V. Niskanen

Far from a remotely related appendix tacked on to the prophetic text, Niskanen examines Isaiah 56–66 within the broader context of the entire book of Isaiah, revealing the stylistic and thematic connections between these and earlier chapters and the significance of the poetical structures and imagery employed in Isaiah 56–66.

Sorting Out Catholicism

A Brief History of the New Ecclesial Movements

Massimo Faggioli
Translated by Demetrio S. Yocum

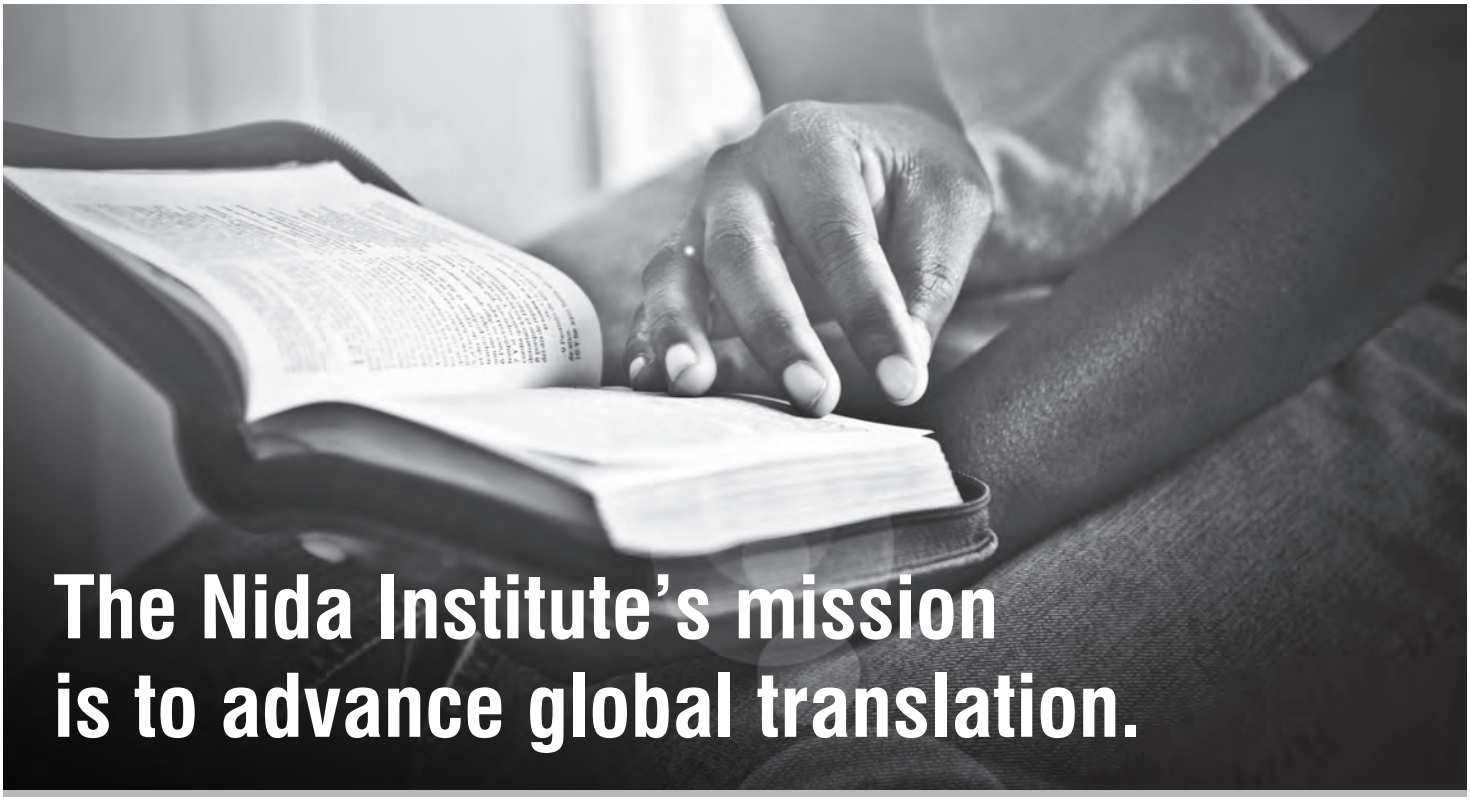

In this expanded and thoroughly updated English edition of the Italian edition (2008), Massimo Faggioli offers us a history and broader context of the so-called ecclesial movements. These movements are a complex phenomenon that shapes the Church now more than before, and they play a key role for the future of Catholicism as a global community, in transition from a Europe-centered tradition to a world Church.

P23-248a: Translating Alterity

DATE: 11/23/2014
1:00 PM to 3:30 PM
ROOM: AB (Level 3 (Aqua)) - Hilton Bayfront (HB)

Sponsored by The Nida Institute for Biblical Scholarship at American Bible Society.
This special session will explore questions of alterity and process in translation, inspired by Michael Cronin's 2013 Translation in the Digital Age. Blending translation theory, media studies and materialist cultural analysis, Cronin suggests we consider the present Digital Age as the Age of Translation, characterized by an 'interaction society of translators' participating in the 'intransitive excess' of translation. This fast-paced participatory session will offer a series of short (5 minute) experiments stimulated by Cronin's work as seeds for extended discussion. Michael Hemenway, Iliff School of Theology, Facilitating. Participants include: Edward Phillip Antonio, Iliff School of Theology; Timothy Beal, Case Western Reserve University; Bryan Bibb, Furman University; Elsa Tamez, Latin American Biblical University; Philip Towner, Nida Institute; Gerald West, University of KwaZulu-Natal, and several others.

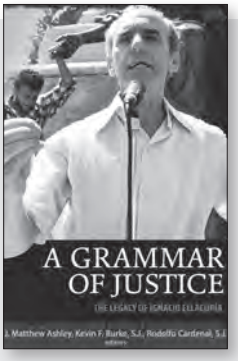

Nida
SCHOOL OF TRANSLATION STUDIES

Nida School of Translation Studies 2015: May 18 – 29 in Misano Adriatico, Italy.
The Nida School of Translation Studies (NSTS), an annual two-week seminar, brings together experts from translation studies, religious discourse translation, and other cognate disciplines in a fully transdisciplinary working environment. Each seminar critically explores translation theory, linguistics, semiotics and cultural studies as they pertain to a well-defined topic or problem. Their transdisciplinary nature allows theorists and practitioners from many fields to cross disciplinary and methodological boundaries and develop new ways of thinking about translation and other fields of research.

The theme for NSTS 2015 is Leading Edges in Translation: Performativity and World Literature. The Nida Professors for 2015 are Susan Bassnett (University of Warwick) and Sandra Bermann (Princeton University). Several Visiting Faculty, representing global scholarship, will also provide lectures. http://nsts.fusp.it/Nida-Schools/NSTS-2015

NEW BOOKS from Equinox

Everyday Humanism
Edited by Dale McGowan and Anthony B. Pinn

Everyday Humanism moves the discussion of humanism's positive contributions to life away from the macro-level to focus on the everyday, or micro-dimensions of our individual and collective existence. How might humanist principles impact parenting? How might these principles inform our take on aging, on health, on friendship? These are just a few of the issues around everyday life that need interpretation from a humanist perspective.

Sects and Stats
Overturning the Conventional Wisdom about Cult Members

James R. Lewis

Sects & Stats overturns conventional wisdom by drawing on current quantitative data from questionnaire research on select New Religious Movements and national census data collected by Anglophone countries. This book also makes a strong argument for the use of longitudinal methods in studying alternative religions.

ARE NON-CHRISTIANS SAVED?
Joseph Ratzinger's Thought on Religious Pluralism

Ambrose Ih-Ren Mong

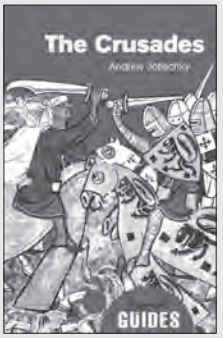

Why does the Pope-Emeritus consider religious pluralism a challenge to Christianity? Examining Ratzinger's educational, cultural and religious background this unique text reveals his Eurocentric bias, particularly in his ecclesiology and ecumenical theology, and examines his contentious attitude towards religious pluralism with its 'evil twins' of relativism and secularism.

Announcing a new series

Contemporary Buddhism, like its predecessor, Topics in Contemporary Buddhism, will examine Buddhism from a range of perspectives—from the philosophical to the ethnographic. Spanning the twentieth and twenty-first centuries, it will consider Buddhism in its global and localized forms and seek to address how various Buddhisms are produced and negotiated in scholarly, political, economic, and social practices.

THE CONCORDIA COMMENTARY SERIES

"Massively researched with careful and clear exposition of the text and key critical issues, this will be an invaluable resource for all those grappling with Paul's presentation of his gospel in Galatians."
—Christopher Tuckett, University of Oxford

"Das takes us systematically through each of the questions that scholars debate about this letter, which was born in controversy …. By the abundance of information he offers, clearly organized for our comprehension, he challenges us to join in the task of reconstructing that ancient controversy." —Wayne A. Meeks, Yale University

"Voelz's concentration on the distinctiveness and precision of Mark's language and style distinguishes this learned and readable commentary from others on the market. The clarity of his articulate expositions, the abundance of helpful examples given, and the alertness to contrary views testify to the book's origins in decades of inspiring teaching. "
—J. Keith Elliott, University of Leeds

"Insightful, at times helpfully provocative, and always stimulating, this volume is guaranteed a spot within easy reach on my shelf. A must for all serious students and readers of Mark."
—Rikk Watts, Regent College, Vancouver

"Dr. Lessing's exegesis gives evidence of an extensive learning. The commentary pays full attention to multi-layered connections of chapters 56–66 to chapters 40–55. Since the author applies the principle 'Scripture interprets Scripture,' both as an article of faith and as a practical mode of literary analysis, the book is entitled to a place among excellent reference works."
—Willem Beuken, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven

Prepare the Way of the Lord
by R. Reed Lessing and Andrew E. Steinmann
This new introduction to the Old Testament examines and explores each book. Scott A. Ashmon says, "Each chapter highlights theological themes that percolate within a biblical book and spins two golden threads that run throughout this testament: Christ, and sin and grace. The authors have written an Old Testament introduction that seminarians can fruitfully use to prepare to proclaim God's Law and Gospel."

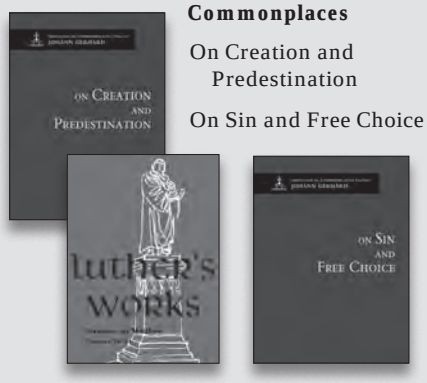

When Was Jesus Really Born?
by Steven L. Ware
Charles J. Scalise says, "Upon what historical evidence does this claim of the true humanity of the person Jesus of Nazareth rely? This is the place where Ware's painstaking labors come to our aid. When Was Jesus Really Born? offers a truly comprehensive reading of all of the calendars, timelines, church chronologies, and other materials that provide the evidence for dating the birth of our Lord."

BIBLICAL TOURS IN TURKEY, GREECE, EGYPT, JORDAN, ISRAEL, CYPRUS AND ITALY

WALK WHERE JESUS, PAUL AND THE APOSTLES

Levent Oral, President of Tutku Tours

Welcome. At Tutku Tours we are not satisfied with a good tour. Instead, we strive for excellence. We want you to return home with memorable experiences that will evoke a desire to return to the Holy Lands again and again. Tutku Tours has been operating for more than twenty years and our company is focused upon Biblical Tours. We conduct Biblical Tours for various groups: academic tours for colleges, universities and seminaries and more leisurely tours for churches and alumni groups. More than 200 schools have chosen Tutku Tours for their visits to the Holy Lands. Won't you join us?

Our guides not only pass the rigorous qualifications for tour guides set by the Turkish Ministry of Culture and Tourism, but they also participate in annual Biblical Seminars required by Tutku Tours. These seminars, conducted by scholars, archaeologists and professors enable our guides to contextualize the biblical world in relation to the places that you visit. This adds another dimension to the tour as students and parishioners are able to imagine what it was like to walk with Jesus, Paul, John and the early Christians. We want your tour to be more than a journey. We want it to be an experience that you'll treasure and never forget. Let me know how I can serve you.

With God's blessings,

Levent Oral

Westar Institute ADVANCING RELIGIOUS LITERACY

Jesus Seminar

History

Robert W. Funk

In March 1985, Robert W. Funk invited thirty New Testament scholars to join him in a new, collaborative inquiry about Jesus as a figure of history. The invitation included a commitment to make the results of that inquiry available to the general public.

Funk believed biblical scholars have an ethical responsibility to report their findings, openly and clearly. He argued that there is a large lay constituency eager to join scholars in that public discourse. The first phase of the Jesus Seminar, on the authentic words of Jesus, concluded in 1991. The results, published in 1993 as The Five Gospels, made the Publishers Weekly bestseller list for the ensuing nine months, thus affirming Funk's conviction.

Phase two of the Jesus Seminar, on the authentic deeds of Jesus, completed its work in 1996 and published the results in 1998 as The Acts of Jesus. Other seminars followed, including seminars on Paul (1993–2010) which resulted in publication of The Authentic Letters of Paul in 2010, and Acts (2001–2011), the conclusions of which appeared in 2013 as Acts and Christian Beginnings.

Spring 2013 saw the launch of the Christianity Seminar, a five-year project to formulate new models for describing how the movement that began around Jesus eventually became Christian orthodoxy and the official religion of the Roman Empire. Just as the Jesus Seminar challenged the uncritical assumption that the gospels are reliable sources for the life of Jesus, so the Christianity Seminar will challenge the uncritical assumption that the New Testament is a reliable source for the history of the various groups that responded to the words and deeds of Jesus in the first two centuries CE. (See Friday afternoon schedule.)

In Fall 2014, with the launch of a new seminar on God and the Human Future, Westar will make its first direct foray into philosophy and theology. (See Saturday morning schedule.)

Mission

Westar Institute is dedicated to fostering and communicating the results of cutting-edge scholarship on the history and evolution of the Christian tradition, thereby raising the level of public discourse about questions that matter in society and culture.

Westar is a non-profit, public-benefit research and educational organization that bridges the gap between scholarship about religion and the perception of religion in popular culture. In pursuit of its mission:

- Westar conducts collaborative, cumulative research in the academic study of religion, addressing issues, questions, and controversies that are important both to the academic community and to the public.
- Westar communicates the results of its research in non-technical terms, equipping the general public with tools to critically evaluate competing claims in the public discussion of religion. (See Sunday schedule for public lectures.)
- Westar is not affiliated with any religious institution or denomination and does not advocate a particular theological point of view.
- Westar's headquarters is on the campus of Willamette University in Salem, Oregon.

Westar publishes under the imprint of Polebridge Press. (See book ad in this program.)

More about Westar

Westar has developed a new model of scholarly discourse that is open, public, accessible, collegial, and rigorous. Its academic seminars engage leading scholars from accredited institutions worldwide, while also embracing the public and the media as observers and participants. Seminars typically meet twice a year at Westar's spring and fall meetings.

westarinstitute.org/about/

Scholars with manuscript proposals are invited to contact Lawrence Alexander, Publisher, at the Polebridge Press booth (#940) or by email at lalexander@polebridgepress.com.

"Our endeavors must be cumulative and reciprocal in order to frame our individual proclivities and eccentricities by the highest degree of scholarly objectivity."

—Robert W. Funk, Jesus Seminar Opening Remarks, March 1985

Ethos & Protocols

Literacy that matters
The knowledge we hope to produce should open up new ways of thinking about the past and living into the future.

A common conversation
A common conversation requires a common subject and a common method or strategy in exploring that subject. It should be sufficiently well-defined to make it possible to specify the outcomes of our conversations.

Honesty is foundational
Our first step is to practice a rigorous honesty in our exchanges with each other. We must be up front and candid with the broader public as we speak and write for that public.

Conversation is cumulative
For a conversation to be cumulative, sustained participation in the common conversation is a necessary ingredient. It makes an essential difference in the quality and course of our deliberations.

Operate out of a consensus
At Westar, we try to identify the knowledge we hold in common rather than traffic in our differences and private opinions. We cultivate difference of opinion within the common conversation but strive for the resolution, even if only provisional, of fundamental issues.

Radically inclusive
The seminar meets around a 'round table' in that all Fellows as specialists are equidistant from the center. The voice of nonspecialists is limited only in the interests of disciplined discourse.

Establish the facts
The seminar also meets around a 'square table,' in the sense that we attempt to establish the 'facts,' which denote what we agree to be the case, on the basis of the evidence available.

Public accountability
The Westar seminars have agreed to report to a broad, literate public. Reporting is a part of our dedication to literacy. It is also the way we discipline ourselves to speak and write a common language.

westarinstitute.org/membership/westar-fellows/ethos-protocols/

Participating in a Westar Seminar

Westar seminars typically consist of discussion of papers prepared and distributed in advance. PDFs of the papers are posted on the Institute website and can be downloaded free of charge. Attendance at Westar seminars is open to the general public.

Non-Westar scholars wishing to participate in the conversation—that is, to have a place at the table—have two options: The first is to become a Westar Fellow (see below). The other is be formally invited by the program steering committee.

Becoming a Fellow
Scholars with advanced academic degrees (Ph.D. or equivalent) in religious studies or related disciplines from accredited universities worldwide may apply to become Westar Fellows. As the Westar culture of collaboration, collegiality, and public outreach differs from that of other academic societies, scholars are advised to learn more about Westar Ethos and Protocols (see opposite) before applying.

To apply, go to westarinstitute.org and fill out the application form, attach your current CV, and submit it. A credentials committee of your peers will review your application and follow up with you within 30 days.

Becoming an Associate Member
Associate membership is open to anyone interested in scholarship about religion and religious literacy. Associate members come from all walks of life, professions, and religious backgrounds. There are no academic or creedal tests for membership.

"I am proposing that we conduct our work in full public view. If we are to survive as scholars of the humanities, as well as theologians, we must quit the academic closet."

Announcement of a new journal

Religion in the Roman Empire (RRE)

Editors: Reinhard Feldmeier, Karen L. King, Rubina Raja, Annette Yoshiko Reed, Christoph Riedweg, Jörg Rüpke, Seth Schwartz, Christopher Smith, Markus Vinzent

Associate Editors: Nicole Belayche, Kimberly Bowes, Richard Gordon, Gesine Manuwald, Volker Menze, Maren Niehoff, George H. van Kooten, Moulie Vidas, Greg Woolf

Religion in the Roman Empire (RRE) is bold in the sense that it intends to further and document new and integrative perspectives on religion in the Ancient World combining multidisciplinary methodologies. Starting from the notion of »lived religion« it will offer a space to take up recent, but still incipient, research to modify and cross the disciplinary boundaries of History of Religion, Archaeology, Anthropology, Classics, Ancient History, Jewish History, Rabbinics, New Testament, Early Christianity, Patristics, Coptic Studies, Gnostic and Manichean Studies, Late Antiquity and Oriental Languages. We hope to stimulate the development of new approaches that can encompass the local and global trajectories of the multidimensional pluralistic religions of antiquity.

Each volume will consist of three issues a year, each of approximately 140 pages in length. It will include an editorial, five to seven main articles, and book reviews.

All articles and contributions that exceed 8 pages in length will be double-blind peer-reviewed. All articles and contributions will be in English.

The first issues will deal with »Lived Religion: Appropriations of Religion and Meanings in Situations,« »Understanding Objects in Religious Contexts« and with »Practices and Groups,« bringing together studies on textual and archaeological material from all areas of the Mediterranean.

Free access to the full text online is included in a subscription. The Religion in the Roman Empire articles are available in full text via Pay-per-View at IngentaConnect, a provider of digital journals on the Internet and may be purchased for a fee of US $ 33,00 plus British VAT. There will be an overview of the currently available electronic issues of the RRE on our website.
